(No. 21.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 6th February, 1924.

WITH reference to Mr. Churchill's despatch No. 140 of the 20th September, 1922,* in which allusion was made to the possible amendment of Article 5 of the Aerial Navigation Convention, I have the honour to request you to inform your Ministers that, at a meeting of the International Commission for Air Navigation held in London in October, 1922, the French representatives proposed the amendment of the Article in order to permit exceptions being made to the provisions of the Article in cases where one of the contracting States has entered into an individual agreement with another State which is not a party to the Convention. The amended Article was embodied in a Protocol of Amendment, which read as follows:—

"No contracting State shall, except by a special and temporary authorization, permit the flight above its territory of an aircraft which does not possess the nationality of a contracting State, unless it has concluded a special Convention with the State in which the aircraft is registered. The stipulations of such special Convention must not infringe the rights of the contracting parties to the present Convention and must conform to the rules laid down by the said Convention and its annexes. Such special Convention shall be communicated to the International Commission for Air Navigation which will bring it to the knowledge of the other contracting States."

2. This Protocol was signed by His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires in Paris on the 28th March, 1923, and His Majesty's Ratification was deposited in Paris on the 19th December, 1923.

As indicated in the procès verbaux, printed on pages 5-9 of [Cmd. 1741], the ratifications of Belgium, Bolivia, France, Greece, Japan, Portugal, the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, and Siam, as well as that of the British Empire, were deposited on the 1st June, 1922. The Italian ratification of the Convention was deposited on the 13th March, 1923, and the Italian ratification of the additional Protocol to the Convention on the 10th April, 1923; the ratification of Czechoslovakia was deposited on the 23rd November, 1923. In addition, Peru, Nicaragua, Liberia, Persia and Bulgaria have acceded to the Convention.

3. In accordance with the terms of the Declaration embodied in the procès verbaux of the deposit of ratifications (page 7 of [Cmd. 1741]), His Majesty's Government and the Governments of the self-governing Dominions and India have announced their intention of postponing provisionally the application of Article 5 of the Convention in respect of the States enumerated in the Declaration. Similar announcements have been made by France, Italy, Persia, and Siam.

4. At a meeting of the International Commission for Air Navigation held in London in October, 1922, the French representatives proposed the amendment of Article 5 of the Convention, in order to permit exceptions being made to the provisions of the Article in cases where one of the Contracting States has entered into a special agreement with another State which is not a party to the Convention. The amended Article was embodied in a Protocol of Amendment, which reads as follows:—

"No contracting State shall, except by a special and temporary authorization, permit the flight above its territory of an aircraft which does not possess the nationality of a contracting State, unless it has concluded a special Convention with the State in which the aircraft is registered. The stipulations of such special Convention must not infringe the rights of the contracting parties to the present Convention and must conform to the rules laid down by the said Convention and its annexes. Such special Convention shall be communicated to the International Commission for Air Navigation which will bring it to the knowledge of the other contracting States."

5. This Protocol was signed by His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires in Paris on the 28th March, 1923, and His Majesty's Ratification was deposited in Paris on the 19th December, 1923.

6. I take this opportunity to enclose copies of the Air Navigation (Consolidation) Order, 1923, dated the 19th December, 1923.

I have, &c.,

SIR,

Downing Street, 12th December, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request you to inform your Ministers that at a meeting of the International Commission on Aerial Navigation early in 1923, the Belgian representative on the Commission put forward a proposal that Article 34 of the Aerial Navigation Convention, 1919, should be amended to the following effect:—

(1) Each State represented on the Commission should have only one vote, the British Empire as at present counting as one State for voting purposes.

(2) The majority required for any modification of the Annexes of the Convention should include at least three of the following five States: the United States of America, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan.

2. The French representative proposed a further amendment that the expenses of the Commission should be apportioned as follows:—

Two shares each by the United States of America, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, and one share each by all other Contracting States.

3. At the meeting of the Commission held in June, 1923, the amendments were adopted, and they have been embodied in a Protocol. According to the provisions of the Protocol and of Article 34 of the Convention, the amendments will not take effect until after the deposit, at the seat of the Commission, of the ratifications of all States at present Contracting Parties to the Convention.

4. His Majesty's ratification of the Protocol was deposited on the 20th of November, 1924, and the Protocol has also been ratified by Belgium and Italy.

SIR,

A memorandum§ dealing with the previous history of this question, which has been prepared in the Colonial Office, is also enclosed.

Enclosure 2 in No. 20.

Office International d'Hygiène Publique, Paris.

14 24 juillet, 1924.

195, Boulevard St. Germain (Ville Arr.)

MONSIEUR LE SECRÉTAIRE D'ÉTAT,

PAR une circulaire en date du 13 novembre, 1910, le Comité de l'Office international d'Hygiène publique avait donné connaissance aux Gouvernements participants du vœu ci-après, qu'il avait émis au cours de sa session d'octobre de la même année :—

Le Comité de l'Office international d'Hygiène publique, considérant qu'il y aurait intérêt à ce que le contrôle des sérums, vaccins et produits microbiens qui peuvent être utilisés pour le traitement et la prévention des maladies contagieuses, fût l'objet d'accords internationaux, émet le vœu que les Gouvernements des pays participants se préoccupent de faire étudier les éléments de ces accords éventuels.

Le Comité croit devoir signaler en particulier, à l'attention des Gouvernements, le sérum anti-diphtérique, comme pouvant faire dès maintenant l'objet d'un examen susceptible d'aboutir à des conclusions pratiques.

L'attention du Comité a été appelée par M. le Professeur A. Calmette, qui en faisait alors partie, dans la session d'octobre, 1921 (v. procès verbaux, page 21), sur l'intérêt que présenterait un nouvel examen de la question d'une entente internationale sur les sérums thérapeutiques, et notamment sur le sérum anti-diphtérique. Une Commission spéciale, prise dans son sein, fût, en conséquence, désignée par le Comité pour procéder à une étude générale de cette question. Les expériences et vérifications faites à la suite de la Conférence scientifique, réunie à Londres du 12 au 14 décembre, 1921, sur la convocation de l'Organisation provisoire d'Hygiène de la Société des Nations, relativement à la "standardisation des sérums et réactions sérologiques," sont venues confirmer, en ce qui concerne le sérum anti-diphtérique, le bien-fondé de l'opinion émise, en 1910, par le Comité de l'Office international. Celui-ci s'est trouvé, ainsi, d'autant plus porté à poursuivre l'initiative, qu'il venait de prendre, de charger sa Commission des sérums d'envisager les conditions dans lesquelles il était possible d'arrêter un projet d'arrangement international visant la circulation et l'usage des sérums anti-diphtériques.

Les procès-verbaux des sessions du Comité de mai, 1922 (pp. 171 à 177), et de mai, 1923 (p. 115), permettent de se rendre compte des considérations pour lesquelles la Commission des sérums est arrivée à la conclusion que, parmi tous les sérums au sujet desquels une standardisation internationale a pu être envisagée, seul le sérum anti-diphtérique peut être, quant à présent, pris en considération.

Le projet d'arrangement international ainsi préparé par la Commission a été examiné et discuté par le Comité, d'une part, dans sa session d'octobre, 1922 (v. procès-verbaux, pp. 56 et 99) et, d'autre part, dans la sixième séance de la session qu'il a tenue récemment du 28 avril au 7 mai, 1924.

La discussion, dont les propositions de la Commission des sérums ont été l'objet dans cette dernière session, fait ressortir le point de vue auquel le Comité s'est placé, en envisageant les stipulations insérées dans le projet qu'il a définitivement arrêté. C'est ainsi qu'il a été nettement indiqué que l'arrangement proposé ne concerne que le sérum ordinaire et le sérum sec, qui sont d'un usage universel. Des considérations d'ordre scientifique ont amené, en effet, le Comité à penser qu'il était préférable, actuellement, de ne pas étendre l'arrangement aux sérums concentrés ou précipités. Les Gouvernements resteront, dès lors, libres de réglementer, comme ils le jugeront opportun, tout ce qui concerne l'usage, la circulation ou l'importation de ces derniers produits dans leurs territoires.

D'après l'article 6 du projet, à l'égard des sérums ordinaires et des sérums secs, les Gouvernements posséderont, notamment, le droit d'exercer, sur les produits importés, un contrôle pour vérifier l'exécution des stipulations prévues aux articles 4 et 5; ils auront la faculté de fixer les règles d'après lesquelles les sérums anti-diphtériques cesseront de pouvoir être utilisés pour l'usage médical sur leurs territoires; il leur sera loisible également d'exiger l'inscription de mentions supplémentaires sur les étiquettes. Enfin, l'article 7 stipule que les Gouvernements feront connaître à l'Office international d'Hygiène publique toutes mesures qu'ils prendront en vue de l'application de l'arrangement et l'Office international communiquera ces renseignements aux Parties contractantes.

J'ai été chargé de soumettre à l'examen et à l'approbation des Gouvernements représentés dans l'Office international le texte de ce projet d'arrangement international, dont trois exemplaires se trouvent ci-joints.

Le Comité aurait intérêt à savoir si est disposé à accepter les termes de l'arrangement dont il s'agit et à revêtir ce dernier de sa signature.

Lorsque les réponses des divers Gouvernements lui seront parvenues, le Comité examinera si elles lui permettraient de demander au Gouvernement français de vouloir bien faire une démarche auprès des Gouvernements ayant décidé de signer l'arrangement pour qu'ils désignent des plénipotentiaires à cet effet.

Agréez, etc.,

Le Président du Comité,
de l'Office international d'Hygiène publique.
(Signé.)

Son Excellence

Monsieur le Secrétaire d'Etat de Sa Majesté
Britannique pour les Affaires Etrangères, Londres.

Enclosure 3 in No. 20.

Foreign Office, S.W.1.

19th August, 1924.

SIR,

In reply to your letter of the 24th ultimo, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to state that, while His Majesty's Government concur in the terms of the draft international agreement for the control of anti-diphtheritic serum, they would prefer, in view of the terms of Article 8, that the instrument should be drawn in the form of a convention between Heads of States.

2. His Majesty's Government are also of opinion that an article should be inserted in the draft providing for the accession of non-signatory states on the lines of Article 5 of the draft convention regarding the treatment of venereal disease among seamen which has been prepared by the Belgian Government.

3. The Secretary of State will, in these circumstances, be glad to be informed at an early date whether the International Office can see their way to meet the wishes of His Majesty's Government in this matter.

ADMIRALTY to FOREIGN OFFICE.

(Received in Colonial Office, 15th May, 1924.)

[Answered by No. 41.]

(Secret.)

SIR,

Admiralty, 30th April, 1924.

I AM commanded by My Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to advert to the fact that at its meeting on Friday, 11th April, the Cabinet Committee on the replacement of Fleet Units other than capital ships agreed:—

"That the First Lord of the Admiralty should send a Memorandum to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs informing him that, after a preliminary discussion of the Naval Programme of construction, the Committee considered that it would be desirable to have the political aspect further explored. In particular the Committee found that the British programme of construction was influenced to a very considerable extent by the Japanese programme. He should suggest that the Secretary of State for

* No. 63 in Dominions No. 88.

Foreign Affairs should consider whether a suitable time had now arrived to sound the Japanese Government as to the possibility of some further arrangement for the limitation of armament. This arrangement might be either bilateral, or if considered desirable, possibly tripartite between Japan, the United States of America and Great Britain."

This conclusion is somewhat indefinite in form, but My Lords believe it to be akin to the policy announced by His Majesty's Government in relation to the development of the Naval Base at Singapore, viz., that the matter had to be considered in a wider relationship, namely, that of general foreign policy.

My Lords are impressed with the urgent necessity, from the point of view of their responsibilities, of early steps being taken in the direction of clarifying the international position. They need hardly point out that time is passing, and with time the efficiency of the Fleet upon which the safety of the Empire depends.

My Lords, therefore, bring to the notice of the Secretary of State the decision of His Majesty's Government in relation to the development of the Naval Base at Singapore, and the conclusion of the Committee of 11th April above recited, in the hope that he will take the steps indicated in that conclusion.

I am to append, for the information of the Secretary of State, a Note* compiled by the Naval Staff outlining the main features of the present Naval situation.

SIR,

Downing Street, 17th May, 1924.

I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Thomas to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 10th and 14th of May,† regarding a proposal to approach the Japanese Government with a view to a further international arrangement for limitation of naval armaments.

* Not printed; it dealt with the general Naval situation. † No. 40. ‡ 22771/24 and 23104/24: LFF enclosing copies of Nos. 40 and 41.

2. It is noted that the draft telegram* enclosed in your letter refers to the possibility of an agreement with other Powers in the name of the "British Empire." Having regard to the present constitutional position and the discussions at the Imperial Conference of 1921, which led up to the Washington Conference, the Secretary of State feels it essential that the Governments of the self-Governing Dominions should be made acquainted with the intentions of His Majesty's Government before an approach is made to a foreign Government, even on the lines indicated in the draft telegram, with a view to the conclusion of such an agreement. He hopes that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald will concur in this view, in which case he will be prepared to communicate with the Dominion Governments as soon as the terms of the proposed telegram are so far settled as to render such communication possible.

3. A copy of this letter is being sent to the Admiralty.

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 27th May, 1924.

WITH reference to your letter (Secret and Immediate) of the 17th May,† regarding the proposal to approach the Japanese Government with a view to a further international arrangement for the limitation of naval armaments, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to inform you that he does not agree that it is necessary at this stage to consult the Governments of the Dominions on this subject. It is only contemplated that the Japanese Government should be sounded in a non-committal manner, when the Admiralty have formulated a basis for such action, which does not at present exist. I am to transmit to you herewith a copy of a letter which has been addressed to the Lords Commissioners on the subject.

2. In Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's view, the proper moment for consulting with the Dominions would be at a later stage, when, as a result of this tentative inquiry, there might be practical ground for discussion. He could not concur in the view that His Majesty's Government should be debarred from preliminary action in a matter of foreign relations without first seeking the views of all the Dominions.

I am, &c.,
ROBERT VANSITTART.

Enclosure in No. 43.

(Secret and Immediate.)

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 27th May, 1924.

I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to refer to the letter from this department of 10th May,‡ enclosing the draft of a telegram instructing His Majesty's Ambassador at Tokyo to ascertain the views of the Japanese Government as to an early agreement for a further limitation of naval armament.

2. The draft telegram was prepared on the secret letter from the Admiralty of the 30th April,§ and was submitted to the Admiralty for concurrence in order to ascertain whether it correctly interpreted the wishes of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty as put forward in their letter, with regard to which, however, the Secretary of State has not gathered a precise impression. It is, for instance, suggested in the letter from the Admiralty, above referred to, that the Japanese Government should be asked whether they would be willing to enter into negotiations with His Majesty's Government (and possibly the United States Government) for the further limitation of armaments—presumably naval only—but, in the notes by the Naval Staff, it is declared that negotiations with Japan alone would be useless, and that an agreement must cover all countries.

3. Whilst Mr. Ramsay MacDonald considers that it would be useful to ascertain the views of the Japanese Government as to the feasibility of a further agreement on disarmament, as a preliminary to any further action, he sees great objection to any new disarmament conference unless and until His Majesty's Government are prepared with a plan they can present with some prospect of its being really workable. It is not clear from the Admiralty letter whether such a plan in fact exists. In the absence of such a basis Mr. Ramsay MacDonald considers that it would be inexpedient to call or suggest a conference. I am, therefore, to inquire, before the draft telegram to Tokyo could usefully be despatched, whether the Lords Commissioners are in a position to define the course that they have in mind.

* Enclosure in No. 41. † No. 42. ‡ No. 41. § No. 40.

SIR,

Downing Street, 10th June, 1924.

IN reply to your letter of the 27th of May* regarding the proposal to approach the Japanese Government with a view to a further international arrangement for the limitation of naval armament, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Thomas to request you to inform Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald that the reason which led him to suggest communication with the Dominion Governments before the proposed telegram to His Majesty's Ambassador at Tokyo was sent, was that the telegram as prepared referred to the possibility of an arrangement with Foreign Powers in the name of the British Empire.

2. The matter was not, therefore, one in which it could be assumed that the Dominion Governments would have no immediate concern, and consequently one on which His Majesty's Government could take such action as they deemed expedient without reference to the Dominions. On the contrary, it was one in which, having regard to the naval forces of the Dominions which might be affected by any further agreement for the limitation of armaments, certain of the Dominion Governments would have a very special interest.

3. In the circumstances Mr. Thomas would suggest that it would be well for the matter to be discussed at the Committee of Imperial Defence as soon as the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty have further formulated the scheme which they have in mind, but before a decision is taken as to any communication to the Japanese Government.

4. Copies of this letter and of your letter under reply are being sent to the Admiralty, and a copy of the correspondence is being sent to the Committee of Imperial Defence.

MY LORD DUKE,

I HAVE the honour to refer to Your Grace's despatch No. 49 of the 14th November last* on the subject of a draft Treaty with the Austrian Government which has been prepared by His Majesty's Government.

2. I am informed by my Ministers that, so far as this Colony is concerned, they see no objection to the adoption of the Treaty as drafted.

3. As regards the legislation in force in Southern Rhodesia imposing restrictions upon nationals of ex-enemy States, my Ministers state that, should the Treaty be adopted, they propose that the High Commissioner's Proclamation No. 16 of 1919, as amended from time to time, which prohibits the entry into the Colony, except under special permit, of all former enemy aliens, including the subjects of Austria, should be allowed to lapse automatically, which it will do on the 3rd September, 1924, unless it is renewed by further legislation.

4. My Ministers, however, desire to preserve the restrictions contained in High Commissioner's Proclamation No. 1 of 1920, which gives the Governor power generally to order the removal of any alien, whether an enemy or not, from the Colony at any time. They therefore respectfully request Your Grace to prepare and sign the necessary reservation to this effect on behalf of the Government of the Colony of Southern Rhodesia in the event of the Treaty being adopted.

5. I enclose, for convenience of reference, a copy of Proclamation No. 16 of 1919, together with various amendments, also a copy of Proclamation No. 1 of 1920.†

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 14 of the 11th of January,† relative to the draft Anglo-Austrian Commercial Treaty, and to request you to inform your Ministers that the Treaty, if signed, would not be applicable to Southern Rhodesia unless notice of accession were given under Article 23. Should the Treaty be concluded and notice of accession on behalf of Southern Rhodesia be given while the special legislation as to the entry of former enemy aliens is in force, it would be necessary to make a reservation in respect of the entry into Southern Rhodesia of Austrians, as former enemy aliens, and in that event steps would be taken accordingly.

2. As regards paragraph 4 of your despatch, I would observe that Treaties of Commerce and Navigation of this nature are not regarded as conflicting with local legislation as to the deportation of aliens generally; further, it is now proposed to add at the end of Article 1 of the draft Treaty the following additional paragraph:

"It is understood, however, that the preceding stipulations in no wise affect the laws, decrees, and special regulations regarding commerce, industry and police, in force in the territories of each party and generally applicable to all foreigners."

3. In these circumstances, no reservation in the sense suggested by your Ministers would appear to be necessary in the event of notice of accession being given on behalf of Southern Rhodesia.

Enclosure 1 in No. 49 (to Union of South Africa only).

(No. 503.)

SIR,

London, 17th March, 1924.

IN the interest of the development of the commercial relations between Austria and the British Dominions, and in order to obtain the removal of dumping duties on Austrian goods, I approached last autumn the Prime Ministers of these Territories who were in London to attend the sittings of the Imperial Conference. I also put before them the request of the Austrian Government that the Dominions should become parties to the Commercial Treaty about to be concluded between Austria and Great Britain.

I have been informed that Lieutenant-General the Right Honourable J. C. Smuts has had the matter looked into but that, before he can give any definite answer, he thinks it necessary for the Government of the Union of South Africa to see the text of the said proposed Commercial Treaty. Until its provisions have been examined by the departments concerned, it is impossible for the Government of South Africa to say whether the Union will become a party to it.

Since this draft offers the possibility of the Dominions becoming parties to the Treaty, I trust that there will be no objection on the part of His Majesty's Government to this draft being brought to the knowledge of the Prime Minister of South Africa.

I should be very grateful if the British Government would express their consent and let me have a copy of the Treaty in its present form.

(No. 236.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 3rd July, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 121 of the 8th of May,* regarding the accession of Southern Rhodesia to the Anglo-Austrian Commercial Treaty, and to request you to inform your Ministers that, as the Treaty does not come into force until ratified, it would be necessary to postpone notice of accession until after the exchange of ratifications has taken place; if, moreover, the Treaty should come into force and notice of accession on behalf of Southern Rhodesia should be given before the 3rd of September, when it is contemplated that the special restrictions on the entry of former enemy aliens into Southern Rhodesia will lapse, it would be necessary to make a special declaration dealing with the application to Austrian nationals of those restrictions so long as they continue.

2. Accordingly, if the exchange of ratifications takes place before the 3rd of September, it is proposed, unless Ministers see any objection, to defer notice of accession until after that date.

Enclosure in No. 52.

(Z1. 782.)

SIR,

London, 12th May, 1924.

I HAVE been instructed by the Austrian Government to approach you with regard to an exchange of notes which appears to have taken place between Great Britain and Czechoslovakia on 19th December, 1923, and 2nd January, 1924, extending the Agreement between the two countries relative to Commercial Travellers' Samples, signed in London, 31st January, 1923, to certain of His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies and Possessions, including the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State, Newfoundland, Malta and India.

The Anglo-Czechoslovakian Agreement of 31st January corresponds in the main with the Agreement between Great Britain and Austria concluded by exchange of notes on 28th March, 1923.

The Austrian Government would appreciate it very much if this latter Agreement could also be extended to those of His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies and Possessions which have acceded to the Czechoslovakian Agreement.

I should therefore be grateful if I could kindly be informed whether an exchange of notes similar to the one between Great Britain and Czechoslovakia referred to above could also be arranged to take place between Great Britain and Austria.

I have, &c.,

Austrian Minister.

ATHLONE,

Governor-General.

Enclosure in No. 77.

Prime Minister's Office, 13th May, 1924.

MINUTE No. 352.

MINISTERS have the honour to refer to His Excellency the Governor-General's Minute No. 48/1465 of the 28th April, 1924, on the subject of the extension to the Union of South Africa and to South-West Africa of the Convention between the United Kingdom and Belgium respecting Legal Proceedings in Civil and Commercial matters signed in London on the 21st June, 1922.

2. Ministers are of opinion that no necessity exists for the extension to the Union of the Convention referred to since it is considered that the existing rules and existing reciprocity are sufficient for all purposes, the position being the same as in the case of France to which Ministers' Minute No. 572 of 10th August last referred.

YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 11th July, 1924.

IN pursuance of Article 14 (b) of the Anglo-Belgian Civil Procedure Convention of 21st June, 1922, I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that the Government of Newfoundland are desirous that the Convention should be extended to that Island.

2. The Registrar of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland will act, in the same way as the Senior Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England, as the authority to whom applications for the service of process or for the taking of evidence should be addressed. It is suggested that communications and documents from the Belgian Courts to be dealt with in Newfoundland under the terms of the Convention should be accompanied by translations in English.

3. His Majesty's Government are further desirous of notifying the accession of Palestine to the Convention. The President of the District Court is the official in Palestine who will act as the authority to whom requests for the service of process or the taking of evidence should be addressed. The official languages of the Court are English, Arabic and Hebrew, and it is suggested that documents sent to it from the Belgian Courts should be accompanied by translations in English.

4. In requesting that you will be so good as to acknowledge this communication on behalf of your Government, I have the honour to suggest that the exchange of notes thus constituted should be regarded as placing the matter on formal record, and that the extension of the terms of the Convention to Newfoundland and Palestine should be considered as coming into force one month after the date of your reply.

Enclosure in No. 83.

(No. 15/2330.)

Ambassade de Belgique,
Londres, le 26 septembre, 1924.

MONSIEUR LE PREMIER MINISTRE,

EN réponse à la lettre que Votre Excellence a bien voulu m'adresser en date du 11 juillet dernier, No. T 5462/579/391, j'ai l'honneur de l'informer de ce que sous les réserves formulées ci-après, le Gouvernement du Roi acquiesce volontiers à la demande du Gouvernement de Sa Majesté Britannique d'étendre à la Colonie de Terre-Neuve et à la Palestine l'application de la convention anglo-belge du 21 juin, 1922, concernant la transmission des actes judiciaires et extrajudiciaires et l'établissement des preuves.

Le Consul Général de Belgique à Ottawa et le Consul de Belgique à Jérusalem seront chargés d'assurer la transmission des exploits et des commissions rogatoires respectivement au "Registrar" de la Cour Suprême de Terre-Neuve et au Président de la Cour de District en Palestine.

Dans Sa communication précitée Votre Excellence exprime le désir que les communications et documents provenant des autorités judiciaires belges et destinés à être envoyés aux magistrats désignés ci-dessus, soient accompagnés d'une traduction anglaise.

Le Gouvernement belge comprends cette demande en ce qui concerne les commissions rogatoires et il y sera satisfait dans la mesure du possible. Toutefois il y a lieu de remarquer que, conformément à l'article 9b de la convention en question, la commission rogatoire peut ne pas être accompagnée d'une traduction dans la langue de l'autorité requise; cette traduction est alors établie par les soins de l'Etat requis.

Quant aux actes judiciaires et extrajudiciaires, mon Gouvernement regrette de ne pouvoir satisfaire au désir exprimé par Votre Excellence. Il n'est pas possible, en effet, de charger les agents consulaires belges d'en effectuer une traduction anglaise. Il n'est tout d'abord pas certain que ces agents connaîtront toujours suffisamment la langue anglaise pour traduire des documents de cette espèce. Ensuite, cela constituerait un travail non rémunéré fait dans l'intérêt, surtout, des personnes assignées, lesquelles, souvent, seront de nationalité étrangère. Il n'est pas non plus possible de recourir à cet effet, à un traducteur juré; ce serait imposer à la partie requérante des débours dont elle désire évidemment se dispenser.

D'autre part, la convention du 21 juin 1922 ne contient aucune disposition qui exige cette traduction. L'article 14 (b) 2e paragraphe dit bien "que la notification (d'extension aux Dominions, Colonies, etc.) indiquera . . . la langue dans laquelle les communications et traductions doivent être faites," mais cela n'implique pas que les actes judiciaires doivent toujours être accompagnés d'une traduction puisque, conformément à l'art. 3b, seule la demande de notification adressée à l'autorité requis désignée doit être rédigée dans la langue de cette autorité, l'acte lui-même ne devant être traduit que dans le cas de l'art. 3e, c'est à dire quand l'autorité requérante exprime, dans sa demande, le désir que l'exploit soit signifié dans la forme prescrite par la législation intérieure de l'Etat requis pour la signification de documents analogues, ou dans une forme spéciale.

Il y a lieu de noter à ce propos que le "Senior Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England" avait réclamé au Consul Général de Belgique à Londres une traduction anglaise des actes judiciaires qui lui avaient été transmis aux fins de notification; sur les observations que M. Pollet lui a présentées en se basant sur les dispositions citées ci-dessus, ce haut magistrat britannique y a renoncé.

Je serais très reconnaissant à Votre Excellence de bien vouloir me faire part de l'avis du Gouvernement de Sa Majesté Britannique au sujet des considérations qui précèdent.

Etant donné le retard que cet échange de correspondance va occasionner, j'ai été chargé de suggérer à Votre Excellence que l'application à l'Ile de Terre-Neuve et à la Palestine de la convention dont il s'agit n'ait lieu qu'un mois après la date de la réponse que Votre Excellence voudra bien me faire parvenir et à condition toutefois, cela va de soi, que celle-ci soit conforme à la manière de voir du Gouvernement belge.

TO THE SECRETARY,

By your letter of 3rd July you have acquainted the International Bureau of Tariffs of the intention of the Australian Commonwealth to retire as from 31st March, 1926, from the Union established by the Convention of 5th July, 1890.

In acknowledging the receipt of this communication I beg leave to express the hope that in the interval between the present time and the moment when the notice provided for by Article 15 of the said Convention should be sent to the Belgian Government, the Commonwealth Government would kindly reconsider this question in view of the fact that the work of the Brussels Bureau cannot be satisfactorily conducted unless its establishment includes the most important States in the world as regards commerce.

The development of the commerce of the Commonwealth gives us a very particular interest in having the collaboration of the Australian Federation.

I reserve the opportunity of returning later on to these matters, the time provided by the Convention of 5th July, 1890, for actual withdrawals not expiring until 31st March, 1925.

Enclosure in No. 92.

Ambassade de Belgique, Londres, le 8 décembre 1924.

MONSIEUR LE SECRÉTAIRE D'ÉTAT,

Par Sa lettre en date du 23 octobre dernier, No. W 9180/106/4, Votre Excellence a bien voulu me faire connaître que le Gouvernement de la Nouvelle-Zélande avait l'intention de se retirer de l'Union Internationale pour la Publication des Tarifs Douaniers à partir du 31 mars 1926.

Cette notification a péniblement surpris le Gouvernement du Roi.

La Nouvelle-Zélande est au nombre des pays, signataires de la Convention du 5 juillet 1890, qui ont constitué l'Union Internationale dont il s'agit.

Ces pays ont voulu que, par la diffusion des tarifs douaniers de tous les Etats, publiés dans les langues commerciales les plus usitées, le commerce international soit dûment éclairé quant aux conditions dans lesquelles peut se faire l'importation des marchandises sur tous les points du globe. Ce résultat ne peut être atteint, dans la pratique, que par la coopération de la presque totalité des Etats, la tâche à accomplir par le Bureau des Tarifs restant la même quel que soit le nombre des Etats associés. Cette coopération à peu près mondiale est heureusement acquise grâce notamment à l'adhésion obtenue des nouveaux Etats créés depuis la guerre. Il serait profondément regrettable que le retrait de la Nouvelle-Zélande vint priver l'Institution d'une collaboration qui lui est très précieuse.

* No. 90. † No. 89.

Sans doute les années qui ont suivi la guerre ont-elles mis le Bureau International de Bruxelles en présence de difficultés de tous ordres qui ont pu nuire à la régularité de son fonctionnement. L'augmentation des prix de toutes choses, exprimés en monnaie belge, a réduit, au début, ses moyens d'ordre financier. Les modifications fréquentes introduites au lendemain de la conclusion de la Paix dans les tarifs douaniers de nombreux pays l'ont mis, d'autre part, devant une tâche dont l'ampleur ne s'accordait guère avec les limites de personnel imposées par son Budget.

Mais la situation s'est sensiblement améliorée dans ces derniers temps et l'Institution pourra désormais on peut l'espérer, fonctionner dans des conditions normales si les Etats associés s'acquittent ponctuellement de l'obligation, que leur impose la Convention du 5 juillet 1890, d'envoyer immédiatement au Bureau de Bruxelles toutes les dispositions relatives à leur régime douanier.

La stipulation insérée à l'article 6 de la Convention du 3 novembre 1923 sur les formalités douanières et similaires ne peut manquer d'avoir, à cet égard, les plus heureux effets.

En rappelant, par le dit article, la mission confiée au Bureau International de Bruxelles quant à la traduction et à la publication des tarifs douaniers, la Conférence de Genève est venue consacrer en quelque sorte l'Institution issue de la Convention du 5 juillet 1890. Je constaterai, à ce propos, que la Nouvelle-Zélande figure au nombre des premiers pays qui ont ratifié la Convention de Genève. Cette circonstance viendrait aviver encore les regrets que causerait sa sortie de l'Union Internationale.

Pour donner au Gouvernement Néo-Zélandais une preuve des conditions de célérité dans lesquelles le Bureau de Bruxelles s'acquitte de sa tâche lorsqu'il est documenté en temps utile par les Gouvernements contractants, j'ai l'honneur de transmettre à Votre Excellence deux exemplaires de l'édition anglaise du nouveau tarif douanier de la Belgique, édition qui a paru peu de jours après la publication de ce tarif dans le journal officiel belge.

Le Gouvernement du Roi veut espérer que le Gouvernement de la Nouvelle-Zélande voudra bien soumettre la question à un nouvel examen. Le délai pour les notifications officielles de dénonciation n'arrivant à échéance que le 31 mars 1925, une décision définitive prise dès à présent serait en quelque sorte prématurée.

WITH reference to the Duke of Devonshire's despatch Dominions No. 427 of the 19th November, 1923,* relative to the Treaty of Commerce between the United Kingdom and Czechoslovakia, I have the honour to inform you that my Ministers advise me that:—

(a) New Zealand at present accords to Czechoslovak goods treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods produced or manufactured in any other foreign country, subject to the following reservation:—

On certain specified classes of goods, which may be varied from time to time, special rates of Customs duty are levied in pursuance of legislation of general application enabling the imposition of such duties on articles produced or manufactured in any country whose currency is depreciated more than ten per cent. in relation to sterling.

These special duties apply to all foreign countries except when their imposition would be contrary to existing treaties. The rate of such special duty in respect of any country is governed by the extent of the depreciation of that country's currency. No special discrimination is made in respect of Czechoslovakia, and the practice in New Zealand may, therefore, be considered to be in conformity with the principle embodied in Article III of the Treaty of Commerce between the United Kingdom and that country.

(b) So far as Western Samoa is concerned, Czechoslovakian goods will be accorded by the Samoan Administration treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods produced or manufactured in any other foreign country, subject to the following reservation:—

On certain specified classes of goods, which may be varied from time to time, special rates of Customs duty are levied in pursuance of legislation of general application enabling the imposition of such duties on articles produced or manufactured in any country whose currency is depreciated more than ten per cent. in relation to sterling.

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 19th December, 1923.

I HAVE the honour to refer to the Agreement between Great Britain and the Czechoslovak Republic relative to Commercial Travellers' Samples which was signed at London on 31st January, 1923, and of which the ratifications were exchanged at Prague on the 7th September last.

2. Certain of the Governments of His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies and Possessions have expressed their willingness to accede to that Agreement, and I understand that the Czechoslovak Government are agreeable that such accession may be effected by means of a formal exchange of notes recording the accession. It would be understood that the Agreement applies reciprocally to the acceding British Dominions, Colonies and Possessions in the same manner and on the same conditions as it applies to Great Britain.

3. I have the honour, therefore, to notify that the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State, Newfoundland and Malta accede to the above-mentioned agreement, together with India. In the case of the Union of South Africa, it is nevertheless understood that the amount of duty must be deposited in money, and that the sum paid cannot be refunded until the actual export of the samples within one year, because no facilities exist locally for a refund of duty on their being placed in bond.

4. In the event of any other of His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies and Possessions desiring to accede to the agreement in future, His Majesty's Government hereby agree that a similar formal notification of their accession to the Czechoslovak Government and the acceptance of such accession by the latter will suffice for the purpose.

5. If the above course meets with the approval of the Czechoslovak Government, I would suggest that the present note and your reply thereto should be regarded as placing on record the understanding arrived at in the matter.

In the case of the Union of South Africa, it is understood that the amount of duty must be deposited in money, and that the sum paid cannot be refunded until the actual export of the samples within one year, but otherwise it is understood that the Agreement applies reciprocally to the acceding British Dominions, Colonies and Possessions in the same manner and on the same conditions as it applies to Great Britain.

In the event of any other of His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies or Possessions desiring to accede to the Agreement in future, the Czechoslovak Government hereby agree that a similar formal notification of their accession, communicated to the Czechoslovak Government in writing, and the acceptance of such accession, will suffice for the purpose.

Enclosure in No. 103.

DEPARTMENT OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS TO GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S SECRETARY.

SIR, Ottawa, 14th May, 1924.
WITH reference to a despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies to the Governor-General, dated 26th March, 1924, on the subject of the accession of certain British Dominions and India to the Agreement between Great Britain and the Czechoslovak Republic of 31st January, 1923, relative to Commercial Travellers' Samples, I have the honour to represent that the practice of the Canadian Government, as applied to the United Kingdom, all British Colonies and Possessions, and also to the following countries accorded most-favoured-nation treatment in tariff matters with Canada, viz.:

Argentine Republic,
Colombia,
Denmark,
Japan,
Norway, Russia,
Sweden,
Switzerland,
Venezuela,

is as contained in Memorandum 1729-B,* a copy of which is hereto attached. Commercial travellers' samples from all other countries are dutiable in ordinary course on importation.

This same question was raised when it was suggested that Canada should join in the ratification of the International Convention relating to simplification of Customs formalities and the protocol to the International Convention and the final act of the Conference, the official instruments approved by the International Conference on Customs and other similar formalities, which met at Geneva from 15th October to 3rd November, 1923, which among other things dealt with commercial travellers' samples, and the recommendation was that there should not be ratification on behalf of Canada, the reason, so far as commercial travellers' samples are concerned, being that it was inadvisable to extend such favoured treatment to all countries, some of which would be able to benefit therefrom to an extent out of all proportion to reciprocal benefit to Canada.

The practice as set out in Memorandum 1729-B referred to, is very similar to the practice under the agreement between Great Britain and Czechoslovakia, except that no provision is made in our practice for identification of samples by officially attested lists, and all samples are subject to inspection and appraisal on importation.

If Canada were to give adherence to the treaty between Great Britain and Czechoslovakia, it will be seen that Czechoslovakia would thereby obtain somewhat further freedom of treatment of commercial travellers' samples than is now accorded even to the United Kingdom, and in any event the result would no doubt be, that if one country outside the favoured nation countries, such as Czechoslovakia, were to obtain this concession, similar requests would be put forward by various other countries.

I am to request that His Excellency may be humbly moved to cause the Secretary of State for the Colonies to be informed in the above sense.

I have, &c.,
J. POPE,
Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs.

17TH MAY. Secret. Following for your Prime Minister from the Prime Minister:—

Begins: On 28th February, 1922,‡ British Government in a Declaration which was subsequently approved by Parliament declared Egypt to be an independent Sovereign State subject to the reservation for settlement by negotiation at a later date of certain questions which had up till then proved incapable of solution.

These were:—

- (1) The Security of Imperial communications in Egypt.
- (2) Defence of Egypt against possible foreign aggression.
- (3) Protection of foreign interests and of minorities.
- (4) Sudan.

These four questions reduce themselves in practice to two main issues, viz.:—

- (a) Location of the British garrison and the rights which it will have to enjoy on Egyptian territory, and (b) recognition of the existing arrangements under which the British Government control administration of, and policy followed in, the Sudan.

Now that Egypt enjoys fully constitutional Government responsible to freely elected Parliament, time is ripe for attempt to complete policy traced in the above Declaration.

In the congratulatory telegram, which I addressed to Zaghlul Pasha on the occasion of the opening of the Egyptian Parliament 15th March last, I stated that His Majesty's Government were at all times ready to negotiate with the Egyptian Government in order to establish relationship between Egypt and Great Britain upon a lasting basis, satisfactory to both countries.

On the 10th April I followed up this statement with a personal letter inviting Zaghlul to visit London towards the end of June or the beginning of July in order to discuss with me personally principal questions at issue, when, if a satisfactory agreement was reached, settlement of details could be left to the British and Egyptian experts.

On receipt of this letter Zaghlul is reported to have said that the end of June would be convenient time for his visit to London, but no written reply has yet been received from him, nor any actual date fixed for his arrival. In the course of conversation with member of Lord Allenby's staff Zaghlul stated that he could guarantee that the Egyptian Parliament would endorse terms of any settlement which he himself had accepted. He would, however, find it very difficult to induce them to agree to anything short of complete withdrawal of the British garrison from Egyptian territory, and in this matter his own view was in agreement with that of the Parliament. He further stated that he would have no choice but to demand complete independence of the Sudan, which was the wish of the Sudanese just as much as of the Egyptians who could not feel safe as long as a foreign Power remained in occupation of the Sudan. In his view British interests in the Sudan were for the most part political, but he was quite willing, once he had been satisfied that Great Britain had financial and commercial interests, to examine any scheme for protecting them, and he would subscribe to any guarantee that might be necessary for this purpose. Zaghlul scouted, as being in contradiction with all the information in his possession, suggestion that the Sudanese would dislike idea of the administration of their country being entrusted to the Egyptians.

It is quite evident that it will be extremely difficult to reconcile demand for the complete withdrawal of the British garrison from Egypt with the strategic necessity of having on the spot and immediately available an adequate British covering force for the protection of the Suez Canal and Imperial communications generally, nor will it be any easier to reconcile Egyptian ambitions with the necessity of maintaining, in the interests of the inhabitants as well as of our own, present British predominance in the Sudan which alone ensures peace and prosperity of that country.

It is, however, believed that Zaghlul, although he appears deliberately to be ignoring difficulties in the way of an agreement, is sincerely anxious to negotiate settlement. At the present time he undoubtedly possesses personal hold over Egyptian public opinion and over the great majority of Parliament, which no other Egyptian leader possesses or is likely to acquire in the future. Difficult, therefore, though it may be to reach agreement with Zaghlul, negotiations with him have at least merit that any agreement which may be reached is likely to be accepted as binding in Egypt.

In these circumstances, should Zaghlul adhere to his present intention of coming to England at the end of June, I propose to endeavour to induce him to adopt more reasonable and accommodating attitude in regard to the two vital questions of the British force in Egypt and the British administration of the Sudan. Failure to reach agreement on either or both of these questions would render further negotiations useless. Success, on the other hand, should bring permanent settlement of the Egyptian question within our grasp.

I have made arrangements to have at my disposal in the course of these discussions with Zaghlul services of a War Office adviser so that no strategical considerations may be overlooked. Ramsay MacDonald. Ends.

17TH JUNE. Secret. Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: I have now had an opportunity of considering fully the situation as set out in your telegram of 17th May.* I agree with you as to the desirability of doing everything possible to permit a successful conclusion being arrived at in the negotiations with Zaghlul Pasha. I agree with you that the four points reserved for discussion in the Declaration of February, 1922, can be reduced to A. and B. as set out in your telegram.

With regard to A., as I stated at the Imperial Conference, Australia feels that her vital interests are concerned in safe-guarding communication through the Suez Canal, and could not under any circumstances agree to a withdrawal of the garrisons or a removal of location of such garrisons in a way which would weaken the protection afforded to those communications. Subject, however, to our being satisfied that garrisons could be withdrawn from Cairo and Alexandria in order to meet the views of the Egyptian people without weakening defence or imperilling this artery of communication, my Government would be prepared to acquiesce in an arrangement of such a character. On this subject I will repeat what I said at the Imperial Conference and would emphasize to you the fact that the Australian people regard the safety of the Suez Canal as of paramount importance to their vital interests.

With regard to the Sudan, Australia feels that it is imperative in order to ensure peace and prosperity in that country that the present British predominance should be maintained, but we would be quite prepared to acquiesce in any action you may take which will tend to facilitate a permanent settlement provided the Sudan is not handed over to Egypt and British authority completely removed. In other words, provided the reality of British influence is maintained, we are not concerned as to the exact form in which it is ensured. Bruce. Ends.

2ND OCTOBER. Secret. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: I have had two conversations with Zaghlul Pasha. The first, on 25th September, lasted for two and a-half hours, and was chiefly devoted to an attempt on his part to whitewash the Egyptian Government for issuing misleading communiqué referred to in telegram from Secretary of State for the Colonies, 13th September.†

* No. 105. † 43675/24: not printed.

In the course of our conversation I took occasion to state emphatically that His Majesty's Government had undertaken obligations to the inhabitants of the Sudan which they had no intention of failing to discharge. In writing to Zaghlul after our first conversation to fix a date for the second meeting and to request him to formulate his proposals in regard to the Sudan, I again emphasized this point, and said that disappointment and misunderstandings would be avoided if he would bear it in mind.

In his reply Zaghlul said that my letter constituted a restriction imposed upon his freedom to negotiate, and was contrary to the whole terms on which he had consented to enter into these conversations.

In reply to him I said that I did not think his point was well founded on what I had written in my letter, and that I assumed that he was ready to continue our conversations, which we accordingly resumed 29th September. When asked by me to formulate his proposals in regard to the Sudan, Zaghlul displayed great reluctance to do so and argued that we should begin by tackling the problem of Egypt. He was unable to explain this preference except by saying that in the natural order of things Egypt came before the Sudan. This pretext was so inadequate that I am inclined to think that his real motive was a desire to ascertain the extent of the concessions which he could hope for in regard to Egypt now that it was evident that in the Sudan His Majesty's Government were determined to uphold their position at all costs.

As there was nothing to be gained by insisting on discussing the Sudan issue at this stage, I invited him to indicate point by point the various changes which he desired to see introduced in the status quo in Egypt. These he enumerated as follows:—

- (1) Withdrawal of the British forces from Egyptian territory.
- (2) Withdrawal of the financial and judicial advisers.
- (3) Disappearance of all British Control over the Egyptian Government, notably in connexion with foreign relations which Zaghlul claimed were hampered by the notification of His Majesty's Government to foreign Powers on 15th March, 1922, that they would regard as an unfriendly act any attempt at interference in the affairs of Egypt by another Power.
- (4) Abandonment by His Majesty's Government of their claim to protect foreigners and minorities in Egypt.
- (5) Abandonment by His Majesty's Government of their claim to protect the Suez Canal.

I asked Zaghlul whether the fulfilment of this last requirement was essential in order to satisfy Egyptian claim to independence, and on his replying in the affirmative I told him that I could only regret it. I asked him whether he was prepared to agree that Egypt and Great Britain should be united by some special tie of friendship such as a treaty of close alliance, and he expressed his willingness and anxiety to conclude such a treaty.

A further meeting has been arranged to take place to-morrow, and in the meantime Committee of Imperial Defence are being consulted as to the extent to which the present military dispositions for the security of our imperial communications could be modified if a satisfactory treaty of alliance could be concluded with Egypt. Ends.

Begins: Your telegram of 2nd October.* With reference to conversation Zaghlul Pasha my Government notes the various changes which Zaghlul

* No. 107.

Pasha proposes should be introduced in the status quo in Egypt. So far as we are concerned all these proposals are entirely governed by proposal No. 5, viz., that His Majesty's Government should abandon its claim to protect the Suez Canal. You already know my Government's views on this question and under no circumstances can Australia agree to the withdrawal of British protection from a highway which is vital to us and essential to the maintenance of the Empire in peace and war. Apart from the very important economic and strategic considerations my Government is firmly convinced that, should control of the Canal pass from Britain, the effect on the unity of the Empire would be profound.

The determination to control the Canal should be plainly conveyed to the Egyptian Government as the fixed policy of the British Empire. This will of course govern the extent to which British forces can be withdrawn from Egyptian territory and British control be relaxed in connexion with foreign relations. On the question of the withdrawal of financial and judicial advisers and the abandonment of His Majesty's Government's claim to protect foreigners and minorities in Egypt it is difficult for us to express an opinion, but nothing should be done in any direction which lowers our prestige in the East or militates against the absolutely effective control of the Canal.

So far as Australia is concerned, no treaty with the Egyptian Government can take the place of actual British occupation. The continued evasion, misrepresentation and openly expressed hostility which have characterized the relations of Egypt under the new regime with British make it impossible for us even to imagine that a treaty can be concluded which will render material safeguards unnecessary.

If any such treaty is contemplated or any modifications of the present policy towards Egypt proposed, my Government regards matter so seriously that it asks that nothing should be done until we are fully apprised and have had ample opportunity to express our views. Ends.

6TH OCTOBER. Secret. My telegram of 2nd October.* Prime Minister at final interview with Zaghlul October 3rd strongly urged him to agree to British co-operation in the defence of the Suez Canal. Zaghlul refused to agree to anything which would involve presence of a single British soldier anywhere on Egyptian territory, nor would he consider possibility of leasing to the British Government any site in which a British force could be stationed. He denied right of the British Government to protect the Canal at all.

Prime Minister said that no British Government could possibly surrender their right to ensure at all times the security of the Canal on which whole defensive strategy of the Empire rested.

Prime Minister then drew attention of Zaghlul to the consequence to Egyptian credit of the threatened default on the service of the tribute loans, and to the hostile attitude shown by some departments of the Egyptian Government to foreign officials in their employment. Zaghlul was obdurate on both points. He was, however, quite friendly throughout and said he intended to return to Egypt in about a week. The form in which the results of the conversations will have to be made public is under consideration.

Please inform your Prime Minister.—THOMAS.

MOST SECRET. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: In the course of conversation which took place when at my invitation the High Commissioners met me last Friday, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs indicated the gravity of the situation arising in Egypt owing to the Egyptian Government's open refusal to recognize the conditions accompanying the grant of independence to Egypt, and called attention to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's solemn warning contained in his despatch to Lord Allenby dated the 7th October.* At the time no immediate action was in contemplation, but it was clear that at any moment action might be forced upon His Majesty's Government.

Such necessity is created by the brutal attempt to murder Sir Lee Stack and His Majesty's Government are now considering the exact form which their action should take. You will be kept fully informed. Meanwhile the following is a summary of Lord Allenby's recommendations for your confidential information:—

- (1) Apology by the Egyptian Government.
- (2) Assailants to be apprehended and punished.
- (3) Monetary compensation to be paid.
- (4) Egyptian Government to acquiesce in the creation of a Sudan Defence Force which will be in the pay of and at the orders of the Sudan Government, and will take the place of the Egyptian garrison in the Sudan which will be withdrawn immediately.
- (5) All rules and conditions governing service, discipline and retirement of foreign officials still employed by the Egyptian Government, and financial conditions governing pensions of foreign officials who have left the service to be revised in accordance with the wishes of His Majesty's Government.
- (6) Egyptian Government to acquiesce in maintenance and preservation of powers and privileges of posts of financial and judicial advisers.

I need not dwell on the vital importance to the Empire of our position in Egypt and the Sudan, which cannot be preserved unless the hostile campaign by speech and in the press resulting in attempted murder is met by effective action. Ends.

Note.—The Dominion Governments were informed of the terms of the note presented to the Egyptian Government by Lord Allenby, following on the death of Sir Lee Stack, and subsequent developments. In all, 15 telegrams were sent to the Dominions during 1924 as to events in Egypt and the Sudan, in addition to those printed here. The following telegrams deal with the attitude of the Dominions as regards the policy of His Majesty's Government and the amount and nature of the information supplied.

1ST DECEMBER. Secret. Following from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your personal message of 29th November,† I appreciate your endeavour to keep me informed as fully as possible with regard to the situation in Egypt and the Sudan. Can understand also that circumstances are changing and developing continuously making it extremely difficult for you to give full effect to the principle of consultation agreed between Britain and the Dominions without grave risk of stultifying action which to be effective must very frequently be prompt. With a proper regard, however, for the responsibilities and difficulties of your position I feel that some greater effort can and should be made to keep us more promptly advised. In almost every instance since the Egyptian crisis arose official cables have arrived long after press messages. On last Saturday full account of mutiny of Sudanese Regiment appeared in local papers but up to the present we have received no official information. In ordinary circumstances this might not be of vital importance but should the situation suddenly take a critical turn it would be most embarrassing indeed for my Government, and might seriously affect public temper if it became known that, as in the case of Chanak incident, information was known to the world before being officially conveyed to us. While it is true that the graver the issue the more difficult is your position in this regard it must not be forgotten that it is only in these circumstances that the public excitement is aroused and the right of the Dominions to the fullest consultation most rigorously insisted on. There would appear to be no reason why telegraph line should not be entirely cleared for prior transmission of such important messages and the knowledge that your Government and the Dominion Governments were working as far as possible in concert would do much to improve the spirit in which any obligations subsequently imposed on us by circumstances were carried out. With regard to the general purpose underlying actions of your Government it is very gratifying to learn that the British Government is adhering to the policy laid down in the Declaration* of 28th February, 1922, and despatch of 7th October, 1924.‡ Views of my Government have been clearly expressed in telegrams of 17th June, 1924,§ and 6th October, 1924,|| and we take your present telegram as a full endorsement of our views, and as a fresh assurance that there will be no departure from them. Ends.

Begins: We desire to thank His Majesty's British Government for inquiring from us whether the information so far sent to us in regard to Egypt is sufficient or whether we would wish it amplified in any respect.

Feeling that the Union is not directly concerned in the dispute between Great Britain and Egypt we have so far not felt any necessity for information except such as the British Government may from time to time think fit to be placed at our disposal.

Under these conditions we have no reason not to look upon the information so far supplied to us as sufficient and have no suggestions to make as to its amplification in any respect.

In conclusion we desire to express our appreciation to the British Government for the favour shown us by intimating what its policy is in respect of the Sudan and Egypt, and while disclaiming any intention of interfering, much less of participating in the dispute with which the Union has no concern, we cannot but express very earnestly the hope that everything will be done to obviate further strife and bloodshed. Ends.

SECRET and Personal. Please give following message to your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your message of 1st December.* I am most anxious to meet your wishes but I do not think you have allowed enough for the difference between conditions as regards press and official communications which makes competition in point of time practically impossible as regards actual events in Egypt and Sudan. Correspondents telegraph at once en clair the moment they see or hear something has happened. Official information has to go through senior responsible official on the spot through Cairo Residency to London and then to you and has to be coded and decoded more than once in the process. British Government is after all in this respect in much the same position as yourself. For instance the news of the occupation of the Customs at Alexandria got to the London Press before it reached the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and he had to telegraph to Lord Allenby for confirmation. Similarly first news which reached Foreign Office of Mutiny of Sudanese regiment to which you refer was from London evening papers. In the circumstances we thought that you and other Prime Ministers would prefer us to concentrate so far as possible on the instructions sent to Lord Allenby and aspects of the situation which were not in Press and instructions were given accordingly. We greatly appreciate your support of the general policy which is being followed. Ends.

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 25th November, 1924.

WITH reference to Foreign Office letter of the 26th January,† I am directed by Mr. Secretary Chamberlain to transmit to you herewith the final draft‡ of the proposed treaty of commerce and navigation between this country and Esthonia.

2. Under the Esthonian constitution the treaty-making power is not vested in the head of the State but in the government as a whole, and in these circumstances it has been found necessary to cast the proposed instrument in the form of a convention between the respective governments and to make certain amendments in the various articles so as to correspond with the altered form of the instrument. It is now proposed to forward this text to His Majesty's Minister for the Baltic States with instructions to sign it so soon as the Esthonian Government are prepared to do so, and I am therefore to ask that Mr. Secretary Amery will be good enough to state at his early convenience whether he concurs in its terms.

SIR, Downing Street, 25th August, 1924.
WITH reference to my despatch No. 403 of the 30th June* regarding the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea, I have the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a Note from the Danish Minister notifying His Majesty's Government, as one of the Governments participating in the Council, of the application of the Government of the Irish Free State for admission to the Council.

2. While His Majesty's Government are fully prepared to welcome the admission of the Irish Free State to the Council, they feel reluctant to assent to the proposal that such admission should be on the provisional basis of an annual contribution of 5,000 Danish Kroner, in view of the fact that a reduction from the normal annual contribution of 10,000 Danish kroner has hitherto been agreed to only in the case of countries of which the currency is severely depreciated.

3. Your Ministers are, no doubt, aware that the financial year of the Council terminates on 21st July, and that precedents exist for the payment of contributions in two instalments.

4. Before replying to the Danish Government in the sense indicated in paragraph 2 above, His Majesty's Government will be glad to receive any observations on the position which your Ministers may care to offer.

REFERRING to my Note of 14th February† last I have the honour, in conformity with my instructions, to inform you that the Secretary-General of the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea has intimated to the King's Government that the Government of the Irish Free State has applied to the Council for admission to that body, and has suggested that its annual contribution to the Council's expenses should provisionally be limited to 5,000 Danish kroner.

The King's Government having no objection to accede to the Irish Free State Government's request on the financial terms referred to above, I am directed to ascertain whether His Britannic Majesty's Government, as a member of the Council, is likewise disposed to give its assent to the proposal in question.

(No. 360.)

SIR,

Vice Regal Lodge, Dublin, 9th September, 1924.

WITH reference to your despatch No. 510 of the 25th ultimo,* relative to the application of the Irish Free State for representation on the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea, I have the honour to inform you that when the proposal was before my Ministers for consideration it was not understood that admission on the provisional basis of an annual contribution of 5,000 Danish kroner had been agreed to only in the case of countries of which the currency is severely depreciated.

2. As it appears from the enclosure to your despatch that the Danish Government has signified its assent to the admission of the Irish Free State to membership of the Council at the provisional reduced contribution, and as the Governments of some of the other countries may likewise have signified their assent, my Government feel that it would be difficult at this stage to make any change in their proposed contribution in respect of the present year. They would, however, be prepared to consider in future years whether, having regard to the populations of the countries represented on the Council, and the respective importance of their fishing industries as affected by the activities of the Council, the normal annual contribution of 10,000 kroner should be made.

3. In the circumstances it is assumed that His Majesty's Government will not see any reason to withhold their assent to the admission of the Irish Free State to membership of the Council on the basis already put forward.

I have, &c.,

T. M. HEALY.

IRISH FREE STATE.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 685.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 6th December, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch No. 360 of the 9th of September† relative to the admission of the Irish Free State to representation on the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea.

2. The Rules laid down by the Council contemplate, in the case of smaller States, such as Norway, Sweden and Denmark, an annual contribution of 10,000 kroner and in the case of the larger States, 25,000 kroner per annum. As was explained in my despatch No. 510 of the 25th of August* exception to these rates has hitherto been agreed to only in certain special cases, and then merely as a temporary measure pending the restoration of the currency of the country concerned. It will be seen, therefore, that, though the fishing interests and populations of the twelve countries at present represented on the Council differ widely, these differences have not hitherto been accepted as a criterion of the contribution to be made by the various members.

3. Since the foundation of the Council in 1902 His Majesty's Government have consistently opposed any proposal to introduce a third rate of contribution (except in the special case referred to above) and consequently your Ministers will appreciate that His Majesty's Government would find it difficult to record their vote for the admission of the Irish Free State to the Council on any other basis than that the Irish Free State would be prepared to pay the usual subscription of 10,000 kroner; similarly His Majesty's Government would find it difficult to support the Free State, after admission, in any proposals designed to alter the rates of contribution, otherwise than by way of such pro rata reduction or augmentation of the two existing rates as the financial circumstances of the Council may seem to warrant.

4. In the circumstances His Majesty's Government hope that your Ministers will not press the suggestion made in your despatch under acknowledgment, and that they will be able to agree to enter the International Council on the basis of the usual payment of 10,000 kroner per annum.

5. I may add that it is understood that the next meeting of the Council will not take place until September, 1925: the next financial year commences on 21st July, 1925.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

[Answered by No. 127.]

(No. 206.)

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 26th June, 1924.

WITH reference to Your Excellency's despatch No. 110 of the 18th March* relative to the extradition of L. M. Blumenthal, a fugitive offender, from the Union of South Africa to the Belgian Congo, I have the honour to transmit to you, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a note received from the Belgian Ambassador at this Court.

2. As regards the point raised in paragraph 3 of Baron Moncheur's note, His Majesty's Government are advised that now that the extradition arrangements with Belgium apply to the Belgian Congo and to the territories intervening between the Union and the Belgian Congo, the exemption of the Belgian Government from financial liability under Article 13 of the Treaty of the 29th October, 1901, extends, in the case of an extradition by the land route from the Union to the Belgian Congo, to the whole journey between the Union and the Belgian Congo. This result follows from the fact that the words "its frontier" in Article 13 must, it would seem, as between "each of the High Contracting Parties" mean the last point at which the person extradited leaves "the territories" of the extraditing State, and in view of the extension of the Treaty to Protectorates "territories" cannot be confined to those which are part of His Majesty's Dominions, but must include territories under His Majesty's protection to which the treaty has been extended. A similar position would have obtained if Blumenthal, at the time when his extradition was applied for, had been in Basutoland, Swaziland, the Bechuanaland Protectorate or Southern Rhodesia.

3. There are a number of other Extradition Treaties which have also been applied to the South African Protectorates and which similarly provide that the Contracting Powers bear all extradition expenses within their respective territories; so that in effect under such Treaties the whole of South Africa, that is to say, the Union, Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and the three High Commission Territories, must be regarded for this purpose as a single geographical unit.

4. In the circumstances it appears most desirable that there should be a general understanding between the Government of the Union and the other South African Administrations to cover such cases as that of Blumenthal in which the foreign Government is relieved of the expenses until the person extradited leaves His Majesty's territories; and it has been suggested that the simplest and most practical solution of the difficulty would be for the Government of the country from which the extradition is made to pay all such expenses. I hope that it may be found possible to arrive at an understanding of this nature.

5. With reference to paragraph 2 of the note, I am advised that a person extradited to the Belgian Congo from the Union of South Africa will under the Extradition Act, 1870, be in legal custody in Southern Rhodesia, but that a surrender warrant issued under that Act does not run in a Protectorate. Similarly, a surrender warrant issued in a Protectorate under its local legislation does not run in any other Protectorate or in a British Possession. The same point arose in 1911 when arrangements were being made for the return to Zanzibar from the Uganda Protectorate and the East Africa Protectorate of Zanzibar subjects (who did not then come under the usual fugitive offenders procedure), and provision was made by Order in Council that a Zanzibari in legal custody for return under an Order of the Court in Uganda should be deemed to continue in legal custody whilst in transit through the East Africa Protectorate. A copy of the Order in Council† is enclosed for reference.

6. It seems desirable that steps should be taken to rectify the present position in South Africa, and I am advised that the most convenient procedure to effect this would be to introduce legislation in the Union, Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia, Basutoland, the Bechuanaland Protectorate, and Swaziland on the lines of Article 4 (2) of the East African Protectorates (Zanzibar Fugitive Offenders) Order in Council, 1911.

7. I shall be glad to receive the observations of your Ministers on the points raised in this despatch; but as several independent Administrations are directly concerned, it may be considered convenient to arrange in the first instance for discussion with the other Administrations, and should your Ministers agree that this is desirable, they will no doubt take the necessary action to this end.

8. A copy of this despatch is being sent to the Governors of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and to the High Commissioner for South Africa.

I have, &c.,

J. H. THOMAS.

[17562]

Enclosure in No. 126.

(No. 916.)

Ambassade de Belgique,

Londres, le 10 avril, 1924.

MONSIEUR LE PREMIER MINISTRE,

LE Consul Général de Belgique dans l'Afrique Australe a été chargé, en février dernier, par M. le Gouverneur du Katanga, de réclamer l'extradition d'un Sieur Blumenthal, L., inculpé à Elizabethville de faillite frauduleuse et qui s'était réfugié à Prétoria.

L'extradition du présumé a été accordée par l'Autorité compétente du Transvaal. Mais les Autorités de la Rhodésie du Nord, de la Rhodésie du Sud et du Protectorat du Bechuanaland, n'ont accordé le passage sur leur territoire que sous réserve du droit, pour le prisonnier, de faire appel aux tribunaux de chacun des pays traversés, ce en vertu de l' "habeas corpus."

D'autre part, le Gouvernement de l'Union Sud-Africaine aurait déclaré que les frais de transport du Sieur Blumenthal, L., et de son escorte sont à charge des Autorités Belges. Il y aurait donc eu en réalité une extradition qui a donné lieu à trois transits.

Mon Gouvernement a quelque peine à croire que cette façon de procéder rencontre l'adhésion du Gouvernement Britannique.

La Convention du 8 août, 1923, étendant au Congo Belge et à certains protectorats Britanniques, le traité d'extradition du 29 octobre, 1901, et les conventions additionnelles au dit traité des 5 mars, 1907, et 3 mars, 1911, a été conclue entre Sa Majesté le Roi de Grande-Bretagne et d'Irlande et Sa Majesté le Roi des Belges.

Lorsqu'un fugitif est livré à la Belgique par l'Autorité compétente du Transvaal sa remise est censée faite entre les Hautes Parties contractantes.

Il ne semble donc pas qu'après une première instance d'extradition suivie à Prétoria, une autre instance doive être engagée dans chacun des pays par lequel le fugitif doit passer. Celui-ci serait alors livré à la Belgique quatre fois par Sa Majesté Britannique, dans une même affaire et en vertu du même traité. Qu'arriverait-il, dans ces conditions, si l'un de ces pays refusait le passage à travers son territoire de l'individu extradé?

Mon Gouvernement estime qu'il ne peut y avoir dans le cas dont j'ai l'honneur d'entretenir Votre Excellence qu'une seule extradition qui commence au Transvaal et finit au moment où l'extradé est remis entre les mains des Autorités de la Colonie Belge. D'autre part, en vertu de l'article 13 de la Convention du 29 octobre, 1901, les frais de détention et de transport de l'inculpé sont à charge de l'Etat qui accorde l'extradition, et non à charge de celui qui la réclame.

D'après les instructions de mon Gouvernement, j'ai l'honneur de soumettre au bienveillant examen de Votre Excellence ces considérations en La priant de bien vouloir, le cas échéant, donner des instructions en conséquence aux Autorités que la chose concerne.

Je me permets d'attirer la bienveillante attention de Votre Excellence sur la caractère d'urgence que présente cette affaire.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 15th September, 1924.)

[Answered by No. 129.]

(No. 429.)

SIR,

Governor-General's Office, Cape Town, 27th August, 1924.

WITH reference to your despatch No. 206 of the 26th June,* regarding the extradition arrangements in force in the Union and the other British Possessions and Protectorates in South Africa, I have the honour to transmit herewith a copy of a Minute from my Ministers on the subject. My Minute No. 55/578 of the 31st July referred to by Ministers covered a copy of my High Commissioner despatch Bechuanaland Protectorate Confidential (2) of the 4th July, 1924.† Copies of Ministers' Minute are also being sent to the Governors of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and to the High Commissioner for South Africa.

I have, &c.,

ATHLONE.

Governor-General.

Enclosure in No. 127.

Prime Minister's Office, 15th August, 1924.

MINUTE No. 626.

MINISTERS have the honour to refer to the Minutes from His Excellency the Governor-General No. 55/576 of the 17th July and No. 55/578 of the 31st July, 1924, on the subject of extradition arrangements between the Belgian Congo and the Union, and the transit of fugitive offenders through other British possessions and through Protectorates.

With the first-mentioned Minute was included a copy of a despatch (No. 206) dated 26th June, 1924, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies which dealt inter alia with the extent to which the extraditing party is liable under Article 13 of the Extradition Treaty with Belgium of 29th October, 1901.

2. Ministers are prepared to accept the interpretation which His Majesty's Government is advised must be placed upon that Article, that when extradition of a fugitive criminal is granted from or to any of those possessions or protectorates the expense incurred in connexion with such extradition up to its frontier is payable by the extraditing State, and that this arises from the fact that the high contracting party to the Treaty is the sovereign whose dominion or protection extends in law throughout contiguous possessions or protectorates.

3. It would seem, however, to Ministers that it must follow from this that for the purposes of the Treaty, neither the Government of the Union nor any of the British South African Administrations of the territories through which the fugitive criminal will pass is the Government of an extraditing State or such an independent administration as is referred to in paragraph 7 of the Secretary of State's despatch; that the extraditing authority is His Majesty and that his representatives in the Union and the other British South African territories are merely acting on his instructions. If that is so it would be the duty of each such representative to facilitate the passage of the fugitive criminal and his escort through the territory in which he is His Majesty's representative by bearing that expense of the journey which is incurred in the passage through that territory, and by ensuring that such laws shall be in force therein as will secure an uninterrupted passage.

4. If that view cannot be accepted by His Majesty's Government, then Ministers would suggest that a modification of the Treaty with Belgium might be obtained whereby the Government which seeks extradition should undertake to pay to the extraditing Government the whole cost of conveyance to his destination of the person surrendered.

SIR, Governor-General's Office, Pretoria, 24th October, 1924.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 429 of the 27th August,* regarding extradition arrangements and the transit of fugitive offenders through the different British South African territories, I have the honour to transmit herewith a copy of a further Minute from my Ministers on the subject. I may add that, although the terms of paragraph 4 of the enclosure would appear to indicate the contrary, advantage was taken of the recent presence in Pretoria of the representatives of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and the High Commission Territories to discuss the legislative measures which will be necessary for the purpose of placing the matter on a proper footing.

I have, &c.,

ATHLONE,

Governor-General.

Enclosure in No. 128.

Prime Minister's Office, Pretoria, 18th October, 1924.

MINUTE No. 840.

MINISTERS have the honour again to address His Excellency the Governor-General on the matters dealt with by His Excellency's Minutes No. 55/576-8 of the 17th and 31st July last and Ministers' Minute No. 626 of the 5th August last in reply thereto, viz., the extradition of fugitive offenders from the Union to the Belgian Congo and the transit of such offenders through High Commission territories.

2. Ministers have given further consideration to the contention put forward by them in paragraph 3 of their Minute No. 626 of 5th August, the effect of which was that each British territory or Protectorate outside the Union should bear the cost of the passage of the extradited fugitive through such territory or Protectorate, the Government thereof being the representative of His Majesty who is the extraditing authority under the Belgian Extradition Treaty.

Ministers are now prepared to regard the Government of the Union as the sole representative of His Majesty in respect of the extradition, and therefore to give instructions that the whole cost of the journey of the extradited fugitive and his escort up to the borders of the Congo be borne by Union funds and that no claim be made in respect thereof against the Government of any British territory or Protectorate through which the fugitive passes.

3. With His Excellency's Minute of 17th July above referred to was transmitted inter alia a copy of a despatch No. 206 of the 26th June† from the Secretary of State for the Colonies. In paragraphs 5 and 6 of that despatch was discussed the question whether the extradited fugitive would be in lawful custody while passing through Southern Rhodesia or any Protectorate. His Excellency's Minutes of 6th September and 30th September with enclosures thereto refer to the same matters. To remove all doubts on this matter so far as the Union is concerned, Ministers are now prepared to introduce into Parliament at its next Session legislation in terms similar to those of Section 4 (2) of the Eastern African Protectorates (Zanzibar Fugitive Offenders) Order in Council, 1911. This would ensure that a fugitive under a judicial order issued in any country and extradited to any territory or Protectorate in Africa for trial therein would, while passing through the Union, be in lawful custody. Ministers would ask that His Excellency address the several British administrations and Protectorates with a view to similar legislation being passed therein providing for the lawful custody of fugitive offenders who are under judicial order issued in any country being extradited to the Union for trial therein.

4. Ministers in view of the terms of this Minute suggest that there is no longer any necessity that the matters dealt with therein be discussed at the conference with the Rhodesian delegates.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 388.)

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 29th December, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatches No. 429 of the 27th August* and No. 575 of the 24th October† regarding extradition arrangements between the Belgian Congo and the Union of South Africa.

2. His Majesty's Government note that your Ministers do not propose to pursue the suggestion in paragraph 3 of the Minute of the 15th August that the Government of the Union and the other British Administrations in South Africa should each bear the expenses of the transit through its territory of persons extradited to Belgian territory in accordance with the Anglo-Belgian Extradition Treaties.

3. As regards the alternative suggestion in paragraph 4 of Ministers' Minute that the Extradition Treaties with Belgium might be modified so that the Government seeking extradition would pay the whole cost of conveyance of the extradited person to his destination, it would seem difficult to confine such a modification to cases of extradition only between certain specified territories to which the Treaties apply and, if it were intended that the modification should apply generally to all cases of extradition under these Treaties, it would be necessary to consult the Governments of the other self-governing Dominions before the proposal could be submitted to the Belgian Government. His Majesty's Government would be ready to communicate with the other Dominion Governments if this were the desire of your Ministers, but they feel very doubtful whether the proposed modification would be accepted by the Belgian Government. Whether the modifications were confined to extradition as between territories in Africa or applied generally, the practical effect would be that, where the extradition took place from Belgian territory, the Belgian Government would be relieved only of the portion of the expenses incurred within such territory, while in the converse case they would be called upon to pay, in addition to their existing liability, the expenses incurred until the person concerned had passed the frontier of "His Majesty's territories." So long as it is necessary for extradited persons to pass through several territories under His Majesty's sovereignty or protection, the ultimate result, having regard to the number and extent of those territories, would in all probability be unfavourable to Belgium. In the circumstances your Ministers may not think it necessary to pursue this proposal.

4. I am sending a copy of this despatch to the Governor of Southern Rhodesia, the Governor of Northern Rhodesia and the High Commissioner for South Africa.

The most important of these modifications are the substitution of the enclosed new articles for Articles 2 and 3 of the draft Treaty, the omission of the last sentence of Article 10 and the addition of the enclosed two paragraphs to Article 11.

2. A copy of a memorandum drawn up for the guidance of His Majesty's Ambassador at Rio de Janeiro on the points raised by these modifications is also enclosed. His Majesty's Government are disposed to think that it is not necessary to insist on the third point referred to in this memorandum, regarding the surrender of nationals, and consequently would not wish to press the objection to a provision whereby nationals should be dealt with in the same way as others; it may be noted that no special provision in favour of nationals exists in the present extradition Treaty with the United States of America. They would, however, be glad to be informed, having regard to the terms of Article XVII of the draft Treaty, should your Ministers desire to express any special views on this point.

3. In the meantime, His Majesty's Ambassador has been instructed to continue the negotiations with the Brazilian Government, but not to accept any modified draft Treaty which may result therefrom without further instructions.

BRAZILIAN COUNTER-DRAFT OF EXTRADITION TREATY.

Article 2.

EXTRADITION shall be reciprocally granted for those crimes, including participation, attempted crime and complicity, the penalty for which, in accordance with the law of Brazil or the United Kingdom, is imprisonment for more than one year.

Sole Paragraph. When the penalty to which the person to be extradited is liable is death or corporal punishment, extradition shall only be granted after a formal declaration that such penalty shall be commuted to one of imprisonment.

Article 3.

The High Contracting Parties engage to deliver up their nationals in accordance with the provisions of this Treaty.

Article 11.

Sole Paragraph. Persons accused or convicted of crimes committed on the high seas on board any merchant vessel flying the flag of either of the High Contracting Parties shall, in Brazilian and British ports, be kept in custody on board ship, provided that the fact is communicated by the respective consul to the local authorities; such persons shall be considered as being merely in transit, and may be transferred, subject to previous notification, to any other ship which may be bound for the country where they are to be brought to trial or to fulfil their sentence.

This rule shall also be applied to those persons who, having been delivered up by a third Power, shall enter Brazilian or British ports in a vessel of whatsoever nationality.

Enclosure 2 in No. 130.

MEMORANDUM.

PROPOSED EXTRADITION TREATY BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND BRAZIL.

(1) Extraditable Offences.

THE British Extradition law allows of the surrender to foreign States of persons accused of certain crimes only, and the British Government has no power to surrender persons accused of other crimes. It is, therefore, usual for the crimes in respect of which extradition can be granted to be enumerated in any Treaty, and the draft, which has been submitted to the Brazilian Government, accordingly contains a list of the crimes for which it is suggested that extradition should take place.

Though it may be difficult to find exact equivalents in Brazilian law of the crimes enumerated in the draft, this difficulty is not insuperable, since equivalent expressions have been found in treaties concluded with other States, and it is possible that the treaties with Portugal and certain South American States may be of assistance to the Brazilian Government in this matter.

All the crimes enumerated in the British draft are punishable with imprisonment for a year or more. No objection will, however, be raised to an express provision being inserted that the crime shall be punishable by the laws of both States by imprisonment for a year or some greater punishment.

(2) Capital or Corporal Punishment.

The difficulty arising from the Brazilian Extradition law as regards crimes which are punishable by Capital or Corporal Punishment can best be overcome as in the treaties between this country on the one hand and Peru and Roumania on the other hand by the insertion of a provision that "the Government of Brazil (or either State) may in its absolute discretion refuse to surrender a person accused of a crime punishable with death or corporal punishment."

The British Government are unable to assent to a general provision in an Extradition Treaty that extradition for a crime for which the person accused is liable to be sentenced to death or corporal punishment shall not be granted unless a formal declaration has been given that such punishment shall not be carried out, though it may be willing in a particular case to give such an assurance before the accused is surrendered as a condition of his surrender.

(3) Extradition of Nationals.

The British Government desire the insertion of a provision in the Treaty that each Government should have power to decline to surrender their own subjects. Though the British Government very rarely declines to surrender a British subject on this ground, it considers that it is important that it should possess such power.

(4) Crimes on Ships, etc.

The British Government has no power to prevent a British subject from entering this country or to tranship him. If, having committed a crime upon a Brazilian ship on the high seas he enters this country, extradition proceedings would be necessary for his surrender to Brazil in the same way as if the crime had been committed in Brazil.

The British Government cannot, therefore, accept the two paragraphs which have been added to Article 11, though it has no objection to the omission of the last sentence of Article 10 in the British draft.

I have, &c.,

Enclosure in No. 132.

Prime Minister's Office, Pretoria, 31st October, 1924.

MINUTE No. 887.

MINISTERS have the honour to refer to His Excellency the Governor-General's Confidential Minute No. 55/584 of the 20th August, 1924, regarding modifications of the draft Extradition Treaty with Brazil, and to state that the proposal of the Brazilian Government that Article 2 of the draft Treaty should be amended so as to provide that when the penalty to which the person to be extradited is liable is death or corporal punishment extradition shall only be granted after a formal declaration that such penalty shall be commuted to one of imprisonment, is unacceptable to the Union Government.

2. Most of the extradition crimes enumerated in Article 2 are, under the wide discretion allowed to Union Courts, liable to be visited by corporal punishment, and though such punishment may be remitted under His Excellency's prerogative it cannot be commuted to any other punishment.

3. Further, while capital punishment may be commuted, Ministers are unable to recommend that His Excellency should give an undertaking in advance fettering his discretion under the Royal Instructions.

4. Ministers further desire to state that the proposal of the Brazilian Government with reference to Article 3 of the draft Treaty to make it compulsory for either party to surrender its own nationals does not commend itself to the Union Government, which would prefer the retention of the provision that each party reserves the right to refuse or grant the surrender of its own nationals. As, however, under Article 17 adherence to the Treaty by the Union is optional, Ministers do not desire unduly to press their view on this point.

Ministers have no observations to make in regard to the other proposals of the Brazilian Government.

THE Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs presents his compliments to the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies and, by direction of the Secretary of State, transmits herewith copy of a letter to the Home Office on the subject of the proposed supplemental extradition treaty between the United Kingdom and United States of America.

Enclosure in No. 147.

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 18th March, 1924.
I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to transmit to you herewith a copy of a note from the United States Ambassador proposing that a supplementary convention should be concluded between Great Britain and the United States adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences which are contained in existing treaty arrangements between the two countries relative to extradition.

2. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald would be glad in the first instance to be furnished with Mr. Secretary Henderson's views on this proposal. If the suggestion were favourably entertained, it would be necessary, before commencing the negotiations for the Convention, to inform the Governments of the self-governing Dominions and of India, in accordance with the resolutions of the recent Imperial Conference, as set forth in the accompanying print,* and steps would be taken accordingly in consultation with the Colonial Office and India Office.

3. It is perhaps, however, a matter for consideration whether the opportunity might not be taken for suggesting to the United States Government the conclusion of a treaty of a wider nature to replace existing treaty arrangements providing for extradition between the United Kingdom and the United States. The latter consist of Article X of a treaty of 9th August, 1842, together with three supplementary conventions concluded in 1889, 1900 and 1905, to which the convention now proposed would be a still further addition. On the other hand a draft treaty on the model of that recently proposed to various European countries, and Brazil, might in itself embrace an extended list of offences, and would contain the usual articles providing for the accession thereto of the self-governing Dominions and India, while permitting of its application to British protectorates, protected states and mandated territories. On this point also Mr. Ramsay MacDonald would be glad of Mr. Henderson's observations.

4. In the last paragraph of His Excellency's note the conclusion of a supplementary convention having application to the United States and Canada alone is mentioned as a possible alternative to the form proposed. The supplementary convention of 15th May, 1922, in respect of "wilful desertion or wilful non-support of minor or dependent children" affords a precedent, but in view of the resolutions of the Imperial Conference a further convention of this kind would properly be one for signature by a representative of the Dominion of Canada.

5. Copies of this letter are being sent to the Colonial Office and India Office.

THE Department of State at Washington has recently been advised of two cases in which a man residing in England and a man residing in Canada, respectively, have committed bigamy in the United States and then returned to the countries of their residence. Since bigamy is not included in the list of extraditable crimes set forth in the treaties between the United States and Great Britain, it has been impracticable to take steps looking to the surrender of these individuals.

With these cases in mind, and acting under the instructions of my Government, I have the honour to suggest to you the conclusion of a supplemental extradition convention, adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences. If this suggestion is approved by His Majesty's Government, the Government of the United States will be pleased to submit a draft convention covering this point or to give prompt consideration to any draft which His Majesty's Government may care to submit.

My Government would, of course, prefer to conclude a convention of this sort which would be applicable to the British Empire and its Dominions generally, but if for any reason His Majesty's Government is not prepared to go to this length the

WITH reference to the Foreign Office letter of the 20th March* regarding the proposal of the United States Government that a supplementary convention should be concluded between the two countries adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences contained in existing treaty arrangements, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to transmit to you a copy of a letter from the Home Office.

2. In view of the preference shown by the Home Office for the alternative proposal (suggested in the Foreign Office letter of 18th March†) that a comprehensive draft extradition treaty superseding former arrangements should be submitted to the United States Government, I am to inquire whether the Secretary of State for the Colonies sees any objection to a model draft in the accompanying form‡ being communicated to the United States Ambassador with this end in view.

3. In the event of the United States Government declining this proposal I am to ask for an expression of Mr. Thomas's views on the alternative proposal that a supplementary convention should be concluded, as originally suggested in paragraph 2 of Mr. Kellogg's note of the 26th February last.§

IN reply to your letter of 18th ultimo I am directed by Mr. Secretary Henderson to say, for the information of Mr. Secretary MacDonald, that he has no objection to the addition of bigamy to the list of extraditable offences which are contained in existing treaty arrangements between this country and the United States of America, but he is strongly in favour of the proposal in the third paragraph of your letter and he would deprecate any supplementary convention being agreed to until that proposal has been given full consideration.

SIR,

Downing Street, 13th June, 1924.

I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Thomas to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th May,|| regarding the proposal of the United States Government that a Convention should be concluded adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences contained in existing treaty arrangements with the United States.

2. As regards the suggestion that a comprehensive Extradition Treaty superseding former arrangements should be submitted to the United States Government,

* No. 147. † Enclosure in No. 147. ‡ Not reprinted; it was in the usual form. § Sub-enclosure in No. 147. || No. 148

it will be recollected that one of the existing supplementary conventions, viz., that of the 15th May, 1922 (Treaty Series No. 18 of 1922), applies only as between the United States and Canada, and that a further convention relating to offences against the narcotic laws, which also would apply only to Canada, is at present under negotiation (vide your letter of the 3rd June*). It is important that the conclusion of any new comprehensive Treaty should not prejudice the maintenance of these supplementary conventions, and the Secretary of State would be glad to learn Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald's views as to the best method of dealing with this point.

3. It is noted that it is recognized that the Dominions would have to be consulted before negotiations for a new General Treaty could be begun. The position would, of course, be the same if it were proposed to adopt the alternative of negotiating a supplementary convention dealing solely with bigamy.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 249.)

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 13th June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that a note has been received from the United States Ambassador stating that the Department of State at Washington has been advised of two cases in which men residing respectively in England and in Canada have committed bigamy in the United States and have then returned to their countries of residence. Since bigamy is not included in the list of extraditable crimes set forth in the Extradition Treaties with the United States, it has been impracticable to take steps towards the surrender of these persons.

2. With these cases in mind, the United States Government have suggested the conclusion of a supplemental Extradition Convention adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences. If this suggestion is approved, the United States Government will be pleased to submit a draft Convention covering the point or to give prompt consideration to any draft which may be submitted to them. The United States Government would prefer to conclude a Convention which would be applicable to the British Empire generally, but the Ambassador states that should a general Convention not prove practicable they would be pleased to conclude a Convention which would be applicable as between the United States and Canada alone.

3. It has been suggested that this opportunity might be taken to propose to the United States Government the conclusion of a comprehensive Extradition Treaty superseding former arrangements on the lines of the Treaties submitted to various other foreign countries (vide my despatch Dominions No. 47 of the 6th February†) This suggestion is at present receiving consideration, and a further despatch will be addressed to you in due course.

4. In this connexion it is noted that one of the existing Conventions with the United States, viz., the Supplementary Convention of the 15th May, 1922 (Treaty Series No. 18 of 1922), applies only as between the United States and Canada, and that a further Convention relating to offences against the narcotic laws, which also would apply only to Canada, is at present under negotiation (vide your telegram of the 28th May§).

HOME OFFICE to COLONIAL OFFICE.

[Answered by No. 153.]

SIR,

Home Office, Whitehall, 26th June, 1924.

I AM directed by the Secretary of State to say that he has had under his careful consideration the correspondence respecting a new extradition treaty with the United States of America which was enclosed with the Colonial Office memorandum of 13th instant* and especially the third paragraph of the letter sent to the Foreign Office on that date. In view of the large number of European States with which there are no extradition treaties now in force, and also the need for amendment in many of the older treaties now in existence, Mr. Henderson is of opinion that negotiations for making new treaties or amending those now in force should not be protracted longer than is absolutely necessary by negotiations with the Dominions, who are by no means so much concerned with the subject matter of the treaty as this country is. Extradition treaties, on which the effective administration of criminal justice in certain cases may greatly depend, appear to him to stand in a class by themselves, and he will be glad if Mr. Secretary Thomas will consider the question of assenting to the negotiations in regard to such treaties—at all events so far as European States are concerned—being conducted in the first instance on behalf of the United Kingdom alone so that when the draft of any new treaty or any amendment of an existing treaty has been agreed on, it may be referred to the Dominions with a view to their Governments deciding whether it shall be extended to them or not. It appears to him very probable that the Dominions would, generally speaking, wish to be included in any such convention, but a decision on this point could most conveniently be postponed till the actual terms of the Convention had been settled between the Foreign Office and the foreign Power.

Canada, no doubt, stands on a different footing from the other Dominions in this respect, but if the proposal above made should be generally acceptable to your Department and the Foreign Office, it might be found possible also to apply it to the negotiations for a new treaty with the United States of America.

A copy of this letter is being sent to the Foreign Office.

I am, &c.,

E. BLACKWELL.

No. 152.

FOREIGN OFFICE to COLONIAL OFFICE.

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 11th July, 1924.

WITH reference to your letter of the 13th ultimo and Home Office letter of the 26th ultimo,† a copy of which was forwarded to this department, relative to the proposal to negotiate with the Government of the United States of America for the conclusion of a new treaty of extradition to supersede the existing arrangements, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to state that he presumes that the Governments of the Dominions would have no objection to acceding to such a treaty, seeing that they are already parties to the existing arrangements, from which it will differ only as being a more complete and convenient compilation. It is important, however, that the Dominion Governments should become parties to the proposed treaty from the outset so as to avoid any unnecessary gap in the existing relations, the renewal of which only is at present under consideration.

2. I am accordingly to suggest for the consideration of the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the Governments of the Dominions should now be invited to participate in the treaty. It appears to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald that the principle advocated by the Home Office of referring the draft of a new extradition treaty or any amendment of such a treaty to the Dominions before signature is sound and in accordance with the newly-established practice. In the event of the Dominions and India agreeing to participate, it is suggested that the terms of Article 17 of the draft enclosed in Foreign Office letter of the 12th May last‡ should be amended so as to make the treaty applicable to the Dominions and India but that the clause allowing for their withdrawal should also be maintained.

* 22650/24 L.F., enclosing copies of No. 148, 149 and 150.

† Nos. 149 and 151.

‡ No. 148.

3. The considerations advanced in paragraph 2 of your letter would be met, subject to the approval of the Canadian Government, by the addition of a new article covering in a concise form the offences extraditable only between Canada and the United States. A further additional article would provide that from the date of the coming into force of the new treaty the existing arrangements would lapse.

4. A similar letter is being addressed to the India Office as regards participation in the proposed treaty by the Government of India; and a copy of this letter is being sent to the Home Office.

No. 153.

COLONIAL OFFICE to HOME OFFICE.

SIR,

Downing Street, 24th July, 1924.

I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Thomas to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 26th June,* regarding the proposed new Extradition Treaty with the United States of America, and to request you to inform Mr. Secretary Henderson that he has carefully considered the point raised in your letter as to the need for consulting the Dominion Governments before entering upon negotiations with foreign Powers on the subject of Extradition Treaties.

2. It will be recalled that in 1913,† in connexion with the negotiations for an Anglo-Japanese Extradition Treaty, it was arranged that future Extradition Treaties should contain a clause providing for the separate accession of the Dominions, similar to the clause adopted in Commercial Treaties. At the same time the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr.—afterwards Lord—Harcourt) expressed the view that it would be desirable that, before negotiations were entered upon with foreign Powers for the conclusion of an Extradition Treaty, the self-governing Dominions should be consulted as to whether there were any special points of interest to them which should be borne in mind in the course of the negotiations.

3. In Mr. Thomas's view there are two main classes of Extradition Treaty, which require separate consideration. The first class, comprising the older Treaties of which the existing Conventions with the United States of America form an example, apply to all parts of His Majesty's Dominions without differentiation.

4. Mr. Thomas is clear that it would not be in accordance with the principles of the Resolution as to the Negotiation, etc., of Treaties agreed to at the Imperial Conference, 1923 (see pages 13-15 of Cmd. 1987) to enter upon negotiations for the modification or replacement of such Treaties without the prior concurrence of the Dominion Governments.

5. The second class of Treaties, which includes that recently concluded with Finland and others now under negotiation with foreign Governments, follow, as a rule, a general model with which Dominion Governments are familiar and contain a clause providing for separate accession and termination in respect of the Dominions; in such cases Mr. Thomas is of opinion that, having regard to previous practice and the Conference Resolution referred to above, it is sufficient to inform the Dominions at the time of commencement of negotiations and to keep them informed of subsequent developments in order to afford them an opportunity of offering any observations on points of special interest to them. If, in the course of negotiations, it is proposed that a departure on an important point of principle should be made from the model Draft (as has recently occurred in the case of the negotiations with the Brazilian Government—see correspondence ending with Foreign Office letter of the 2nd July, 1924‡)—Mr. Thomas considers that it would be essential to bring any such point specially to the notice of the Dominion Governments before accepting it in order not to prejudice their position in regard to subsequent accession to the Treaty.

6. With regard to the particular question of the proposed negotiations with the United States of America, I am to explain that, when the Colonial Office letter of the 13th June§ was written, Mr. Thomas had contemplated the possibility of obtaining the consent of the Dominion Governments to the conclusion of a further supplementary Convention with the United States adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences, which would be binding upon the whole Empire, since the inclusion of the usual accession clauses in such a Convention would not appear to be very satisfactory as a matter of form. On further consideration, however, Mr. Thomas cannot but feel that this procedure might lead to difficulty over the question of the method of signature and delay in obtaining the consent to its ratification of all the Governments concerned.

* No. 151.

‡ 31397/24: not printed; see No. 130.

7. Mr. Thomas observes that, in the view of the Home Office and Foreign Office, the conclusion of a new Treaty with the United States of America to replace the existing Conventions is regarded as the more desirable procedure. Similar considerations to those set out in paragraph 6 above, would, however, in Mr. Thomas's opinion, apply should the procedure contemplated in paragraph 2 of Foreign Office letter of the 11th July* be adopted (that is to say, alteration of the accession clause of the model Draft Treaty, in the case of the United States of America, so as to provide that the new Treaty proposed should apply to all parts of His Majesty's Dominions.)

8. In the circumstances the best course would seem to be to allow the accession clause of the proposed new Treaty to stand in its usual form, and to arrange for the present Treaty arrangements to remain in force as between the United States of America and the self-governing Dominions pending their decision whether or not to accede to the new Treaty. If this suggestion is accepted, Mr. Thomas would propose to inform the Dominion Governments of the position and to communicate to them, as soon as it is ready, the draft of a new Treaty containing provision on the lines referred to above.

9. The position of Canada would require special consideration, and Mr. Thomas would propose to invite the Canadian Government to accept one of two alternatives: (a) accession to the proposed new Treaty together with the insertion in it of a clause on the lines suggested in the first sentence of paragraph 3 of Foreign Office letter of the 11th July,* or (b) the conclusion of a separate Treaty applying as between the United States of America and Canada only, covering all the offences extraditable between Canada and the United States, the negotiations for such a Treaty to be carried on simultaneously with the negotiations for the new Treaty between the United States and this country.

WITH reference to the proposed Extradition Treaty with the United States of America, I am directed by the Secretary of State for India to state, for the information of the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that a telegram has been received from the Government of India accepting the proposal in your letter dated the 11th July, 1924,† that they should become a party to the proposed treaty from the outset.

Lord Olivier observes, however, from paragraphs 7 and 8 of the Colonial Office letter to the Home Office dated the 24th July, 1924,‡ of which a copy has been communicated to the Foreign Office, that the Secretary of State for the Colonies is not disposed to concur in the proposed procedure, and that he suggests an alternative course on behalf of the self-governing Dominions.

Should this alternative course be adopted, I am to request that the same procedure be applied to India as to the self-governing Dominions and that the consent of the Government of India to the original course proposed by your Department be not taken as a warrant for making any distinction of treatment in the arrangements finally adopted.

† See No. 152.

I am to add that Lord Olivier concurs in the views expressed in paragraphs 3-5 of the Colonial Office letter under reference regarding the two classes of Extradition Treaties and the treatment appropriate to each.

(Received in Colonial Office 21st August, 1924.)

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 19th August, 1924.
WITH reference to your letter of the 26th June last,* and related correspondence on the subject of the proposed Extradition Treaty with the United States to replace the present treaty arrangements, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to say that he has received a copy of the letter addressed to your department by the Colonial Office on the 24th ultimo,† and that in view of the considerations urged therein he is disposed to concur in the procedure suggested in paragraphs 8 and 9 of that letter. If this procedure were adopted it would be necessary to extend it to India, and I am to enclose a copy of a letter‡ from the India Office expressing a wish to this effect.

2. As regards the provision referred to in paragraph 8 of the Colonial Office letter this might perhaps take the form of a final article in the draft treaty in the following terms:—

"On the coming into force of the present treaty the provisions of Article X of the Treaty of 9th August, 1842, of the Convention of 12th July, 1889, of the Supplementary Convention of 13th December, 1900, and of the Supplementary Convention of 12th April, 1905, relative to extradition, shall cease to have effect, save that in the case of each of the self-governing Dominions and India those provisions shall continue to remain in force until such Dominion or India shall have acceded to the present Treaty in accordance with Article 17, or until replaced by other treaty arrangements."

3. I am at the same time to observe as regards Article 3 of the model draft Treaty that no provision of this nature exists in the present treaty arrangements with the United States and that it might be desirable to omit that article in the proposed Treaty. In this connexion reference may be made to the last paragraph of the note of 23rd September, 1909, from the United States Secretary of State to His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington, a copy of which is enclosed.

Enclosure in No. 155.

Department of State, Washington,

23rd September, 1909.

EXCELLENCY,

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note No. 238 of the 7th instant, in which, with reference to the fact as stated, that British Protectorates are not, strictly speaking, British dominions, and that consequently the British Extradition Acts are not the municipal law of such territories, you advise the Department that the absence of the necessary legal machinery has so far precluded the surrender of fugitive criminals between British Protectorates and foreign States and their dependencies and add that, to remedy this state of affairs, special legislative enactments have now been passed in the various British Protectorates on the African continent of which a list is enclosed with your note, and that local notices have been issued that they will be applicable to the United States.

Your note explains, however, that the natives of these Protectorates are not by the mere fact of birth within their limits British subjects, and that consequently the provisions in the Treaties which His Majesty's Government has concluded, and which in some cases altogether preclude and in others leave the surrender of nationals optional, would not, in the absence of specific understanding, apply in strictness to natives. It appears, however, that His Majesty's Government contemplate assimilating the position of natives to that of British subjects for the purposes of these Treaties, and that they apprehend that the Government of the United States will readily assent to this course.

In reply, I have the honour to say that the Department has taken due note of the contents of your note and of the intimation therein contained that acknowledgment of the note is to be considered sufficient to give due effect to the understanding without any further formality.

With reference to the statements in your note regarding the surrender of native inhabitants under this arrangement, the Department avails itself of this opportunity to observe that it would appear that the Government of the United States is in no wise concerned with that feature of the proposed arrangement, since the Extradition Treaties existing between the United States and Great Britain contain no limitations with respect to the surrender of nationals of either country, and since the uniform practice followed by both the United States and Great Britain has been to surrender each to the other all persons fugitive from the justice of the one or the other found within the limits of the other.

I have, &c.,
ALVEY A. ADEE,
Acting Secretary of State.

[Answered by No. 160.]

DEAR MOUNSEY,

Downing Street, 3rd October, 1924.

IN reply to your official letter of 18th September† as to the proposed extradition arrangements with the United States of America we are sending you draft despatches to the Dominions for concurrence.

But Risley has put the following note on the papers:—

"In view of the fact that the clause providing that each Party may refuse or grant the surrender of its own nationals is not included in this draft Treaty, which consequently applies to all persons within the respective jurisdictions, I do not see the object of including the last paragraph of Article 18 which 'assimilates' natives of British Protectorates, etc., to British subjects. Surely such a provision is only necessary when the Treaty provides that the surrender of British subjects may be refused."

Would you consider this, and let us know if you would like us to alter the printed draft Treaty, or alternatively send us fresh prints.

Yours sincerely,

E. J. HARDING.

WITH reference to your letter of the 3rd instant‡ relative to the proposed Extradition Treaty with the United States to replace the existing treaty arrangements, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to inform you that, while he concurs generally in the terms of the draft despatches which Mr. Secretary Thomas proposes to address to the Dominions on the subject, it appears desirable in the first instance to settle a point which has arisen concerning Article 15 of the draft treaty, and I am to transmit to you a copy of a letter which has been addressed to the Home Office regarding this article. In the meantime, the last paragraph of Article 18 of the draft treaty has been deleted in the print, since, as observed semi-officially§ by your department, this paragraph becomes unnecessary by the omission of the former Article 3. A further revise of the draft treaty will be prepared in due course, and copies sent to the departments concerned.

to replace the existing treaty arrangements, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to observe that the Colonial Office point out that the omission from the printed draft treaty of Article 3 of the former (model) draft entails also the omission of the last paragraph of Article 18. This correction is accordingly being made.

2. A further point, however, arises as regards Article 15, since the existing Article (Article X of the Treaty of 1842) provides that the expense of apprehension and delivery shall be borne and defrayed by the party who makes the requisition and receives the fugitive. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald would be glad to learn whether in Mr. Secretary Henderson's view the provision of the Treaty of 1842 should be retained and the draft treaty amended accordingly. In this connexion reference may also be made to the recent observations of the Government of the Union of South Africa in the case of one Blumenthal arising under the Extradition Treaty with Belgium, which, it is understood, are at present receiving the consideration of your department.

GEORGE MOUNSEY.

MR. G. MOUNSEY (FOREIGN OFFICE) to MR. E. J. HARDING (COLONIAL OFFICE).

(Received 9th October, 1924.)

DEAR HARDING,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 8th October, 1924.

WITH regard to your letter of the 3rd instant* as to the proposed extradition arrangements with the United States of America, we quite agree with Risley's view that the last paragraph of Article 18 of the printed draft is now unnecessary owing to the omission of the former Article 3, and the print will be amended accordingly.

As you will see from our reply† to your official letter of the 3rd instant‡ we are however, raising a further point with the Home Office about Article 15, and we propose to await their answer before getting a reprint made of the draft treaty, revised copies of which will be sent you in due course.

Yours, &c.,

GEORGE MOUNSEY.

THE Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs presents his compliments to the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies and, by direction of the Secretary of State, transmits herewith copies of correspondence with the Home Office on the subject of the proposed extradition treaty between the United Kingdom and the United States of America.

Enclosure 1 in No. 161.

SIR,

Home Office, Whitehall, 31st October, 1924.

IN reply to your letter of the 8th instant, I am directed by the Secretary of State to say that the alteration made in Article 18 of the draft for a treaty with the United States of America has been duly noted in this Department.

2. The question raised in the second paragraph of your letter requires careful consideration. Mr. Henderson has had under his notice the correspondence that took place in 1901-2 on the subject of the heavy costs incurred in obtaining extradition from America; he entirely concurs in the views expressed in the Home Office letters of 29th June, 1901, and 26th March, 1902, and is of opinion that no new treaty should be concluded with the United States Government without a serious attempt being at least made to remedy the inequitable conditions which are involved in the arrangements at present in force for obtaining extradition from the United States. He would prefer a simple stipulation as to costs such as is common in recent treaties and appears in the model treaty, but the United States might properly be invited to consider whether there are other means of meeting the contentions put forward in the two Home Office letters mentioned above. The matter is one of considerable importance in regard to the administration of justice; indeed, so far as this Department is concerned it is the only point of importance on which an amendment of the existing extradition treaty is required. If it should be found desirable that the stipulation now in force for the payment of expenses should be retained so far as Canada is concerned, it would (he presumes) be possible to effect this by an express provision in any new treaty.

I am, &c.,

H. B. SIMPSON.

The Under-Secretary of State,
Foreign Office.

Enclosure 2 in No. 161.

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 21st November, 1924.
I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Chamberlain to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ultimo relative to Article 15 of the draft treaty which has been prepared with a view of submission to the United States Government in replacement of the existing treaty arrangements between the two countries in regard to the extradition of fugitive criminals.

2. The views expressed in paragraph 2 of that letter have been noted, and it is presumed therefore that when the Governments of the Dominions and India have been consulted, and subject to such observations as they may make thereon, the draft treaty should be submitted to the United States Government in its present form. If the United States Government thereafter raise the question of the departure in Article 15 from the provision of Article 10 of the Treaty of 1842, the matter will then be taken up in the sense suggested in your letter, and in this event a further reference will be made to your department.

3. In the meantime prints of the revised draft treaty* with the amendment in Article 18 have been prepared and are enclosed. Copies are also being sent to the Colonial Office and India Office with a copy of this correspondence.

I am, &c.,

F. E. F. ADAM.

Confidential.)

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 11th December, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] to be laid before your Ministers a copy of a note† from the United States Ambassador suggesting the conclusion of a supplementary extradition convention, adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences.

* Articles 15, 16 and 19 only, reprinted as enclosure in No. 162.

† Sub-enclosure in No. 147.

2 His Majesty's Government have given careful consideration to this suggestion: and it appears to them that it would be desirable to take this opportunity of suggesting to the United States Government the conclusion of a treaty of a wider nature to replace the existing treaty arrangements with the United States which provide for extradition. These arrangements consist of Article 10 of a treaty of 9th August, 1842, together with three supplementary conventions concluded in 1889, 1900 and 1905 (see Parliamentary Papers C.5972, Cd. 598 and Cd. 3344).

3. The enclosed draft treaty,* based generally on the draft extradition treaty, [Not to Irish Free State: of which copies were enclosed in Mr. Churchill's Confidential despatch of the 8th September, 1922, Dominions No. 341,†] [To Irish Free State: which has been communicated to other foreign countries (see, for example, my despatch Dominions No. 47 of the 6th of February,‡] has been prepared for this purpose, and His Majesty's Government propose, subject to any observations which may be received from the Dominion Governments, to submit this draft to the United States Government for consideration. It will be observed that provision is made in Article 19 of the draft for the existing treaty arrangements referred to above to remain in force as regards the self-governing Dominions and India pending their decision as to accession to the proposed new treaty. The provision, appearing in the model draft, that the contracting parties are not bound to surrender their own nationals, has been omitted in the present case as no such provision occurs in the existing treaty arrangements with the United States. In this connexion I would invite reference to my predecessor's Confidential despatch Dominions No. 351 of the 30th July§ regarding the proposed Extradition Treaty with Brazil.

4. His Majesty's Government would be glad to learn as soon as possible whether your Government concur in the procedure proposed.

5. It will be observed that Article 15 contains the provision appearing in the model draft whereby each of the High Contracting Parties agrees to defray the expenses occasioned by the arrest within its territories, the detention and the conveyance to its frontier, of the persons whom it surrenders. This differs from the existing arrangement embodied in Article 10 of the Treaty of 1842, whereby the expenses are defrayed by the Party making the requisition. The change is considered particularly desirable in view of the heavy liabilities falling upon His Majesty's Government under the existing arrangement.

6. A similar despatch is being addressed to the Governors-General of [To Australia: New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, and the Irish Free State and to the Governor of Newfoundland,] [To New Zealand: the Commonwealth of Australia, the Union of South Africa, and the Irish Free State, and to the Governor of Newfoundland,] [To the Union of South Africa: the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand and the Irish Free State, and to the Governor of Newfoundland,] [To Irish Free State: the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, and to the Governor of Newfoundland,] [To Newfoundland: the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and the Irish Free State,] and a separate despatch|| is being addressed to the Governor-General of Canada, in view of the existence of certain supplementary extradition conventions which apply only as between Canada and the United States of America.

Article 16.

The stipulations of the present treaty shall be applicable, so far as the laws permit, to all His Britannic Majesty's Dominions, except to the self-governing Dominions hereinafter named—that is to say, the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia (including for this purpose Papua and Norfolk Island), the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State, and Newfoundland—and India, provided always that the said stipulations shall be applicable to any of the above-named Dominions or India in respect of which notice to that effect shall have been given on behalf of the Government of such Dominion or India by His Britannic Majesty's Representative at Washington, and provided also that it shall be competent for either of the Contracting Parties to terminate separately the application of this treaty to any of the above-named Dominions or India by a notice to that effect not exceeding one year and not less than six months.

Article 19.

The present treaty shall come into force ten days after its publication, in conformity with the forms prescribed by the laws of the High Contracting Parties. It may be terminated by either of the High Contracting Parties by a notice not exceeding one year and not less than six months.

It shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at as soon as possible.

On the coming into force of the present treaty the provisions of Article 10 of the treaty of the 9th August, 1842, of the Convention of the 12th July, 1889, of the supplementary Convention of the 13th December, 1900, and of the supplementary Convention of the 12th April, 1905, relative to extradition, shall cease to have effect, save that in the case of each of the self-governing Dominions and India, those provisions shall remain in force until such Dominion or India shall have acceded to the present treaty in accordance with Article 16, or until replaced by other treaty arrangements.

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 11th December, 1924.

WITH reference to my predecessor's despatch No. 249 of the 13th of June,* regarding the suggestion of the United States Government that a supplementary extradition convention should be concluded adding bigamy to the list of extraditable offences, I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that His Majesty's Government, as a result of consideration of the suggestion alluded to in paragraph 3 of the despatch under reference, have come to the conclusion that it would be desirable to take this opportunity of suggesting to the United States Government the conclusion of a new treaty to replace the existing treaty arrangements with the United States which provide for extradition.

2. The enclosed draft treaty,† based generally on the draft extradition treaty of which copies were enclosed in Mr. Churchill's Confidential despatch of the 8th September, 1922, Dominions No. 341,‡ has been prepared for this purpose, and His Majesty's Government propose, subject to any observations which may be received from the Dominion Governments, to submit this draft to the United States Government for consideration. The provision appearing in the model draft that the Contracting Parties are not bound to surrender their own nationals, has been omitted in the present case, as no such provision occurs in the existing treaty arrangements with the United States. In this connexion I would invite reference to my predecessor's Confidential despatch Dominions No. 351 of the 30th July§ regarding the proposed Extradition Treaty with Brazil.

† Articles 15, 16 and 19 only, reprinted as enclosure in No. 162.

‡ No. 59 in Dominions No. 87. § No. 130.

3. It will be observed that provision is made in Article 16 of the draft treaty for the separate accession of the self-governing Dominions and India and in Article 19 for the continuance in force of the existing general treaty arrangements as regards the self-governing Dominions and India, pending their decision as to accession to the proposed new treaty. In view, however, of the circumstances mentioned in paragraph 4 of the despatch under reference, the position of Canada will require special consideration; it would seem that there are two practicable courses:

(a) An additional article might be inserted in the draft treaty providing that in the event of Canada acceding, certain specified offences additional to those enumerated in Article 2 would be extraditable as between Canada and the United States only; it would then be possible for Canada to accede to the new treaty, if that were the desire of your Ministers:

(b) Simultaneously with the negotiation of this new general extradition treaty, a separate treaty might be negotiated applying as between the United States and Canada only and covering all the offences extraditable as between Canada and the United States.

4. His Majesty's Government would be glad to receive the views of your Government on the question as soon as possible and to learn which of the two courses referred to in the previous paragraph your Ministers would prefer.

5. It will be observed that Article 15 contains the provision appearing in the model draft whereby each of the High Contracting Parties agrees to defray the expenses occasioned by the arrest within its territories, the detention and the conveyance to its frontier, of the persons whom it surrenders. This differs from the existing arrangement embodied in Article 10 of the Treaty of 1842, whereby the expenses are defrayed by the Party making the requisition. The change is considered particularly desirable in view of the heavy liabilities falling upon His Majesty's Government under the existing arrangement.

6. A copy of the draft treaty is also being communicated to the Governments of the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State and Newfoundland.

Helsingfors, 17th December, 1923.

HIS Majesty's Government do not regard the Anglo-Finnish Treaty of Commerce and Navigation as extending to the fisheries of the respective parties. They do not propose to claim under this Treaty any special rights or privileges which have been conceded by the Agreement concluded in Helsingfors on the 21st October, 1922, or which may be conceded by any subsequent arrangement between Finland and Russia to Russian nationals in respect of fishing in the Arctic waters of Finland ceded by Russia to Finland under the Peace Treaty concluded between Finland and Russia on the 14th October, 1920. For this purpose His Majesty's Government regard fishing as including sealing.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 8TH APRIL, 1924.

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a Report, dated 18th March, 1924, from the Acting Minister of Finance, stating that a Treaty of Commerce and Navigation was concluded between the United Kingdom and Finland on the 14th December, 1923;

The Minister submits, with reference thereto, that it is undesirable to accept the Treaty as a whole on behalf of Canada but that it is desirable to accept that portion of Article 23 of the Treaty which provides that goods produced or manufactured in a self-governing Dominion shall enjoy in Finland the same treatment as would be enjoyed by similar goods if produced or manufactured in the United Kingdom so long as goods produced or manufactured in Finland are accorded in such self-governing Dominion treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods produced or manufactured in any other foreign country;

The Committee, concurring, advise that Your Excellency may be pleased to inform the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the Government of Canada will introduce a resolution in the House of Commons to provide that goods produced or manufactured in Finland shall receive treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods produced or manufactured in any other foreign country provided that goods produced or manufactured in Canada shall enjoy in Finland the same treatment as would be enjoyed by similar goods if produced or manufactured in the United Kingdom.

All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

17TH JULY. Anglo-Finnish Commercial Treaty. Your despatch of 14th May,* your telegram of 25th June.†

New Zealand at present accords to Finnish goods treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods produced or manufactured in any other foreign country subject to the following reservation: On certain specified classes of goods, which may be varied from time to time, special rates of customs duties are levied in pursuance of legislation of general application enabling the imposition of such duties on articles produced or manufactured in any country whose currency is depreciated more than 10 per cent. in relation to sterling. These special duties apply to all foreign countries except when their imposition would be contrary to existing treaties. No special discrimination is made in respect of Finland. The rate of special duties in respect of any country is governed by the extent of depreciation of that country's currency.

As regards Western Samoa a similar practice is followed, but the classes of goods on which special duty is levied are not necessarily the same as in the case of New Zealand.—JELlicoe.

I HAVE the honour, under instructions from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to inform Your Excellency that the Government of Canada does not propose to accede to the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between His Britannic Majesty's Government and the Government of the Republic of Finland, of which the ratifications have been exchanged in Helsingfors to-day, as a whole. The Government of Canada are, however, taking the necessary measures to ensure compliance with the latter part of Article 23, which provides that goods produced or manufactured in a self-governing Dominion shall enjoy in Finland the same treatment as would be enjoyed by similar goods if produced or manufactured in the United Kingdom, so long as goods produced or manufactured in Finland are accorded in such self-governing Dominion treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods produced or manufactured in any other foreign country.

SIR,

Downing Street, 3rd June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to refer to my predecessor's despatch No. 632 of the 31st October,* regarding the commercial relations between the Irish Free State and France, and to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that His Majesty's Government understand from the French Government that it is proposed to open negotiations for the conclusion of a Convention for the future regulation of such relations.

2. Your Ministers will appreciate that any such negotiations are likely to be of considerable interest to His Majesty's Government from the point of view of the trade relations of this country with France. They hope, therefore, that in view of the terms of Section I (1) b of the Resolution regarding the negotiation, etc., of Treaties adopted at the recent Imperial Conference, your Ministers will arrange to keep them informed from time to time of the progress of any such negotiations.

3. Should the negotiations be conducted in Paris, His Majesty's Government will be happy to arrange, as in past cases of negotiations between other Dominion Governments and the Governments of Foreign Powers, for His Majesty's Ambassador at Paris to afford the delegate or delegates of the Irish Free State such assistance as they may require and it may be possible to give them.

4. In any case, in accordance with the above-quoted Resolution, His Majesty's Government will be glad, on the receipt of a request to that effect from your Government, and of information as to the names and titles of the representatives of the Irish Free State, to arrange for the issue to them of the necessary Full Powers from the King, before the signature of any Convention that may be concluded as the result of the negotiations. A request for such "Full Powers" has recently been received from the Canadian Government in connexion with forthcoming negotiations with two European Powers, and steps are being taken to comply with their wishes.

SIR, I AM directed by the Board of Trade to forward for the information of the Secretary of State copy of correspondence* with the Foreign Office on the subject of the possibility of claiming for the United Kingdom under the Anglo-French treaty of 1882 the benefit of favours accorded to Canada by France.

Enclosure 1 in No. 192.

(Extract.)

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 9th August, 1924.
SIR, WITH reference to your letter of the 1st ultimo, Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald understands that the Colonial Office have sent to the Board of Trade a copy of their letter to the Foreign Office of the 24th ultimo on the subject of the denunciation by the French Government of the Anglo-French Agreement of 1899 for the free delivery and attestation of certificates of origin.

2. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald will await with interest the views of the Board of Trade on paragraph 3 of the Colonial Office letter,† in which attention is called to Article 19 of the Franco-Canadian Convention of 1922. It would seem that if the Canadian Government are entitled to claim free attestation for certificates of origin, His Majesty's Government will be entitled to claim the same treatment under Article 1 of the Anglo-French Commercial Convention of 1882.

I am, &c.,
G. H. VILLIERS.

The Secretary to the Board of Trade.

Enclosure 4 in No. 192.

Commercial Relations and Treaties Department, Board of Trade, Great George Street, London, S.W.1, 22nd September, 1924.
SIR, WITH reference to your letters of the 9th August and 5th September, regarding the denunciation by the French Government of the Anglo-French Agreement of 1899 for the free delivery and attestation of certificates of origin, I am directed by the Board of Trade to state that the bearing on the matter of the provisions of Article 19 of the Franco-Canadian Convention of 1922 was carefully considered upon receipt of your letter of the 23rd June.

The Board have, however, never regarded an arrangement for the reciprocal waiver of consular fees as coming within the scope of the Treaty clause according general most-favoured-nation treatment in matters of commerce. Were such the case, other countries, even those that made a charge for consular visa, would have been able to claim by virtue of their treaties with this country that the fact that the fee was waived in regard to French goods entitled their goods to similar treatment. The Board would not have been willing to admit such a claim under the ordinary Treaty clause, though they might have been prepared to recommend a concession to a particular country on terms of reciprocity.

The suggestion that under the most-favoured-nation clause of the Treaty of 1882 the United Kingdom could claim the benefit of a favour accorded by France to Canada, raises, however, a general issue of such importance that it appears necessary to examine it further. The clause in question provides for the extension by one Party to the other of any favour conceded to "any third nation whatsoever." It appears to the Board that, inasmuch as the Parties to the Treaty were the Queen of the United Kingdom and the President of the French Republic, the words "third nation" can only refer to territory not within the sovereignty of either Party, and that, for instance, it could not be held that "third nation" included any British territory outside that to which the Treaty applies, that is, outside the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. Under any other interpretation of this and similar clauses of Commercial Treaties, not only could Great Britain claim as is suggested in your letter under reply the treatment in foreign countries accorded to other parts of the Empire by these countries, but it would equally follow that foreign countries could claim in the United Kingdom the treatment accorded by the United Kingdom to other parts of the Empire. Canada, for instance, could not be a "third nation" for one purpose and not for the other. The result of such an interpretation would be that the policy of Imperial Preference would be found to be inconsistent, if not with the Anglo-French Commercial Treaty, which does not deal with Customs duties, at any rate with certain other Commercial Treaties in force.

An examination of the most-favoured-nation clauses of commercial treaties discloses considerable variation in form, sometimes even in the different articles of the same treaty. Some of these variations may have material significance, especially that designed to distinguish "conditional" as distinct from unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment. But whether the clause is worded so as to entitle one Party to claim from the other the "treatment of the most-favoured-nation," or the treatment accorded to "any other country" or "any other foreign country" (both expressions occur in Article II of the Anglo-Italian Treaty of 1883), or to "all other countries" (e.g., Anglo-Belgian Exchange of Notes of 27th July, 1898), or to "all other nations" (Article II of Treaty with United States of 1815, and Article IX of Treaty with Sweden and Norway of 1826), or to "any third nation" (Article I, Anglo-French Treaty, 1882), the Board are of the opinion that in all cases, no matter what the precise wording may be, the treatment referred to is to be considered as that accorded to an independent State by Great Britain, which can alone be claimed by the other party to the treaty and to the treatment accorded by that party to such other independent State which can alone be claimed by Great Britain.

The normal form of modern commercial treaty appears to leave no room for doubt on this point. The treaty is entered into on the one side by "His Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Emperor of India," and applies in form to the territories of the Contracting Parties, that is, to the British Empire on the one side, so that the expression "any other foreign country" in the most-favoured-nation clause (or even "any other country") must necessarily mean country outside the British Empire. The fact that the "Colonial Clause" subsequently modifies the territorial application of the Treaty to the various parts of the Empire would not appear to have any bearing on this point.

While, for the reasons stated above, the Board do not agree that our Treaties with foreign countries enable us to claim directly that no favour shall be accorded to other parts of the Empire which is not extended to Great Britain, they desire me to point out that it will generally be possible in practice to secure this result without departing from what they consider to be the correct interpretation of the most-favoured-nation clause. So long as France, for example, had a most-favoured-nation clause in a treaty with a non-British country, say, Italy, and in fulfilment of her obligations granted to Italy the benefit of certain favours accorded to Canada, then under the most-favoured-nation clause of the Anglo-French treaty the United Kingdom could claim the benefit of the favours in question on the ground not of their accord to Canada but of their enjoyment by Italy—always provided, of course, that the favours in question were within the scope of the most-favoured-nation clauses in force.

Copy of this letter is being sent to the Colonial Office.

[MY LORD.] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 19th November, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a note from the French Ambassador regarding the termination of the Agreement made in 1899 between France and this country for the waiver of Consular Fees on the delivery and attestation of certificates of origin (Treaty Series No. 1 of 1900). It is understood that the French Government desire at the same time to terminate the arrangement made in 1900 for the extension of the above agreement to French Colonies and Possessions, and British Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates, to which reference was made in Mr. Chamberlain's Circular despatch of the 13th of August, 1900,* a copy of which is enclosed.

2. I enclose a copy of a note to the French Ambassador accepting, on behalf of this country, the revised arrangement proposed by the French Government under which a charge not exceeding five gold francs will be made for the delivery or attestation by Consuls of certificates of origin in the case of goods exceeding one hundred gold francs in value, on the assumption that the fee of five gold francs will be the maximum fee, but that this country will have, on terms of reciprocity, the benefit of any concession which may be granted by France to any foreign country. It will be seen that His Majesty's Government have also suggested to the French Government that a similar arrangement should be applied to the Consular attestation of invoices, as well as of certificates of origin. Such attestation is at present necessary on invoices required for the application of French customs duty in the case of goods subject to ad valorem duties, and also of certain goods subject to specific duties when the value is a determining factor in fixing Tariff classification.

[To Canada only: 3. The provisions of Article XIX of the Franco-Canadian Convention of the 15th of December, 1922, would appear to preclude the French Government from charging any fees for the delivery or attestation of certificates of origin by French Consuls in respect of goods exported from Canada to France, and the French Colonies, Possessions and Protectorates; but if British Consuls in France and French Oversea Possessions would have henceforward to charge fees for the attestation and delivery of certificates of origin in respect of goods exported thence to this country, it would seem difficult to arrange for them to do this work free of charge in respect of goods exported to Canada. His Majesty's Government would be glad of the observations of your Ministers on the matter from this point of view.

The Franco-Canadian Convention of 1922 does not appear to deal with payments in respect of the Consular attestation of invoices, and your Ministers may wish to consider this point further if an arrangement is made between France and this country on the lines indicated in paragraph 2 above.]

[Not to Canada: 3. I shall be glad to learn the views of your Ministers as to the desirability of suggesting to the French Government the conclusion of a similar arrangement to apply to the delivery or attestation of certificates of origin, and the attestation of invoices (a) by French Consuls in respect of goods exported from [Australia—including Papua, Norfolk Island and New Guinea—] [New Zealand—including Western Samoa—] [the Union of South Africa—including South West Africa—] [the Irish Free State] [Newfoundland] [Southern Rhodesia] to France and French Oversea Possessions, and (b), where such action is required, by British Consular Officers in respect of goods exported from France and French Oversea

Enclosure 1 in No. 193.

Ambassade de France en Angleterre,

MONSIEUR LE SECRÉTAIRE D'ÉTAT,

Londres, le 6 juin, 1924.

Le Gouvernement français estime que sans nuire aux échanges commerciaux entre la France et la Grande-Bretagne, tout en assurant une rémunération légitime du service rendu, une taxe modérée peut être substituée, par voie d'accord réciproque, à la gratuité complète pour la délivrance, le visa ou la légalisation des certificats d'origine.

Il a donc décidé de mettre fin à l'arrangement conclu entre la France et la Grande-Bretagne par échange de lettres en date des 13 octobre et 15 novembre, 1899.

Il propose qu'à cet arrangement soit substitué un nouvel accord aux termes duquel la taxe de délivrance de visa ou de légalisation des certificats d'origine serait fixée à 5 Frs. or, avec gratuité pour les certificats d'origine accompagnant les marchandises dont le valeur ne dépasserait pas 100 Frs. à la parité de l'or.

Le taux de 5 Frs. or est celui auquel le Gouvernement de la République est disposé, moyennant un traitement de réciprocité, à réduire la taxe de 20 Frs. or, perçue en l'absence d'accord par les autorités consulaires françaises. Il va sans dire que cette réciprocité se trouvera remplie du moment où l'autre partie contractante prendra l'engagement de ne pas appliquer une taxe supérieure à 5 Frs. or, cette taxe pouvant être d'une valeur égale ou inférieure à ce chiffre.

Afin de tenir compte des dispositions de l'article II de la Convention Internationale pour la simplification des formalités douanières, conclue à Genève le 3 novembre, 1923, le Gouvernement français n'aurait pas d'objection, si le Gouvernement britannique en est d'accord, à ce que les certificats d'origine émanant des douanes de l'un des deux pays et munis de leurs cachets continuent à être admis par des douanes de l'autre pays sans être revêtus du visa consulaire. Toutefois, je dois des maintenant faire observer à Votre Excellence que le Gouvernement français se réserve de revenir sur la question dans le cas où cette facilité aurait pour effet de créer une trop large brèche dans l'économie du nouvel accord et tendrait à tarir les ressources que l'on peut en attendre.

En vue d'éviter l'application, même momentanée, de la taxe pleine, mon Gouvernement est disposé à maintenir les effets de l'accord de gratuité actuelle jusqu'à la mise en vigueur du nouvel arrangement. Toutefois, ce régime de faveur ne pouvant être prolongé trop longtemps sans inconvénient, il serait désirable que l'arrangement proposé intervint dans le mois qui suivra la présente communication.

La modicité de la taxe de 5 Frs., encore atténuée par le maintien de la gratuité jusqu'à 100 Frs. à la parité de l'or, me permet d'ailleurs de penser que nos propositions rallieront sans difficulté l'adhésion du Gouvernement britannique.

Si tel est bien le cas, le Foreign Office et cette Ambassade pourraient échanger des lettres qui se substitueraient à celles des 13 octobre et 15 novembre, 1899, et fixeraient la date à laquelle le nouveau régime deviendrait simultanément applicable dans les deux pays.

Veillez agréer, &c.,

SAINT-AULAIRE.

Son Excellence

le Principal Secrétaire d'Etat,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 5th November, 1924.

WITH reference to your note of the 6th June last, I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that His Majesty's Government, whilst regretting the decision of the French Government to terminate the agreement concluded between Great Britain and France in 1899 for the reciprocal free delivery and endorsement by consular officers of certificates of origin, are ready to conclude a new arrangement on the general lines set forth in Your Excellency's note. They assume that the French Government will agree that the exchange of notes should make it clear that the consular fee of five gold francs, whether for the delivery or the endorsement of certificates, shall be the maximum fee, and that Great Britain shall have the benefit on terms of reciprocity of any concessions in either respect which may be granted by France to any other foreign country.

2. His Majesty's Government learnt with regret from Monsieur de Montille's note of the 30th August last, that the French Government were not prepared to dispense with consular control of certificates of origin except, as an exceptional measure, in the case of certificates issued by the customs authorities of the country of despatch. As regards Great Britain, that concession is of no value, inasmuch as it is not the practice of His Majesty's Customs to issue such certificates. There would, therefore, be no advantage in including any provision to that effect in the exchange of notes.

3. His Majesty's Government have also had under consideration the existing arrangement with the French Government, in virtue of which French diplomatic and consular officers in Great Britain endorse, free of charge, invoices of goods exported to France, and, subject to ad valorem duties in that country, when the value of the consignments does not exceed one hundred francs. They would propose that the agreement to be concluded in regard to certificates of origin should be extended, with the same conditions, to the consular endorsement of invoices.

4. The above arrangements might be covered in the same exchange of notes. In the view of His Majesty's Government the agreement should be terminable at reasonable notice, say of one year.

I have, &c.,

(For the Secretary of State),
R. H. CAMPBELL.

SIR, Vice Regal Lodge, Dublin, 18th December, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch Dominions No. 538 of the 19th November,* regarding the termination of the Agreement made in 1899 between France and Great Britain for the waiver of Consular Fees on the delivery and attestation of certificates of origin.

2. My Ministers wish to express their appreciation of the suggestion contained in paragraph 3 of your despatch under reply. They consider, however, that it would be more convenient to include an arrangement of a similar nature in the proposed Commercial Treaty with France, of which I had the honour to inform Mr. Thomas in my Confidential despatch of the 1st August.†

ificates of origin, I have the honour to inform you that the question of modifying the provisions of Article 19 of the Franco-Canadian Trade Convention of the 15th December, 1922, was recently raised by the French Consul-General at Montreal, and that, on the 17th November last, an Order in Council was passed authorizing the Minister of Finance to negotiate an Agreement to effect the proposed modification. Copies of this Order in Council are enclosed herewith.

Enclosure in No. 195.

(P.C. 1985.)

CERTIFIED COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 17TH NOVEMBER, 1924.

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 12th November, 1924, from the Acting Minister of Finance, submitting that the Consul-General of the French Republic, at Montreal, has addressed to the Under-Secretary of State a letter dated 23rd October, 1924, in which he requests the repeal of the second paragraph of Article 19 of the Convention of Commerce between Canada and France, dated 15th December, 1922, and the substitution therefor of a paragraph providing for the making of a maximum charge of five gold francs for a certificate of origin, except in the case of items of merchandise less than one hundred gold francs in value, in which case the certificate of origin would be issued free.

The said paragraph 2 of Article 19 is as follows:—

"If the Canadian Government or the French Government deem it necessary to have such certificates or declarations viséd, they may appoint or designate for such purposes officers who shall give such visés free of charge."

The Minister observes that the request made by the Consul-General of France would entail the striking out of the paragraph quoted above, and the substitution therefor of a paragraph to the following effect:—

"If the Canadian Government or the French Government deem it necessary to have such certificates or declarations viséd, they may appoint or designate for such purposes officers who shall give such visés for a maximum charge of five gold francs in the case of certificates issued by an officer of the French Government, or a maximum charge of one dollar of lawful money of Canada for certificates issued by an officer of the Canadian Government; provided that no charge shall be made in connexion with certificates of origin for items of merchandise the value of which does not exceed one hundred gold francs or twenty Canadian dollars."

The Consul-General of the French Republic gives as the reason for the making of the request that his Government, in order to obtain revenue, are revising their commercial arrangements with various countries under which the delivery, visé and authentication of certificates of origin are free of charge, and wish to provide that a moderate tax be established for such service which would yield revenue to the Government without prejudice to commercial interests.

The Minister is of the opinion that the proposed amendment would result in less advantage to Canada than to France, and it would be desirable in consideration of agreeing to the proposed amendment to secure a change in respect of French tariff item 35 bis. Milk condensed, pure, and item 35 ter. a. Milk condensed, with an addition of sugar, of the said Convention of Commerce, whereby France would grant to Canada in respect of these tariff items the treatment of the most-favoured-nation as defined in Article 2 of the said Convention of Commerce.

Any such change could only be made with the approval of the French Chambers and of the Parliament of Canada, and would come into effect on the exchange of ratifications at Paris.

The Minister, therefore, recommends that he be authorized to negotiate with a representative of the French Government an agreement covering the changes in the said Convention of Commerce outlined above, and to give an undertaking that the Government of Canada will introduce into Parliament a resolution to approve of the making of the said changes.

The Committee concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

Clerk of the Privy Council.

SIR, Downing Street, 8th January, 1924.
I HAVE the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of correspondence* with the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, arising out of the accession of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia and the Union of South Africa to the Declaration concerning the right to a flag of States having no sea-coast, signed at Barcelona on the 20th April, 1921. This Declaration is printed in Treaty Series Paper No. 29 of 1923.

2. It would appear that in the present case it would be most convenient to regard the 31st October, 1922 (the date on which the notification of accession was received by the Secretariat of the League) as the effective date. As a general rule, His Majesty's Government would suggest that accessions should be regarded as taking effect on the date on which the notification is received by the headquarters Government, in all cases where the Treaty to which accession is made contains no special provision for determining the dates of accession, and that the headquarters Government should then invariably inform the other parties to the Treaty of this date when officially notifying them of the accession. The Governments of the other Dominions, Members of the League, have expressed concurrence in the Secretary-General being informed accordingly, and I should be glad to learn whether your Ministers also are prepared to concur in this proposal.

2. My Ministers desire me to inform you that they concur in the suggestion that, as a general rule, accession to Treaties by the Irish Free State should be regarded as taking effect on the date on which the notification on its behalf is received by the headquarters Government in all cases where the Treaty to which accession is made contains no special provision for determining the dates of accession, and that the headquarters Government should then invariably inform the other parties to the Treaty of this date when officially notifying them of the accession.

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 24th May, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to invite reference to the following Conventions and Statutes contained in League of Nations paper C.823. M.312. VIII, 1923 [C.G.C.T. 36], a copy of which was forwarded to the Members of the League of Nations in a letter from the Secretary-General C.L.15, 1924, VIII, of the 26th January:—

(1) Convention and Statute on the International Regime of Railways and Protocol of Signature.

(2) Convention and Statute on the International Regime of Maritime Ports and Protocol of Signature.

(3) Convention relating to the transmission in transit of electric power and Protocol of Signature.

(4) Convention relating to the development of hydraulic power affecting more than one State, and Protocol of Signature.

These Conventions were adopted by the Second General Conference on the Freedom of Communications and Transit held at Geneva in November-December, 1923 [To Canada and Irish Free State only: at which [Canada] [the Irish Free State] was represented by [Mr. L. Pacaud.] [Mr. MacWhite.]]

2. It is contemplated that the Conventions and Statutes should in due course be ratified by His Majesty so far as concerns this country. The Governments of Newfoundland, Southern Rhodesia, the Colonies not possessing responsible Government and British Protectorates are being consulted as to ratification on their behalf.

3. It would be convenient to His Majesty's Government to learn, before the instrument of ratification is prepared, whether Your Excellency's Ministers desire that these Conventions and Statutes (with the Protocols), or any of them, should also be ratified on behalf of [Canada] [the Commonwealth of Australia] [New Zealand] [the Union of South Africa] [the Irish Free State] and, if so, what arrangements they contemplate for their signature. [Not to Irish Free State: I should be glad if your Ministers' views could be communicated by telegraph.]

[To Australia, New Zealand and Union of South Africa only: 4. It will be observed that Article 9 of the Railway and Ports Conventions and Article 21 of the Electric Power and Hydraulic Power Conventions provide that any State signing the Conventions may declare, at the moment of signature or ratification, that its acceptance does not include any or all of its colonies, overseas possessions, protectorates, or overseas territories under its sovereignty or authority. In the event of your Ministers deciding to participate in all or any of the Conventions, but desiring that [To Australia: Papua, Norfolk Island and the Mandated Territory of New Guinea] [To New Zealand: Western Samoa] [To Union of South Africa: South-West Africa] should be excluded, a decision would be necessary on the question whether a declaration under all or any of the Articles in question should be made at the time of signature or postponed until ratification.]

[To Australia only: 5. The position of Nauru will also need consideration, and I shall be glad of your Ministers' observations as to the application of the Conventions and Statutes to it.]

SIR,

Downing Street, 27th June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of League of Nations paper C.823. M.312. VIII, 1923 (C.G.C.T. 36), containing the following Conventions, etc., adopted by the Second General Conference on the Freedom of Communications and Transit held at Geneva in November-December, 1923:—

(1) Convention and Statute on the International Regime of Railways and Protocol of Signature.

(2) Convention and Statute on the International Regime of Maritime Ports and Protocol of Signature.

(3) Convention relating to the transmission in transit of electric power and Protocol of Signature.

(4) Convention relating to the development of hydraulic power affecting more than one State and Protocol of Signature.

The first two of these Conventions and the Final Act of the Conference have also been printed in Parliamentary Papers (Cmd. 2141, 2142, and 2144), copies of which are being transmitted in a separate despatch.

2. It is proposed that these Conventions, etc., should now be ratified by His Majesty. As it is considered desirable that His Majesty's ratification should be deposited at an early date, the ratification will be confined to Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and declarations will be made under Article 9 of the Railway and Ports Conventions and Article 21 of the Electric Power and Hydraulic Power Conventions, excluding all Colonies, overseas possessions, protectorates, and overseas territories under His Majesty's sovereignty or authority. It will, of course, be possible for adherence to be notified subsequently in respect of any part of the Empire so excluded, which may desire to participate.

3. In this connexion I would invite reference to the Recommendation in the Final Act of the Conference relating to the application of these Conventions to colonies, overseas possessions, etc., and I should be glad to know whether your Ministers would wish a notification of adherence in respect of [Newfoundland] [Southern Rhodesia] to be made to the League of Nations as regards [Newfoundland only: any of the Conventions which may be considered applicable to Newfoundland.] [Southern Rhodesia only: the Railways, Electric Power and Hydraulic Power Conventions.] of the Treaty of Versailles dealing with commercial matters (vide Article 280 of the Treaty), it is considered desirable to initiate negotiations with a view to the conclusion of a Commercial Treaty with Germany.

2. Accordingly a draft Treaty,* of which a copy is enclosed, has been prepared and, it is anticipated, will shortly be submitted to the German Government. The draft follows closely the original draft of the Treaty recently signed with Austria (vide my despatch [Dominions No. 255] [No. 196] of the 6th June,†) with the addition of the usual clauses relating to navigation which were omitted from the Treaty with Austria in view of the fact that Austria has no sea board.

3. As in the case of Austria, it is contemplated that there should be signed simultaneously with the Treaty a declaration dealing with the special restrictions imposed in this country by law on ex-enemy aliens. The draft of such a declaration* is appended to the Treaty. In the event of the Treaty being concluded, and of any Dominion or Colony, in which legislation against ex-enemy aliens is still in force, desiring to become a party to it, it will presumably be necessary for some similar declaration to be prepared and signed, reserving from the rights conferred by the Treaty the special restrictions imposed by the legislation in question.

4. If there are any points which your Ministers would desire to be specially borne in mind in the negotiations, His Majesty's Government will be glad to be advised at an early date.

SIR,

Government House, Wellington, 25th September, 1924.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 206 of to-day's date,§ relative to the proposed Commercial Treaty with Germany, I have the honour, at the instance of my Prime Minister, to advise you, for the confidential information of His Majesty's Government, that, as in the case of the Commercial Treaty which was recently entered into with Austria, the reasons for non-adherence to the proposed Treaty with Germany are, firstly, on account of the existence of the Undesirable Immigrants Exclusion Act, 1919, and secondly, because under existing laws depreciated currency duty is charged upon certain classes of goods imported from Germany on the ground that their importation prejudicially affects industries established in New Zealand or in other British Dominions.

2. A further reason for the non-adherence is that, if a special Treaty or tariff agreement were later arranged with any other foreign country, similar terms would have to be granted to Germany.

I have, &c.,

JELICOE,

Governor-General.

TELEGRAM.

31ST OCTOBER. Ministers would be glad to learn whether obligation imposed on Germany by Chapter I (Articles 264 and 265) of Peace Treaty of Versailles will cease to operate in January, 1925, in the terms of Article 280 of the Peace Treaty. They also inquire present position as regards negotiations for commercial agreement between Great Britain and Germany referred to in your despatch of 1st August, Dominions No. 358,* and whether Articles XXVIII and XXIX in the draft will be retained.

In this connexion I transmitted to you under cover of my despatch of 22nd October, No. 574,† Minute from Ministers in reply to your despatch above referred to, stating that in view of the provisions of above-mentioned Articles of draft Treaty the Union did not propose to become a party to it. They added that they preferred to retain freedom of action as it might be desirable for the Union to conclude commercial arrangements with contiguous foreign countries such as Portuguese East Africa and Portuguese West Africa.—ATHLONE.

5TH NOVEMBER. Your telegram 31st October.† Answer to first question is in affirmative. Present position as regards Commercial Treaty with Germany is that, as result of discussions in Berlin, draft has been revised in certain particulars, but Articles 28 and 29 are retained subject, as a result of German representations, to insertion of a limit of twelve months from coming into force of Treaty within which notice of accession has to be given. WITH reference to His Excellency the Governor-General's Minute No. 74/97 of the 27th August, 1924, transmitting a copy of a despatch, dated the 1st August, 1924, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, on the subject of the conclusion of a Commercial Treaty between Great Britain and Germany, Ministers have the honour to inform His Excellency that, in view of the provisions of Articles XXVIII and XXIX thereof, there is no necessity for the Union to become a party to the Treaty.

It may be desirable for the Union Government to conclude commercial arrangements with contiguous foreign countries such as Portuguese East and West Africa, and it is, therefore, preferable to retain freedom of action in case it should be found necessary to take action to this end. The above Articles provide that Union produce and manufactures shall enjoy complete and unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment on importation into Germany as long as similar treatment is accorded to German produce and manufactures on importation into the Union.

WITH reference to your despatch dated 1st August, 1924, Dominions No. 358,* forwarding copy of a draft Commercial Treaty with Germany which had been prepared and was about to be submitted to the German Government, I have the honour to inform you, in reply to your inquiry as to whether there are any points which my Ministers desire to be specially borne in mind in the negotiations, that the Commonwealth Government has at this stage no comments to offer in the matter.

It is noted that, under the Treaty as drafted, provision is made for the adherence of any British self-governing Dominion to be effected by the giving of notice, presumably at any time after the Treaty has been signed and ratified, through His Majesty's Representative at Berlin, of the desire that the Treaty shall apply to such Dominion.

In the event of the Treaty being agreed to and ratified, whether in its present or in some modified form, the question of the adherence of the Commonwealth will then receive careful consideration.

benefits of Treaty of British ships registered in parts of Empire to which Treaty does not apply. His Majesty's Government have not felt able to resist this proposal especially in view of provisions of paragraph 5 of Protocol of Signature of Maritime Ports Convention, signed Geneva, 9th December, 1923 (see page 13 of Cmd. 2141, of which copies enclosed my despatch 16th July, Dominions 321*), and course proposed in 1915 in connexion with negotiations as to liberty of Dominions to withdraw from Commercial Treaty with Russia (see my despatch 12th August, 1915, Confidential†). German Government also proposed at one stage that second paragraph of Article originally numbered 28, whereby goods produced or manufactured in non-acceding Dominion or Colony would receive most-favoured-nation treatment in Germany subject to reciprocity, should be replaced by comprehensive paragraph to effect that stipulations of treaty according most-favoured-nation treatment in Germany in respect alike of entry and residence of persons and of shipping and of goods should extend to India or any of His Britannic Majesty's self-governing Dominions, etc., so long as India or such self-governing Dominions, etc., should accord to German citizens, shipping and goods, treatment as favourable as that accorded to any other foreign country.

This proposal (which would have been open to obvious objection) has now been abandoned, and German representatives have agreed to retention of second paragraph originally proposed, but desired that German Government might have liberty to denounce this paragraph after 1st September, 1926, in respect of non-acceding Dominions, etc., by giving three months' notice. His Majesty's Government considered that it was impossible to take exception to this proposal.—AMERY.

SIR,

Foreign Office, 3rd December, 1924.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith copies of the minutes of the meeting at which the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between Great Britain and Germany was signed.

2. These minutes embody a declaration to which His Majesty's Government attach great importance, namely, that the treaty will not prejudice in any way rights enjoyed under or in virtue of the Treaty of Versailles. In order not to make difficulties for the German Government, His Majesty's Government have agreed that these minutes shall not be published for the time being. In view, however, of the fact that these minutes have so important a bearing on the interpretation of the Commercial Treaty, it has been agreed that they will be communicated to the Secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva, after ratification, when the treaty itself is registered, and to Parliament when the Bill for giving effect to the treaty is introduced. It has been further agreed that both His Majesty's Government and the German Government retain the right to declare to their respective Parliaments that the Treaty of Versailles is in no way modified or infringed, and that this has been the understanding throughout the negotiations. Should Parliamentary exigencies require it each Government retains the further right to publish the minutes in question after communication with the other party as to the date of publication.

(Received 29th August.)

Ambassade de France,

M. LE SECRÉTAIRE D'ÉTAT,

Londres, le 28 août 1924.

L'ARTICLE 276 du Traité de Versailles contient un certain nombre de dispositions relatives au traitement des ressortissants des Puissances alliées et associées en Allemagne. Le Gouvernement français juge ces dispositions fort utiles. Dernièrement d'ailleurs, les autorités britanniques se seraient proposé de les invoquer à propos du survol de l'Allemagne par les avions d'une société aéronautique anglaise.

En vertu de l'article 280, second alinéa, du traité, cet article 276 pourra demeurer en vigueur après le 10 janvier 1925, s'il en est ainsi décidé par la majorité du Conseil de la Société des Nations.

En conséquence, M. Herriot me charge de demander à votre Excellence si le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté entend demander au Conseil de la Société des Nations de prendre une décision en ce sens.

Veillez, &c.,
DE MONTILLE.

2. At the same time I would point out, with regard to a statement contained in Monsieur de Montille's note under reference, that it is not the intention of His Majesty's Government to appeal to the provisions of this article in connexion with the flight of British aircraft over German territory. In the opinion of His Majesty's Government, as the French Government are already aware, the provisions of Article 276, by which Germany undertakes certain obligations with regard to the treatment of Allied nationals, and which is comprised in the economic clauses contained in Part X of the Treaty, cannot be held to govern the question of Allied civil aviation in Germany, which forms a separate section, Part XI, of the Treaty.

(30 P. No. 2558.)

MONSIEUR LE PREMIER MINISTRE,
Londres, le 25 octobre, 1924.
COMME le sait Votre Excellence, l'article 276 du Traité de Versailles (Chapitre IV de la Section I de la Partie X) comporte, d'une façon générale, l'engagement pour l'Allemagne de ne soumettre les ressortissants des Puissances alliées et associées à aucune disposition qui ne serait appliquée soit aux sujets allemands dans certains cas, soit aux ressortissants de la nation la plus favorisée dans d'autres.

L'article 280, 2e alinéa, prévoit qu'après une période de cinq ans à dater de la mise en vigueur du traité, ledit article 276 restera en vigueur "avec ou sans amendement, pour telle période s'il en est une, que fixera la majorité du Conseil de la Société des Nations, et qui ne pourra dépasser cinq années."

Ca texte doit, semble-t-il, être interprété en ce sens que l'Allemagne sera libérée des engagements visés à l'article 276 si, à la date du 10 janvier 1925, le Conseil de la Société des Nations n'en a pas prononcé le renouvellement.

Mon Gouvernement m'a prié d'attirer l'attention de Votre Excellence sur cette question. Il serait très heureux de connaître les intentions du Gouvernement de Sa Majesté Britannique au sujet d'une proposition éventuelle à présenter au Conseil de la Société des Nations.

Votre Excellence m'obligerait vivement si Elle voulait bien me faire connaître le point de vue du Gouvernement Britannique dans la question dont il s'agit.

MY LORD,
Downing Street, 16th April, 1924.
I HAVE the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of correspondence with the German Ambassador regarding the Agreement between the Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa and representatives of the German Government on the subject of the position of German nationals in South-West Africa.

2. The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has inquired whether your Ministers would desire that the text of the Agreement should be published in the Treaty Series of Parliamentary Papers, since he attaches importance to this Series of Papers being preserved as a complete record of all international agreements of consequence concluded by or on behalf of the various parts of the Empire. It will be noted that the Agreement renewing Part I of the Mozambique Convention, signed on the 31st March, 1923, has already been published in this Series (Treaty Series, 1923, No. 10). If it is desired that the Agreement should be so published, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs will be glad to receive a certified copy of the text.

3. The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs will also be glad to learn your Ministers' wishes as regards registration of the Agreement with the Secretariat of the League of Nations in accordance with Article 18 of the Covenant. His Majesty's Government would be happy to make the necessary arrangements for the inclusion of this Agreement and of any similar international agreements affecting the Union of South Africa among those which they communicate themselves to the League Secretariat for registration, if this course would be of convenience to the Union Government.

SIR,

German Embassy, London, 30th January, 1924.

IN pursuance of instructions I have the honour to transmit to you herewith copies of the Agreement concluded with General Smuts by Herr de Haas of the Foreign Ministry and Dr. Ruppel of the German Ministry of Reconstruction, as representatives of the German Government, respecting the national status of Germans in the Mandated Territory of South-West Africa, together with copies in the English and German languages of the correspondence appertaining thereto.

I have been instructed to express to Your Excellency the hope of the German Government that this arrangement has the approval of the British Government.

I have, &c.,

The Right Honourable

James Ramsay MacDonald, M.P.,
&c., &c., &c.

South African Delegation, Trafalgar Square,

DEAR MR. DE HAAS,

London, W.C.2, 23rd October, 1923.

IT is a great pleasure to me that I have been able to come to an agreement with the Government of the German Reich in regard to the future of German Nationals in the Mandated Territory of South-West Africa, and I wish to express to you and Dr. Ruppel my appreciation of the friendly spirit in which the matter has been dealt with and disposed of. Ever since the conclusion of peace the Administration of South-West Africa and these German Nationals have worked together for the common good, but the natural feelings of the latter have prevented them from doing anything which might be construed as disloyalty to their Fatherland. The German Government have now removed this difficulty, and I have no doubt that they will act on your advice and accept the new citizenship in a good and loyal spirit.

The Germans, settled at various times in various parts of the Union, form one of the most valuable portions of our South African people. And I feel sure that the Germans of South-West Africa, whose successful and conscientious work in the Territory I highly appreciate, will materially help in building up an enduring European civilization on the African Continent, which is the main task of the Union.

This successful issue of our discussion is another small tribute to the spirit of goodwill which has since the conclusion of peace actuated the Union Government in its relations with its former enemies, and I am glad to recognize that from your side this spirit has been fully reciprocated.

Believe me,
Yours faithfully,
J. C. SMUTS.

TRANSLATION OF LETTER TO GENERAL SMUTS FROM MR. DE HAAS.

SIR,

London, 23rd October, 1923.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of to-day's date. The friendly feelings which you express therein are fully appreciated by Dr. Ruppel and myself. I especially thank you for your appreciative reference to the Germans in the Union of South Africa and in the former German Protectorate of South-West Africa.

IN the name of the German Government I for my part gladly recognize that the Administration established by the Union of South Africa for the Mandated Territory of South-West Africa has been successful in endeavouring to ameliorate the position of the Germans living there as much as possible. Some questions, however, remained open, which stood in the way of perfect co-operation, but these questions have now been settled by the memorandum signed to-day.

Recognizing that the future of South-West Africa is now bound up with the Union of South Africa, and that it would be a wise policy for the German Nationals in that Territory to throw in their lot with South Africans, the German Government are prepared to use their influence with these Nationals to induce them to accept Union citizenship under a general naturalization law of the Union and to advise them not to exercise their right of declaring themselves outside of that citizenship.

It will be hailed with great satisfaction by the German Government, and I feel sure by the German people generally that a complete understanding has been arrived at. This has only been possible owing to the cordial and generous manner and friendly spirit in which Dr. Ruppel and myself, as representatives of the German Government, have been met by you.

With the expression of my highest consideration, I have, &c.,

DE HAAS.

To the Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa,

General J. C. Smuts, P.C.,
London.

MEMORANDUM.

THE purpose of this memorandum is to confirm the results of the conversation which took place between General Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, and Mr. de Haas, of the German Foreign Office, and Dr. Ruppel, of the German Ministry of Reconstruction, representing the German Government, regarding the Germans in the Mandated Territory of South-West Africa, and especially regarding the attitude which the German Government will advise its nationals to adopt in respect of the proposed law for the automatic grant of Union citizenship to the Germans domiciled in South-West Africa.

(1) Germans to share privileges and responsibilities.—The policy of the Union Government is to accept the Germans of South-West Africa as part of the people, with the same privileges and the same responsibilities as the other citizens.

(2) German language.—The administration of South-West Africa will give every facility for the free use of the German language and will raise no objection to the use of the German language in public offices and in correspondence with these offices, who will reply, whenever possible, in the same language. German translations of the official Gazette containing the laws and Government Notices enacted from time to time will also be published.

(3) Schools.—The Administration is prepared to assist as a special measure the two German schools of Swakopmund and Windhoek for a period of two years on the £ for £ principle, but not exceeding 50 per cent. of the total expenditure of the last twelve months. The schools are to be subject to Government inspection, and the standard of the classes is to be at least equal to the same standard in the Government schools.

This concession is in no way to be construed as an abandonment of the present general education policy of the Administration.

(4) German Churches and Missions.—The German Churches and the German Missions have been and will continue to be treated sympathetically by the Administration of South-West Africa.

(5) Immigration laws.—The immigration laws in force in the Union of South Africa shall apply to South-West Africa. Germans who conform to the provisions of this Act shall be welcome.

(6) Co-operative Societies.—The Administration of South-West Africa will investigate the question of the solution of the financial difficulties of the German Co-operative Societies (Verwertungs-Vereinigungen) and their Association (Verband) and consider seriously the possibility of rendering assistance to them.

(7) Representation on Land Board and Advisory Board of Land and Agricultural Bank.—The desirability of the appointment of one German member on the Land Board as well as on the Board of the Land and Agricultural Bank in South-West Africa is admitted, and steps to give effect to this will be taken by the Administration when an opportunity presents itself.

(8) Swakopmund.—The Administration has a definite policy

(a) to develop Swakopmund as the principal watering place in South-West Africa;

(b) to make it an educational centre;

(c) by accelerating local passenger traffic between Swakopmund and Walvis Bay to make it a residential suburb of Walvis Bay.

(9) Pensions.—The South-West Administration will be prepared to accept liability for the pensions to which employees of the German Government who are still resident in South-West Africa are entitled on the following conditions:—

(a) The South Africa Administration accepts liability, provided it is confined to "Civil" Servants at present resident in the Territory, who were in the permanent employment of the late German Government or on pension at the 9th July, 1915.

(b) Such liability shall continue only so long as the pensioners remain permanently resident in South-West Africa and accept Union citizenship, if applied to German Nationals automatically by general enactment.

(c) It shall be competent for the South-West Africa Administration to suspend payment of pensions, or to abate the same in accordance with the principles applied in the Union in that behalf, in the case of such of the pensioners as are in the service of the Administration, but for such period only as they may be drawing salaries equal to or in excess of those enjoyed by them at the 9th July, 1915.

Enclosure 2 in No. 225.

YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 1st April, 1924.

In your note of the 30th January last Your Excellency communicated to me the text of an Agreement concluded between the German Government and the Government of the Union of South Africa, respecting the national status of Germans, and other matters affecting them, in the Mandated Territory of South-West Africa.

2. His Majesty's Government note that the Agreement, in so far as it deals with the question of nationality, carries out the policy already endorsed by the Council of the League of Nations, and relates otherwise to matters of administration within the province of the Government of the Union as mandatory.

MR. J. H. THOMAS to GENERAL SMUTS.

[Answered by No. 228.]

DEAR SMUTS,

Downing Street, 16th April, 1924.

I HAVE sent an official despatch* to the Governor-General on the subject of the Agreement which you made last October with representatives of the German Government regarding the position of German nationals in South West Africa. I have not referred to the point in my despatch, but I think that I ought to let you know that the Foreign Office are concerned that the first intimation that this agreement had been made should have reached His Majesty's Government from the German Government, and that His Majesty's Government were not made aware of the negotiations with the German representatives either during their progress or at their conclusion.

I imagine that your omission to mention the matter at the time was due to the great pressure of work connected with the Imperial Conference and to your other important pre-occupations. I notice that the day on which the agreement was signed (the 23rd October, 1923) was that on which you delivered a very important speech on the international situation at the dinner given by the South African Luncheon Club. At the same time, I am sure that you will not mind my mentioning the point, as I gather that it is one to which the Foreign Office attach considerable importance, though they feel that the Resolution of the Imperial Conference as to the Negotiation, etc., of Treaties makes the position quite clear as regards the future.

Yours sincerely,

J. H. THOMAS.

MR. E. J. HARDING to CAPTAIN E. F. C. LANE.

DEAR LANE,

Downing Street, 16th April, 1924.

THE Secretary of State is sending an official despatch to the Governor-General by this mail (No. 117*) inquiring the wishes of the Union Government as to the registration with the Secretariat of the League of Nations of the agreement between General Smuts and representatives of the German Government on the subject of the position of German nationals in South West Africa.

In this connexion I have been asked to explain that hitherto the regular practice of the Foreign Office has been to register with the League Secretariat all treaties with Foreign States as soon as they have been published in the "Treaty Series" of Parliamentary Papers. In accordance with this practice the Agreement renewing Part I of the Mozambique Convention, signed on the 31st March, 1923, has been registered with the League, the matter being dealt with in the Foreign Office as one of ordinary routine. Attention having been called to the point, the Foreign Office at our request are not taking any action as regards registration of the above agreement, and will not take action as regards other international instruments specially affecting the Union, pending an expression of the views of the Union Government on the question raised.

I should be much obliged if you would bring this to the notice of General Smuts and, if he sees no objection, to that of the Department which deals with the official despatch.

Yours sincerely,

E. J. HARDING.

GENERAL SMUTS to MR. J. H. THOMAS.

Prime Minister's Office, Pretoria.

MY DEAR SECRETARY OF STATE,

21st May, 1924.

I HAVE received your letter of the 16th April† regarding the Agreement I made last October concerning the nationality of the inhabitants of South West Africa.

* No. 225. † No. 226.

These negotiations related to matters within the province of the Union as the Mandatory Power, and I think I mentioned to Lord Curzon my intention to try and secure an agreement, knowing it would be easier to effect with the representatives of the German Foreign Office than with ex-Germans in South West Africa, who were likely to try and make use of the opportunity to drive a hard bargain. If I omitted to notify Lord Curzon it was certainly unintentional, and I should be grateful if you would explain this to the Foreign Office. I have at all times received so much assistance from them that I should be the last person to neglect the customary courtesy of keeping them fully informed.

I have asked that the Agreement may be included in the Treaty Series of Parliamentary Papers, and that registration might be effected with the Secretariat of the League of Nations at a convenient opportunity.

With kind regards,

Believe me, yours sincerely,

J. C. SMUTS.

Method of Signature of Treaties on behalf of:

44362

No. 230.

MEMORANDUM.

THE form of declaration to be used by British Empire delegates in signing treaties, conventions or other international instruments on behalf of Great Britain and Northern Ireland only has been under consideration.

The following formula is sufficient for the purpose and will invariably be adopted: "I declare that my signature applies only to Great Britain and Northern Ireland."

This formula should be adopted by any delegates representing His Majesty's Government in any future British Empire delegation in all cases in which they sign such international instruments under full powers from His Majesty The King on behalf of Great Britain and Northern Ireland only. This is particularly important in the case of negotiations under the auspices of the League of Nations.

It has further been decided that the term "Great Britain" should be held for international purposes to include the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man. The term "British Islands," which, under the Interpretation Act, is the one at present in general use when it is desired to include the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man, cannot now be employed with convenience in a treaty because of the status of the Irish Free State.

As the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man have separate legislatures and are for purposes of legislation distinct from Great Britain, it will be necessary to inform the Home Office on each occasion when a treaty is concluded which requires legislation in this country to carry its provisions into effect, in order that that Department may, when necessary, arrange for corresponding legislation in the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man.

SIR,

By my note No. 599 of 3rd March, 1919, I had the honour to inform you of the decision arrived at by the Greek Government to denounce from 3rd March, 1919, all commercial agreements with the British Empire mentioned in my note No. 1640 of 2nd May, 1919, and that pending the conclusion of a new commercial agreement it was the intention of the Greek Government that, failing three months' notice, those instruments should be tacitly renewed for successive periods of three months.

In reply you were good enough to state by your note of 11th June, 1919, that His Majesty's Government had taken note of the intimation conveyed in my aforesaid note, and that they concurred in the proposal of the Greek Government concerning the tacit renewal of the commercial agreements.

I am now instructed by my Government to bring to your knowledge that the Greek Government have decided to terminate the tacit renewal of the commercial instruments in question and to denounce definitely all the above-mentioned commercial agreements which will cease to be in force as from 10th December, 1924.

I have the honour to add that the Greek Government are willing to start at once negotiations with a view to concluding a new Treaty of Commerce and Navigation, and that in those negotiations they will be guided by the sincere desire to arrive at a satisfactory end for both countries.

I should be grateful to you if you would be good enough to bring the aforesaid to the knowledge of the Governments of such Dominions, Colonies, Protectorates and Dependencies of the British Empire who have adhered to the above-mentioned Commercial Agreements.

Should the conclusion of the treaty not be terminated for technical or other reasons, within the fixed period of three months, the Greek Government are disposed, taking into account the common, general and commercial interests of both countries, to consider in a friendly spirit the question of granting to the British Government the lowest duties as fixed in the new Greek Custom Tariff which comes into force on the 10th December, 1924, against the maintenance by His Majesty's Government towards Greece of the existing conventional duties.

The Greek Government are willing to grant this facility in the above-mentioned condition, for a period not exceeding three months from 10th December, 1924, when the aforesaid notification of the Greek Minister is to prove effective.

WITH reference to my predecessor's despatch No. 379 of the 4th October, 1923,† on the subject of the Industrial Property Convention signed at Washington on the 2nd June, 1911, I have the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, the accompanying copy of correspondence with His Majesty's Minister at Helsingfors regarding the protection of Australian trade marks in Finland.

2. Mr. Rennie has been informed that the Commonwealth is a party to the Convention of the 20th March, 1883, but, whether or not any claim to protection of Australian trade marks in Finland can be based on the position of the Commonwealth of Australia as party to this Convention, it seems clear that the difficulty which has been experienced would be removed by the accession of the Commonwealth to the Convention of 1911.

Enclosure 1 in No. 235.

(No. 127.)

SIR,

British Legation, Helsingfors, 26th June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to report that the question has recently arisen whether an Australian trade mark is entitled to protection in this country.

The "Kiwi" Boot Polish Company have been endeavouring to sell their products in Finland, but have found that a local firm are successfully competing with them by selling at a lower price a similar article under the name and general description of "Kiwi" Boot Polish. Their representative here accordingly instituted legal proceedings but lost his case, the Court holding that, in accordance with a decree signed by the President of the Republic in 1921 in which effect was given to the accession of Finland to the Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property signed at Washington on 2nd June, 1911, only such British Empire trade marks as were registered in the United Kingdom, in New Zealand, Ceylon, Trinidad and Tobago were granted the protection of the law.

On consulting the State Papers, I find that His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington, when depositing His Majesty's ratification of the Convention in question, expressly declared that such ratification related only to the United Kingdom and that as regards the Dominions, etc., any notification of accession would form the subject of a separate communication to the Swiss Government (Volume 104, State Papers, page 130). It is stated later on the same page that the accession of the Dominions mentioned in the Finnish Decree was duly notified in 1913.

So far as I can ascertain, none of the remaining Dominions have since acceded—at least before 1920, the State Papers for later years not being in my possession. It would therefore appear that Australia is not a party to the Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property, unless the Australian Government has acceded since 1920. I should therefore be grateful to be informed, if possible by telegraph, whether the Australian Government has acceded to the Convention and whether the Finnish Government can therefore be properly asked to extend to the Dominion in question the protection of trade marks.

The representative of the "Kiwi" Company in Helsingfors has meanwhile entered an appeal against the decision in the Lower Court as mentioned above.

SIR,

WITH reference to your telegram No. 13 of the 12th instant, informing me that Australia had not acceded to the Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property signed in Washington on 2nd June, 1911, I have the honour to transmit herewith copy of a Memorandum prepared by Mr. Mackie on this subject.

Before forwarding this Memorandum, in which the general question of the protection of Dominion trade marks in Finland is raised, it seemed preferable that I should be in possession of definite information as to whether any action could properly be taken in support of the Australian firm. Now, however, that it is clear that no diplomatic support can be given to the claim of the firm in question on the ground of treaty rights, the Memorandum would appear to be of interest as describing clearly the position which industrial concerns domiciled in Dominions other than Ceylon, New Zealand, Trinidad and Tobago, must expect to meet in this country with regard to trade marks, as the result of the non-accession of the respective Dominion Governments to the Convention of 1911. A copy of an extract* from "Finland's Författnings Samling," dated 9th September, 1921, containing the Presidential Decree on which the finding of the Court of Law appears to have been based, is also enclosed herewith.

MEMORANDUM.

In January, 1924, a local firm trading under the name of A. A. Denisoff, N. Esplanadgatan 27, acting as Agents for the Kiwi Polish Company, Pty, Ltd., of Church End, Finchley, London, N.3, interviewed me in the matter of the infringement of the "Kiwi" trade mark by a Finnish firm, Industri Aktiebolaget Tähti Osakeyhtiö of Gräsviksgatan 7, in this city.

It would appear from the conversation that took place with A. A. Denisoff's representative that the Kiwi Polish Company had failed to register their trade mark in this country and that the matter had been placed in the hands of a Finnish lawyer, who entered an action in the Finnish Court at Helsingfors against the Tähti Osakeyhtiö.

In the meantime the lawyer ascertained that the Kiwi Polish Company was an Australian Company and Australia was the country of domicile, that the Company had a branch establishment in Great Britain and the manager of the branch establishment had a power of attorney from the Australian Company to take all necessary measures for the purpose of protecting the trade marks of the Company.

The case came before the Court on the 18th instant and was decided against the Kiwi Polish Company on the ground that, according to a decree signed by the President on the 30th September, 1921, when Finland became a party to the Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property signed at Paris, 20th March, 1900, and at Washington 2nd June, 1911, Australia was not a party to this Convention.

A copy of the above decree is appended hereto, according to which, "Great Britain with Ceylon, Trinidad and Tobago" appear to have become parties to the Convention in question (see page 643 of the Decree), but, in depositing ratification of the Convention, His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington declared (see Annex 1 to the Washington Agreement of 2nd June, 1911, page 130, State Papers, Volume 104, 1911), that the "ratification relates only to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and that, as regards His Britannic Majesty's Dominions, Colonies, Possessions or Protectorates beyond the seas, any notification of accession which it may be desired hereafter to make on their behalf will form the subject of a separate communication to the Government of the Swiss Confederation, in accordance with provisions of Article XVI bis of the Convention."

It would thus appear that Australia has not acceded to the Convention, unless such accession has taken place since 1921, the date of the Finnish decree above referred to.

Under these circumstances the Kiwi Company's lawyer can base his appeal only on the ground that his clients and their trade mark are registered in Great Britain and it would seem doubtful whether such an appeal would be allowed by the Court of Appeal at Abo, seeing that the parent firm is established in Australia.

Although it may not be possible for any diplomatic action to be taken in this particular case, it would appear that, as matters now stand, all trade marks, the original registration of which has been taken out in British Dominions beyond the seas, with the exception of those in the Dominion of New Zealand, Ceylon, Trinidad and Tobago, who have become parties to the Convention, are liable to infringement if not registered in this country, and it would seem most desirable that such a state of things should be removed at the earliest possible date.

a further despatch from His Majesty's Representative at Helsingfors regarding the protection of Australian trade marks in Finland.

2. It is thought that, unless it should be found possible to arrange for the accession of the Commonwealth to the Industrial Property Convention of 1911 at an early date, the simplest procedure for securing protection for Australian trade marks in Finland would be on the lines of that suggested in the fifth and sixth paragraphs of the enclosed despatch. The Finnish Trade Marks Amendment Law of the 3rd June, 1921, provides, inter alia, that any trader of a foreign country in which Finnish citizens enjoy the same advantage may register in Finland under the prescribed conditions any mark duly registered in such foreign country and thereby obtain protection for that mark in Finland. It would, therefore, appear that it would be sufficient for the purpose if the Commonwealth Government were to authorize the giving of an assurance to the Finnish Government that Finnish citizens enjoy in the Commonwealth of Australia the same rights in regard to the registration of trade marks as British subjects domiciled in Australia.

3. I should be glad to learn the views of your Government on the matter.

[46644]

Enclosure in No. 236.

(No. 189.)

SIR,

British Legation, Helsingfors, 15th September, 1924.

WITH reference to your despatch No. 185 of 26th August and to previous correspondence relative to the protection of an Australian trade mark in Finland, I have the honour to subjoin certain observations arising out of discussions which I have recently had with various officials of the Finnish Government on this subject.

2. In the first place, I was informed that the Finnish Government have been duly notified of the accession of Canada to the Convention of 1911 as from the 1st of September, 1923, and that Canadian trade marks accordingly enjoy protection in Finland as from that date: further, the Finnish Government regard the Convention in question as applicable to the Irish Free State.

3. Secondly, with regard to the effect on this question of the provisions of the Anglo-Finnish Commercial Treaty, it should be pointed out that notice in the terms of Article 23 of that instrument has not yet been given in respect of any of His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies, Possessions or Protectorates.

4. Thirdly, the Finnish officials seemed to anticipate some difficulty in framing an appropriate legislative act granting protection to Australian trade marks on the ground of the accession of the latter Dominion to the Convention of 1883—had Australia acceded to that of 1911 no difficulty would, of course, have been encountered. With regard to the question of the grant of special protection to the Kiwi trade mark on the ground of the existence of an effective establishment in Great Britain, it seemed possible that some research might have to be undertaken as to the exact meaning of that term, as any decision reached, being the first of its kind, must constitute a precedent. Moreover, the point was raised that an affirmative decision would only apply to the Kiwi trade mark, and that the question of any other Australian trade mark for which protection might be sought must be considered on its merits, and might even be prejudiced should it be impossible in a subsequent case to rely on the grounds of effective establishment in the United Kingdom.

5. It may also be useful to observe that, as previous negotiations have shown, notably the question of the reduction in the fees for permis de séjour payable by British subjects in Finland (see Mr. Rennie's despatch No. 155 of 24th July), the Finnish Government have a marked predilection for the principle of reciprocity and are reluctant to commit themselves to abstract definitions. In a discussion with a high official of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to-day, the latter informed me that they had no official knowledge that Finnish citizens enjoyed in Australia under the Trade Marks Law of the Commonwealth the same rights in regard to trade marks as if Finland was a party to the Industrial Property Convention of 1883. Should they be officially informed to that effect, he had not the slightest doubt that similar protection would be accorded to Australian trade marks in Finland. The agreement could be recorded by a simple exchange of notes.

6. This suggestion would appear to indicate an effective form in which representations might be made to the Finnish Government, and I venture to suggest that, should you approve this course, I might be instructed to address a Note to the Finnish Government requesting that, as the Commonwealth of Australia has, in fact, accorded to Finnish citizens the same rights as if Finland were a party to the Convention of 1883, the Finnish Government should, on grounds of reciprocity, extend the same rights in regard to the protection of Australian trade marks as if the Commonwealth were a party to the revised Convention of 1911.

7. I should mention in conclusion that none of the other arguments has, of course, been abandoned, and it would still be possible to press any of the others should it be considered by His Majesty's Government to furnish a more suitable basis for an eventual agreement.

8. It appears unnecessary to take any immediate formal steps, as the firm handling the products of the Kiwi Company in Finland is at present undergoing reconstruction, for reasons entirely distinct from the subject of this despatch, and are unlikely to transact any business for some two months. I propose, therefore, to make no official representations pending the receipt of your instructions as to the advisability of choosing the alternative line of argument indicated above.

IRISH FREE STATE.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

[Answered by No. 238.]

(No. 49.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 22nd January, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch No. 362 of the 22nd December,* regarding the ratification of the Protocol embodying an amendment to Article 393 of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding Articles of the other Treaties of Peace.

2. It is, of course, fully understood that the Government of the Irish Free State are responsible for acts done in the name of, and on behalf of, the Irish Free State, but the circumstances of the particular case under discussion were very exceptional and it may be well to set out the facts fully.

3. The amendment in question was adopted by the General Conference of the International Labour Organization on the 18th October, 1922. In accordance with Article 422 of the Treaty of Versailles it could not come into force until ratified by the States whose representatives compose the Council of the League of Nations and by three-fourths of the Members. Accordingly, in March, 1923, it was intimated to the Governments of the Dominions, which were then separate Members of the League, that His Majesty's Government were prepared to accept the proposed amendment and proposed to advise His Majesty the King to ratify. The Governments of those Dominions were also asked whether they wished the amendment to be ratified on their behalf. I enclose a copy of the telegram† sent. Replies in the affirmative were received at various dates during March and April.

4. Subsequently the French Government suggested that, as a matter of constitutional procedure, it would be best that the amendment should be embodied in a signed Protocol, and following on this suggestion a Protocol was drawn up for signature by the Members of the International Labour Organization and for ratification after signature. An enquiry was addressed to the Dominion Members of the League in June, 1923, whether they desired signature of this Protocol on their behalf. I enclose a copy of the telegram* sent. Replies in the affirmative were received at various dates during July and August.

* No. 182 in Dominions No. 88.

5. At the time of this correspondence, the Irish Free State was not represented in the International Labour Organization, since, not having been admitted to separate Membership of the League, it was not yet a separate Member of the Organization. Consequently it was not thought that the Free State would wish to be consulted as to the Protocol which, as indicated in my despatch No. 695 of the 6th December,† related only to the composition of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office. Since, however, the effect of the Protocol was to modify the provisions of the various Treaties of Peace, it was necessary for the Instrument of Ratification to be so drawn as formally to embrace the whole Empire, including those parts not represented in the International Labour Organization.

6. I should observe that it was considered important at the time of the correspondence referred to in paragraph 4, that His Majesty's ratification of the Protocol should be deposited before the opening of the International Labour Conference in October, 1923, and endeavour was made to secure that signature on behalf of the various parts of the Empire which were Members of the League should be completed immediately after the opening of the Assembly in September, in order to render this possible. In actual fact, owing to unforeseen circumstances, this anticipation was not fulfilled, and His Majesty's ratification was delayed.

7. I may add that it has, of course, been appreciated that, in the case of Conventions negotiated at International Labour Conferences, no action could be taken, since the establishment of the Irish Free State, which would involve obligations on your Ministers, except in consultation with them and, as will be seen from my despatch No. 456 of the 1st August,‡ steps were taken in the case of certain Conventions ratified after the establishment of the Irish Free State, to exclude the Free State from the ratification.

8. In the circumstances, it would seem very desirable that action should be taken to signify that the Irish Free State is included in the list of States, now Members of the International Labour Organization, which have accepted the Protocol, and I hope that in the light of this despatch, your Ministers would be willing that notification in this sense should be made to the Secretary-General and the International Labour Office.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL to THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 3rd March, 1924.)

[Answered by No. 239.]

(No. 77.)

SIR,

Vice Regal Lodge, Dublin, 1st March, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge receipt of the Duke of Devonshire's despatch No. 49 of the 22nd January,§ regarding the ratification of the Protocol embodying an amendment to Article 393 of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding Articles of the other Treaties of Peace.

2. While my Ministers appreciate that, as the effect of the Protocol was to modify the provisions of the various Treaties of Peace, it was necessary that the ratification should include the whole Empire, nevertheless they regret that the procedure outlined in the Duke of Devonshire's despatch No. 49§ and already adopted in the case of certain Conventions set out in His Grace's despatch No. 456 of 1st August, 1923,‡ was not adhered to in the present instance.

§ No. 237.

3. In the circumstances they desire that His Majesty should be asked to issue a separate ratification in respect of the Irish Free State, and they would be obliged if you would take steps to obtain His Majesty's ratification and forward it to them for transmission to the Secretariat of the League of Nations.

I have, &c.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 342.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 4th June, 1924.

WITH reference to Your Excellency's despatch No. 77 of the 1st March* regarding the ratification of the protocol embodying an amendment to Article 393 of the Treaty of Versailles and the corresponding Articles of the other Treaties of Peace, I have the honour to request you to inform your Ministers that it is regretted that the deposit of a further ratification in respect of the Irish Free State is not feasible, since this procedure would not strengthen the participation of the Irish Free State in the protocol but might be interpreted as casting doubt on the validity of His Majesty's original ratification.

2. In the circumstances I should be glad to learn whether your Ministers see any objection to the adoption of the procedure suggested in the eighth paragraph of my predecessor's despatch No. 49 of the 22nd January,† whereby action would be taken to signify to the Secretariat of the League and to the International Labour Office that the Irish Free State is included in the list of States, now Members of the International Labour Organization, which have accepted the protocol.

I have, &c.,

J. H. THOMAS.

Note.—No reply had been received to this despatch up to the end of 1924.

(2) Position of Irish Free State in relation to International Labour Conventions.

No. 240.

IRISH FREE STATE.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 28.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 15th January, 1924.

IN view of the admission of the Irish Free State to Membership of the League of Nations, and consequently of the International Labour Organization established under Part XIII of the Treaty of Versailles, the following account of the position with regard to the work of the International Labour Conference may be of interest to Your Excellency's Ministers.

2. The Conventions and Recommendations adopted at the various sessions of the International Labour Conference prior to the admission of the Irish Free State to Membership of the Organization are contained in the following Parliamentary Papers, copies of which are enclosed:—

Cmd. 627 (First Session, held at Washington, October-November, 1919).

Cmd. 1174 (Second Session, held at Genoa, June-July, 1920).

Cmd. 1612 (Third Session, held at Geneva, October-November, 1921).

Cmd. 1836 (Fourth Session, held at Geneva, October-November, 1922).

3. The following five Conventions were confirmed and approved on the 5th July, 1921, by Orders of the Lords of the Council, copies of which are enclosed.

* No. 238.

† No. 237.

It will be observed that the confirmation and approval was given in respect of the United Kingdom, and in consequence covers the Irish Free State.

(1) Convention concerning Unemployment (pp. 12-14 of Cmd. 627).

(2) Convention concerning the Employment of Women during the night (pp. 22-25 of Cmd. 627).

(3) Convention fixing the Minimum Age for Admission of Children to Industrial Employment (pp. 30-33 of Cmd. 627).

(4) Convention concerning the Night Work of Young Persons employed in Industry (pp. 34-37 of Cmd. 627).

(5) Convention fixing the Minimum Age for Admission of Children to Employment at Sea (pp. 7-10 of Cmd. 1174).

4. The legislation giving effect to these five Conventions is as follows:—

(1) The Labour Exchanges Act, 1909, and the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920-1923.

(2), (3), (4) and (5). The Employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act, 1920.

5. As regards the second of these Conventions, I would observe that an earlier Convention on the same subject was signed at Berne on the 26th September, 1906. His Majesty's ratification of this Convention was deposited on the 24th September, 1907.

6. As stated in my despatch No. 456 of the 1st August, 1923,* two further Conventions, viz., those relating to the Rights of Association and Combination of Agricultural Workers (pp. 17-19 of Cmd. 1612) and Workmen's Compensation in Agriculture (pp. 20-23 of Cmd. 1612) were confirmed and approved by His Majesty's Government in July, 1923, but, in view of the establishment of the Irish Free State, this confirmation and approval did not extend to the Free State. Copies of the Orders of Council relating to these Conventions are enclosed. The remaining Conventions have not been confirmed and approved by His Majesty's Government, though confirmation and approval of the two Conventions printed on pp. 36-43 of Cmd. 1612 (viz., those dealing with (a) minimum age for the admission of young persons to employment as trimmers or stokers; (b) compulsory medical examination of children and young persons employed at sea), has merely been withheld pending the passing of the legislation required to give effect to their provisions.

7. The recommendations which have been accepted, either wholly or in part, in respect of the United Kingdom and the legislation giving effect to their provisions are as follows:—

Recommendation.

Legislation.

(1) Unemployment—Articles 3 and 4 only, Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920-1923.
(pp. 15-16 of Cmd. 627).

(2) Prevention of Anthrax (page 26 of Cmd. 627). Anthrax Prevention Act, 1919.

(3) Protection of Women and Children against Lead Poisoning (pp. 27-28 of Cmd. 627). Women and Young Persons (Employment in Lead Processes) Act, 1920.

(4) Establishment of Government Health Services (page 29 of Cmd. 627).

(5) Unemployment Insurance for Seamen Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920-1923.
(pp. 10-11 of Cmd. 1174).

8. As regards the second of these recommendations, it may be observed that the Anthrax Prevention Act, 1919, was passed before the adoption of the recommendation, and in fact led up to it.

9. The recommendations adopted at the first Session of the Conference included one to the effect that Members of the International Labour Organization, which had not already done so, should adhere to the International Convention adopted at Berne in 1906, on the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches (page 38 of Cmd. 627). No action was required on the part of His Majesty's Government in connexion with this Recommendation as the United Kingdom had already acceded to the Convention of 1906 on the 28th December, 1903, and effect had been given to the Convention by the White Phosphorus Matches Prohibition Act, 1908.

* 35978/23: not printed; it notified the confirmation and approval, on behalf of Great Britain, of the Conventions referred to.

10. The acceptance of certain of the other recommendations in respect of this country is contemplated, but no communication has been made to the International Labour Office on the subject.

SIR, Downing Street, 18th February, 1924.
As Your Excellency's Ministers are aware, notification of accession has been given on behalf of the Irish Free State to the Madrid Convention on the subject of the Universal Postal Union and to the International Telegraph Convention, see my predecessor's despatches No. 584 of the 29th September* and No. 635 of the 5th November.†

2. As intimated in the latter despatch it is contemplated that in the near future a World Conference on Electrical Communications should be held, and it is possible that this Conference may be considered as taking the place of a Conference of the Radio Telegraph Union under the Radio Telegraph Convention of 1912, a copy of which was enclosed in that despatch.

3. I should be glad to learn whether, in order that there may be no doubt as to the right of the Irish Free State to participate in any International Conference on Radio Telegraphy, your Ministers would wish that notice of accession to the Radio Telegraph Convention should be given on behalf of the Irish Free State as in the case of the Conventions referred to in the first paragraph of this despatch. If so, His Majesty's Government, as the Government of the country in which the last Radio Telegraph Conference was held, will take the necessary steps under Article 16 to give effect to your Minister's wishes.

2. I have to add that the Postal Telegraph Administration of the Irish Free State desires to be put in the third class of Administrations for the purpose of contribution to the expenses of the International Bureau under Article 43 of the Service Regulations appended to the Convention in question.

MONSIEUR LE PRÉSIDENT DU CONSEIL,

UNDER instructions from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that, in deference to the views of the Government of the Republic as expressed in your Note of 4th November last, the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia have modified the terms of their reservation in acceding to the International Sanitary Convention of 1912, in such a manner that it is now couched in similar terms to that of the United States Government. The reservation runs as follows:—

"The Commonwealth Government accedes to the Convention under the reserve that nothing in Article 9 of the Convention will be considered as prohibiting the Commonwealth of Australia from taking special quarantine measures against the infection of its ports which unusual sanitary conditions may render necessary. Whilst making this reserve, the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia does not contemplate any infringement of the basic regulations of the Convention."

I have the honour, therefore, to request that Your Excellency may be so good as to cause the accession of the Commonwealth of Australia to the Convention, subject to the above quoted reservation, to be placed on record and all other parties concerned to be notified accordingly.

I have, &c.,

His Excellency

Monsieur Raymond Poincaré,
President of the Council,
Minister for Foreign Affairs.

MY LORD,

British Embassy, Paris, 22nd December, 1923.

IN accordance with the instructions contained in Your Lordship's despatch No. 3795 of the 4th instant, I have caused inquiries to be made of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs as to the actual date which may have been recorded as that on which the accession of the Commonwealth of Australia to the International Sanitary Convention of 1912 took place.

I have the honour to inform Your Lordship that as the Commonwealth of Australia acceded to the Convention in question, subject to the reservation contained in Your Lordship's despatch No. 1434 of 25th April, the Ministry for Foreign Affairs has inquired of the various countries signatory to the Convention whether these have any objection to the accession of the Commonwealth of Australia, subject to the reservation in question. Definite replies that they have no objection have been received from all countries signatory to the Convention, except the following:—

Brazil.	Portugal.
Hungary.	Serbia.
Bolivia.	Uruguay.
Bulgaria.	Honduras.
Chile.	Danzig.
Ecuador.	Poland and
Persia.	Roumania.

The official concerned at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs has informed a member of my staff that a further communication is being sent by the French Government to these countries, requesting early notification as to whether they have any objection to the accession of the Commonwealth of Australia, subject to this reservation. As soon as definite replies have been received from these countries to the effect that they have no objection to the accession of the Commonwealth of Australia to the Convention, this accession will be notified to all the signatory Powers as having taken place on the date of the despatch of my Note notifying the accession; this date was 27th April, 1923.

SE référant à la note du Foreign Office en date du 27 juillet dernier, relative au rattachement éventuel de l'Office International des Epizooties à la Société des Nations, le Chargé d'Affaires de France a l'honneur de porter à la connaissance de Son Excellence le Principal Secrétaire d'Etat de Sa Majesté britannique aux Affaires Etrangères que, selon le Gouvernement français, il appartiendra aux Etats adhérents à l'Office en question de décider si cet Office doit être rattaché à l'Office International d'Hygiène Publique, s'il doit l'être à la Société des Nations, s'il est possible et s'il convient de le rattacher à ces deux organismes à la fois ou de ne le rattacher à aucun d'eux.

La lettre de cette Ambassade au Foreign Office, en date du 15 octobre, 1922, a, d'ailleurs, précisé les conditions dans lesquelles la question se pose aux yeux de M. Poincaré. SIR, Downing Street, 6th June, 1924.
I HAVE the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a memorandum from the Czechoslovak Minister regarding the constitutional position of the Irish Free State, with special reference to the conclusion of international treaties.

2. Subject to your Ministers' concurrence, His Majesty's Government would propose to reply as regards the first part of the inquiry by sending the Czechoslovak Minister a copy of the notice published in the Madrid Gazette, dated the 14th March, 1924, of which a copy was enclosed in my despatch No. 216 of the 5th April.†

* No. 262. † No. 656 (in Part II).

3. As regards the second part of the inquiry it would be explained, if your Ministers agree, that the Irish Free State is a self-governing Dominion, that its status is defined in the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922, and in the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922, and that information in regard to the practice contemplated in future as to the negotiation, signature and ratification of treaties on behalf of the various parts of the British Empire is to be found in Chapter IX of the Summary of the Proceedings of the Imperial Conference, 1923 (Cmd. 1987). Copies of the above-mentioned documents would be sent to the Minister, together with copies of the clauses usually inserted in commercial treaties regarding their application to His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies, Possessions and Protectorates. Copies of these clauses* are enclosed herewith.

4. His Majesty's Government would further propose to explain that commercial treaties concluded before the constitution of the Irish Free State as a self-governing Dominion apply to the Free State, that no separate commercial arrangements have so far been made between the Irish Free State and any country other than Spain, but that His Majesty's Government have since the date of the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922, concluded treaties of commerce or provisional commercial arrangements not only with Czechoslovakia but also with Poland, Latvia, Finland and Roumania, and that it is open to the Irish Free State to have the stipulations of any of these treaties or arrangements applied to it in accordance with the procedure referred to at the end of the preceding paragraph of this despatch.

5. As regards the texts of the above-mentioned instruments I would request you to invite your Ministers' reference to my predecessor's despatches No. 455 of the 1st August, 1923,† No. 759 of the 31st December, 1923,‡ No. 413 of the 13th July, 1923,§ and Dominions No. 29 of the 23rd January, 1924,|| and, in the case of the Arrangement with Roumania to No. 15 of the Treaty Series (1923) (Cmd. 1925), of which copies were sent to you on the 7th August, 1923.¶

6. As the Czechoslovak Minister is pressing for an early reply, I shall be glad to learn as soon as possible whether your Ministers concur in a reply being sent to him on the above lines.

I have, &c.,
J. H. THOMAS.

MEMORANDUM.

ON 14th March, 1924, there was published at Madrid the exchange of Notes between the Spanish Ministry for Foreign Affairs and His Britannic Majesty's Ambassador, by which Spanish-Irish commercial relations are adjusted.

The Czechoslovak Ministry for Foreign Affairs wishes to be furnished with a report on the matter, and also to know the particulars regarding the constitutional position of Ireland, especially in regard to the conclusion of international treaties and politico-commercial autonomy in general.

The Czechoslovak Ministry for Foreign Affairs desires also to be informed which British commercial treaties apply to the Irish Free State, and with which countries, besides Spain, politico-commercial relations with Ireland have hitherto been independently adjusted.

2. My Ministers have given careful consideration to the reply which His Majesty's Government propose to send to the inquiry of the Czechoslovak Minister. In their opinion paragraph 4 of the despatch under reply relative to the Irish Free State's position regarding commercial treaties is not made sufficiently clear, and they request that His Majesty's Government should inform the Czechoslovak Minister that the Irish Free State is competent to conclude commercial treaties with any foreign State should such a course be deemed necessary.

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 26th July, 1924.

IN your memorandum No. 1451 you expressed a wish to be furnished with information concerning the commercial modus vivendi recently concluded between Spain and the Irish Free State and the constitutional position of Ireland in regard to international treaties.

2. In reply to the first part of your inquiry I have the honour to transmit, herewith, a copy of a notice published in the Madrid Gazette, dated 14th March last, regarding the conclusion of a commercial modus vivendi between Spain and the Irish Free State. In regard to the second part of your inquiry I have the honour to state that the Irish Free State is a self-governing Dominion, and that her status is defined in the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922, and in the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922. Information in regard to the practice contemplated in future as to the negotiation, signature and ratification of treaties by the various parts of the British Empire will be found in Chapter 9 of the summary of the proceedings of the Imperial Conference, 1923. I have the honour to enclose copies of the above-mentioned documents, and also of the clause usually inserted in commercial treaties regarding their application to His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies, Possessions and Protectorates.

3. Commercial treaties concluded before the constitution of the Irish Free State as a self-governing Dominion apply to that State. It is within the competence of the Irish Free State to conclude separate commercial treaties with any foreign State, should such a course be deemed necessary. No such action has as yet been taken, nor have any separate commercial arrangements so far been made between the Irish Free State and any country other than Spain.

4. It may also be mentioned that His Majesty's Government have since the date of the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922, concluded treaties of commerce or provisional commercial arrangements not only with Czechoslovakia, but also with Poland, Latvia, Finland and Roumania, and it is open to the Irish Free State

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.
(No. 104.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 18th February, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers, in connexion with the position of the Irish Free State in relation to those International Conventions, etc., which were signed prior to the legalization of the Treaty and were, on the 31st March, 1922, awaiting formal ratification, that, in accordance with the understanding reached as the result of the third paragraph of the letter from the Colonial Office to the Provisional Government of Ireland of the 2nd May, 1922, and of Mr. O'Hegarty's reply of the 5th May,* the majority of the instruments in question, as shown in the attached Schedule, have now been ratified by the King.

2. As regards the Treaties signed at the Washington Conference relating to submarines and noxious gases, and to China, which are mentioned in the enclosed list, the position is that the instruments of His Majesty's ratification of these Treaties have been signed and were forwarded to His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington on the 11th August, 1922, for communication to the United States Government and for deposit in their archives. The instruments have, however, not yet been deposited, since it was intimated to His Majesty's Ambassador that the United States Government were unwilling to receive His Majesty's ratifications until a date could be fixed on which all Powers could deposit their ratifications simultaneously. This has so far proved impossible owing to the fact that certain foreign Powers have not yet ratified the Treaties in question.

3. The Arms Traffic Convention of the 10th September, 1919, still remains unratified by His Majesty; the position as regards this Convention was set out in my Predecessor's despatches Nos. 579 and 618 of the 26th September and the 24th October last.†

(No. 33.)

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 18th January, 1924.

In confirmation of my telegram of the 11th January,† I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that the exchange of ratifications of the Italo-Canadian Commercial Convention was duly effected with the Italian Ambassador on the 8th January. It is now proposed, as in the case of the Commercial Convention between Canada and France (see my despatch Dominions No. 441 of 24th November†), to publish the Convention in the Treaty Series of Parliamentary Papers.

2. I take this opportunity to enclose a copy of a despatch from His Majesty's Ambassador at Rome regarding the discussion on the Treaty in the Italian Senate.

I have, &c.,
DEVONSHIRE.

Enclosure in No. 269.

(No. 1101.)

MY LORD,

Rome, 13th December, 1923.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 1062, of 30th November, regarding the Treaty concluded between Italy and the Canadian Government, I have the honour to report that the Bill converting into law the decree confirming this Treaty was discussed and passed by the Senate on 10th December.

During the discussion, Signor Luzzatti said he would have liked to see the question regarding shipment of goods cleared up. By effect of the Convention Italy acquired rights and undertook obligations which were similar to those contained in the Franco-Canadian Agreement, which prescribed that French goods imported into Canada should be disembarked in Canadian ports, and reciprocally that Canadian goods be disembarked in French ports. Italy was not yet in a position to undertake to carry goods direct to Canada, and could only send her goods there from ports in countries enjoying the same rights as France enjoyed. During the discussion of the Convention on 2nd May, 1923, in the Canadian Parliament, some members had held that they should be exonerated from having to import directly, but the Canadian Minister of Finance replied that countries enjoying the benefit granted to France must also accept the responsibilities accepted by that country.

Signor Luzzatti continued by asking the Government to state if this delicate point was discussed by the Italian negotiators in London, and if the discussion did not take place, he suggested that the point should be raised. He also pointed out the advantage which would be derived from clearing up the question of the most-favoured-nation treatment.

* No. 208 in Dominions No. 88. † No. 269. ‡ 55530/23; not printed; it enclosed copies of the Convention.

The Minister of National Economy replied that assuredly the most-favoured-nation treatment was due to Italy.

On the question of direct shipments, he observed that if Italian goods had to be embarked in a French or British port which enjoyed the most-favoured-nation treatment this would not necessarily entail a severe loss. The Italian representative in Canada had, however, been informed of the question, which was not specially mentioned in the Convention.

Signor Orlando explained that direct communications with Canada were temporarily suspended because shipowners had asked for facilities regarding emigration, whereupon Signor Soderini asked if there existed difficulties about emigration.

The Minister for National Economy replied that emigration to Canada was not much sought after by Italian workmen, many going there only in the hope of overcoming the difficulties of immigration to the United States.

R. GRAHAM.

MR. E. J. HARDING (COLONIAL OFFICE) to MR. F. A. MCGREGOR (CANADA).

DEAR MCGREGOR,

Downing Street, 7th March, 1924.

THE Secretary of State is sending an official despatch to the Governor-General by this mail (No. 108),* inquiring the wishes of the Canadian Government as to the registration of the Italo-Canadian Commercial Convention with the Secretariat of the League of Nations.

In this connexion I have been asked to explain that hitherto the regular practice of the Foreign Office has been to register with the League Secretariat all treaties with foreign States as soon as they have been published in the "Treaty Series" of Parliamentary Papers. In accordance with this practice, the Franco-Canadian Commercial Convention of 1922 (Treaty Series No. 25 of 1923), as well as certain previous instruments specially affecting Canada, of which I enclose a list, have been registered with the League, the matter being dealt with in the Foreign Office as one of ordinary routine. Attention having been called to the point, the Foreign Office at our request are not taking any action as regards registration of the Italo-Canadian Convention and will not take action as regards other treaties specially affecting Canada, pending an expression of the views of the Canadian Government on the question raised.

I should be much obliged if you would bring this to the notice of Mr. Mackenzie King, and, if he sees no objection, to that of the Department which deals with the official despatch.

Yours sincerely,
E. J. HARDING.

Enclosure in No. 277.

(No. 47.)

SIR, Japanese Embassy, London, W., 21st March, 1924.

UNDER instructions from my Government, I have the honour to inform you that my Government have come to a decision to propose to the Governments of countries who are parties to the Commercial Treaties with Japan, of which the original periods of operation have already expired, that arrangements should now be made, with a view to retaining the provisions of those Treaties with certain amendments which they deem necessary, instead of seeing them terminated.

* Nos. 273 and 274.

2. I am accordingly instructed to submit to the most favoured and sympathetic consideration of your Government the amendments set forth in the Memorandum (A) attached to this note, which my Government propose to make, in the form of a Treaty or Agreement, to the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between Great Britain and Japan, signed at London, 3rd April, 1911. In this connexion, the attention of your Government is specially invited to the fact that the original period of operation of this Treaty expired on the 16th July last, while on the other hand great changes have been brought about through the War in the economic conditions of the world. The considerations that prompted my Government to propose these amendments are stated in Memorandum (B) attached to this note.

3. I beg to inform you further that it is also desired by my Government that this opportunity should be taken of extending the scope of the Convention relating to the Commercial Relations between Japan and India, signed at Tokyo, 29th August, 1904, so as to comprise matters concerning entry and residence in the respective Territories, as well as matters regarding industry and navigation.

4. The Japanese Government also desire to conclude with the Government of Canada a tariff convention with a view to the advancement of the commercial relations between the two countries.

5. Furthermore, I am directed to express the earnest desire of the Japanese Government that the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand and the Union of South Africa may be able to see their way to adhere to the Anglo-Japanese Commercial Treaty. In order to facilitate this, the Japanese Government are prepared to accept certain exceptions which may be proposed by any of the Governments of those British Dominions to the general application of the provisions of that Treaty, so long as the most-favoured-nation treatment as regards entry, residence, industry, customs duties and vessels is assured. They are, moreover, prepared to enter into some understanding with each of them with regard to the restriction of immigration, in a manner similar to the existing arrangements between Japan and Canada. I should, therefore, be grateful if you would be so good as to communicate the above desire of my Government to the Governments in question.

6. If any of the Governments concerned have no objection in principle to the proposals mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs from 3 to 5, it would seem expedient that negotiations in details should be left to the Japanese Consular Official at Calcutta, Ottawa, Sydney or Cape Town, and the Representative of the Local Government.

I have, &c.,
HAYASHI.

The Right Honourable James Ramsay MacDonald, M.P.,
Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Foreign Office.

MEMORANDUM (A).

THE AMENDMENT PROPOSED BY THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT TO THE TREATY OF COMMERCE AND NAVIGATION BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND JAPAN, SIGNED AT LONDON, 3RD APRIL, 1911.

1. ARTICLE VIII and the Schedule annexed to the Treaty should cease to be operative after the 30th September, 1924.

2. At the end of Paragraph 1 of Article XXI the following words should be added:—

"Under the condition of reciprocity, if such condition is required by the laws of the country or by the terms of an arrangement by which special concessions in that respect may be granted to any third country."

3. In Article XXV the words "within a limited zone on each side of the frontier" should be suppressed, and the words "so long as such concessions are not extended to any other country" should be inserted instead thereof.

4. To Article XXVI the following paragraph should be added:—

"It is understood, however, that the stipulations of the present Treaty should be applied to all Japanese Possessions and all Territories under Japanese administration."

5. In Paragraph 2 of Article XXVII the words "and also as regards all Japanese Possessions and Territories under Japanese administration to which the present Treaty is applicable" should be inserted after the words "the present Treaty may have been made applicable," and before the words "in virtue of Article 26. . . ."

MEMORANDUM (B).

BRIEF EXPLANATION ON THE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS OF THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT.

1. ARTICLE VIII of the present Treaty and the Schedule annexed thereto were formulated solely in deference to the strong desire expressed by the British Government at the time of the conclusion of the Treaty, but the Japanese Government have from the outset always found them to be of great disadvantage to Japan. Indeed, they could have abrogated the Article and the Schedule whenever they pleased, but they have refrained from doing so until after the expiration of the original period of operation of the whole Treaty, regard having been paid to the wishes of the British Government. In these circumstances, and now in view of the great changes in the economic conditions throughout the world, which might almost be called revolutionary, it is earnestly hoped that the British Government will be able to see their way to consent to conclude a separate Agreement, making this Article and the Schedule inoperative after a period of about six months from the date of this proposal.

2. The Japanese Government are now in the course of studying the advisability of allowing coasting trade to foreign ships under the condition of reciprocity. The Amendment (2) is proposed in the hope that a decision to this effect may be come to in future. In that event, it is the intention of the Japanese Government to open negotiations first with the British Government on the subject.

3. The Amendment (3) is proposed in order to reserve a freedom similar to that enjoyed by some other Powers in relation to special tariff concessions which may be granted to frontier traffic, with the object of encouraging regional economic relations. The Japanese Government are seeking no exceptional privilege beyond what other Powers are enjoying.

4. The Amendment (4) is proposed in order to make clear that Chosen, Formosa, the South Saghalien, the Leased Territory of Kwantung and the railway zone attached thereto, over which the administration of the Government of Kwantung extends, as well as the Territories under the Japanese Mandate, are within the scope of the present Treaty, and to claim at the same time that, so far as the present Treaty is concerned, these Territories will be treated in every respect on exactly the same footing as Japan Proper. For instance, articles, the produce or manufacture of these Territories, will not be held to be "articles of foreign origin," provided for in Article VII.

5. The Amendment (5) is proposed to make the provisions of Article XXVII entirely bilateral.

(Translation.)

NOTIFICATION OF THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT, 15TH APRIL.

THE present Anglo-Japanese Treaty of Commerce and Navigation signed in April, 1911, having reached its term on 16th July, 1923, the Imperial Government have taken into account the results of the Great European War and the great changes which have occurred in the economic conditions of the whole world. They accordingly hope to make certain necessary alterations both in the Anglo-Japanese Treaty and in the present Commercial Treaties with other foreign Powers and thus to adapt them to the existing state of the trade and industry of the Empire. Negotiations have commenced in London since March last; and while the Imperial Government is still in the midst of amending these points regarding the Anglo-Japanese Treaty, the British Government have concurred with them in regard to the abrogation of Article 8 of the Treaty and the tariff schedule annexed thereto. So this Article and schedule will terminate on 10th March, 1925, and will lose their validity on that date. In view of the fact that this unofficial decision to terminate must have a very considerable effect on the trade relations of the two countries, the respective delegates have agreed to publish it informally as quickly as possible. The abrogation of Article 8 and the annexed schedule will be effected for this reason as soon as possible by formal procedure through an exchange of official notes between the two Governments. This abrogation of Article 8 and of the annexed schedule will be concluded on the completion of the formal procedure. At the time of the completion of this procedure, a formal notification (whether amended or not) will be made.

SIR,

IN my Note No. 47 of 21st March‡ I had the honour to inform you of my Government's desire to conclude an agreement with regard to Article VIII of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between Japan and Great Britain, signed on the 3rd April, 1911, and with regard to the schedule annexed thereto, in order that both the article and the schedule might be rendered inoperative at an early date convenient to both parties.

2. On 11th March I had given formal notification, in compliance with Article VIII of the Treaty, that my Government wished to make modifications in the schedule; but since their desire is to abrogate entirely both the article and the schedule, the procedure for negotiation and modification, as laid down in the article, appears to be unsuitable in the present circumstances.

3. I hope, therefore, that your Government will concur in accepting the above date of 11th March as the commencement of twelve months' notice of the abrogation of both Article VIII of the Treaty and the schedule annexed thereto, which would accordingly lose their validity and cease to operate at midnight on 10th March, 1925.

[Not to Irish Free State: WITH reference to my predecessor's Confidential despatch Dominions No. 73 of the 5th of March, 1923,†] I have the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] for the information of your Ministers, the accompanying copy of correspondence with the United States Ambassador relative to the Rules for the Control of Radio in Time of War and Rules of Aerial Warfare drawn up by the International Commission of Jurists which met at The Hague from December, 1922, to February, 1923.

[To Irish Free State only: 2. A copy of the General Report‡ of the Commission of Jurists upon the Revision of the Rules of Warfare is enclosed herewith.]

I have, &c.,

Enclosure 1 in No. 288.

(No. 44.)

SIR,

Embassy of the United States of America, London,
13th February, 1924.

THE Conference on the Limitation of Armament at Washington adopted on 4th February, 1922, a Resolution for the appointment of a Commission representing the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan to consider the following questions:—

* No. 283. † Not printed: it enclosed copies of the Report of the Commission (see Cmd 2201).
‡ Not printed here (see Cmd 2201).

- (a) Do existing rules of international law adequately cover new methods of attack or defence resulting from the introduction or development, since the Hague Conference of 1907, of new agencies of warfare?
- (b) If not so, what changes in the existing rules ought to be adopted in consequence thereof as a part of the law of nations?

Article IV of the Resolution declared:

"that the Commission shall report its conclusions to each of the Powers represented in its membership. Those Powers shall thereupon confer as to the acceptance of the report and the course to be followed to secure the consideration of its recommendations by the other civilized Powers."

With the unanimous concurrence of the Powers mentioned in the above Resolution an invitation to participate in the work of the Commission was extended to and accepted by the Netherlands Government. Moreover, it was agreed that the programme of the Commission should be limited to the preparation of Rules relating to Aerial Warfare, and to Rules relating to the Use of Radio in Time of War.

A Commission of Jurists representative of the six Powers mentioned met in conference at The Hague from 11th December, 1922, to 19th February, 1923. That Commission has prepared a set of Rules for the Control of Radio in Time of War, and also a set of Rules for Aerial Warfare which were reported to the Powers aforesaid by the Commission. In its Report the Commission expressed belief "that if these sets of rules are approved and brought into force, it will be found expedient to make provision for their re-examination after a relatively brief term of years to see whether any revision is necessary."

The Government of the United States is led to believe that the Rules as reported represent a finer achievement with respect to the matters dealt with than could be anticipated from the action of any other international body, and that they mark a distinct step forward in promoting the work of international justice in time of war. It is, therefore, disposed to initiate proceedings looking to the adoption of the Rules by the several Powers which co-operated in their formulation. My Government is accordingly prepared to make known to the other interested Powers its readiness, in conjunction with them, to accept both sets of Rules as reported, and to make inquiry whether they would be disposed to conclude Conventions in such a sense, annexing the Rules thereto. As an appropriate basis for such Conventions, my Government believes that the outline of a treaty proposed by the American delegation on the Commission of Jurists on 12th February, 1923, would suffice. That Convention, embracing three short Articles, provides after a preamble (a) for the issuance of instructions to military and naval forces in conformity with the annexed Rules respecting the use of aircraft (or radio telegraphy); (b) that the annexed Rules be regarded not as superseding but as supplementing the Rules as they may from time to time exist, the observance of which in warfare is enjoined by international law and usage, by international conventions, and by the dictates of humanity and the public conscience; and (c) that the annexed Rules shall remain in force until 1st July, 1933, and that in case none of the Contracting Parties shall, eighteen months before that date, have given notice of a desire for the revision of the Rules, they shall continue in force until the expiration of eighteen months after notice of a desire for such revision shall be given; the Contracting Parties further agreeing that, within ten months after such notice has been given, they will meet in conference for the purpose of revising the Rules.

To the foregoing might possibly be added a fourth Article providing for the adherence of States other than the Powers above mentioned.

I have the honour to inquire whether His Majesty's Government would be disposed to conclude with the United States and the Powers above mentioned two Conventions such as were proposed by the American delegation at The Hague, 12th February, 1923, and as above outlined (including a fourth Article as proposed above), to one of which the Rules for the Control of Radio in Time of War should be annexed, and to the other the Rules for Aerial Warfare should be annexed; both Conventions to be ratified according to the constitutional requirements of the signatory States.

I further have the honour to inform His Majesty's Government that the Government of the United States is prepared, in conjunction with the several Powers mentioned above, to authorise the signature of Conventions such as those proposed.

I have, &c.,

FRANK B. KELLOGG.

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 8th July, 1924.

WITH reference to my Confidential despatch Dominions No. 145 of the 27th March,* I have the honour to request [Your Excellency,] [you,] to inform your Ministers that the Report of the International Commission of Jurists on the Revision of the Laws of War has been considered by a Sub-Committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence. A copy of the Sub-Committee's Report† is enclosed.

* No. 288.

† The Report of the Sub-Committee recommended acceptance of the Rules for the Control of Radio in Time of War and Rules of Aerial Warfare embodied in the Report of the Commission of Jurists (Cmd. 2201). As regards the question of visit and search of merchant shipping by aircraft, their Report contained the following passage:—

The Sub-Committee note that the International Commission were unable to agree upon an Article dealing with the exercise of belligerent rights by aircraft against merchant vessels, although all the Delegations of all the Powers represented on the Commission concerned in the expression of a desire to adopt such rules as would assure the observance of the dictates of humanity as regards the protection of the lives of neutrals and non-combatants.

The Sub-Committee recommend that, at any future International Conference which may be held dealing with the subject of the Rules of Aerial Warfare, His Majesty's Government should press for the inclusion of an Article regarding the right of visit and search of Merchant Shipping by Aircraft, and that such an Article should follow the text put forward by the American Delegation to late Commission at The Hague, and which read as follows:—

"Aircraft are forbidden to visit and search surface or sub-surface vessels without conforming in all respects to the rules to which surface vessels authorized to conduct visit and search are subject.

In view of the irregularities to which the use of aircraft against merchant vessels might give rise it is declared that aircraft cannot divert a merchant vessel from its course without first boarding it; that in no event may an aircraft destroy a merchant vessel unless the crew and passengers of such vessels have first been placed in safety; and that if an aircraft cannot capture a merchant vessel in conformity with these rules it must desist from attack and from seizure and permit such vessel to proceed unmolested."

2. At a meeting on the 3rd April the Committee of Imperial Defence agreed to recommend that the Report of the Sub-Committee should be approved by His Majesty's Government. In this connexion the Committee drew particular attention to the question of visit and search of merchant shipping by aircraft, as being one of great importance to the British Empire, and also to the strong view of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that, at any International Conference on this subject, the British representatives should in the first instance press for a prohibition of attack on merchant shipping by aircraft and that, only if prohibition were not accepted by the other Powers represented, would it be possible to agree to the recommendation on this subject contained in paragraph 2 (f) of the Sub-Committee's Report*

3. His Majesty's Government are prepared to approve the recommendations of the Sub-Committee subject to the adoption of the view of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, but before finally deciding on the form of communication to be made to foreign Powers, and particularly to the United States Government in answer to the note of which a copy was enclosed in my despatch Dominions No. 145, Confidential, of 27th March, they would be glad to learn whether your Ministers are in general agreement with the above recommendations or desire to make any observations on them.

(No. 357.)

Embassy of the United States of America,

London, 29th July, 1924.

SIR, In my note of 13th February last, I had the honour to inquire whether His Majesty's Government would be disposed to conclude with the United States, and certain other Powers, two Conventions such as were proposed by the American Delegation at The Hague, 12th February, 1923, to one of which the Rules for the Control of Radio in Time of War should be annexed, and to the other the Rules for Aerial Warfare should be annexed; both Conventions to be ratified according to the constitutional requirements of the signatory States. I had the honour to state that the Government of the United States was prepared, in conjunction with the several Powers mentioned in the body of my communication referred to, to authorize the signature of Conventions such as those proposed.

More recently the Japanese Government has informed the American Government that it is happy to acquiesce in the proposals of the latter to conclude two Conventions substantially on the lines suggested by the American Delegation at The Hague on 12th February, 1923, believing, as it does, that the work of revising the Rules of Warfare promoted by the Commissioner of Jurists at The Hague is a matter for sincere congratulation in the interest of humanity.

As the records of the Embassy do not indicate that any reply has been received from His Majesty's Government in this matter, which my Government considers highly important and a step which may have far-reaching and beneficial effect in the future, I avail myself of this opportunity to invite your attention again to the suggestions made, and at the same time to emphasize the sincere hope of the American Government that His Majesty's Government will now find itself in a position to give an affirmative reply to the suggestions conveyed in my previous communication.

WITH reference to your Confidential despatch Dominions No. 397 of the 20th August,† regarding the Rules for the Control of Radio in Time of War and Rules of the Aerial Warfare drawn up by the International Commission at The Hague in February, 1922, I have the honour to inform you that the Canadian Government is in general agreement with the recommendations of the Sub-Committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence as set forth in Secret Document 485 B, especially paragraph 2 (f) relating to the visit and search of merchant shipping by aircraft in view of the limited Canadian defensive forces to combat air attack on our overseas trade.

It might be pointed out that this overseas trade is our most vulnerable point and there is little doubt but that it will be attacked by aircraft and submarines if that course would prove of advantage to the enemy.

(No. 96.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 18th February, 1924.

IN view of the admission of the Irish Free State to Membership of the League of Nations, I have the honour to request Your Excellency to lay before your Ministers the following statement of the position as regards the ratification of amendments to the Covenant of the League adopted by the Second Assembly in October, 1921.

2. The amendments in question were embodied in Protocols open for signature by the Members of the League and the majority of these Protocols, after signature on behalf of the various parts of the Empire then separately represented in the League, were ratified by His Majesty. None of these amendments has, however, yet come into operation as the necessary ratifications required under Article 26 of the Covenant have not been obtained.

* No. 289. † No. 292.

3. The amendments ratified by His Majesty were as follows:—

(1) Amendment to Article 6, last paragraph. (His Majesty's ratification deposited 23rd November, 1922). This is to the effect that the last paragraph of Article 6 should be replaced by the following:—

"The expenses of the League shall be borne by the Members of the League in the proportion decided by the Assembly."

(2) Amendments to Articles 4, 13, 15 and 26. (His Majesty's ratification deposited 3rd February, 1923.) These amendments are as follows:—

Article 4. The following paragraph is to be inserted between paragraphs 2 and 3 of the Article: "The Assembly shall fix by a two-thirds majority the rules dealing with the election of the non-permanent Members of the Council, and particularly such regulations as relate to their term of office and the conditions of re-eligibility."

Article 13 as amended will read: "The Members of the League agree that, whenever any dispute shall arise between them which they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration or judicial settlement and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, they will submit the whole subject-matter to arbitration or judicial settlement."

"Disputes as to the interpretation of a Treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration or judicial settlement."

"For the consideration of any such dispute, the court to which the case is referred shall be the Permanent Court of International Justice, established in accordance with Article 14, or any tribunal agreed on by the parties to the dispute, or stipulated in any convention existing between them."

"The Members of the League agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award or decision that may be rendered, and that they will not resort to war against a Member of the League which complies therewith. In the event of any failure to carry out such an award or decision, the Council shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto."

Article 15. The first paragraph of Article 15 shall read as follows: "If there should arise between Members of the League any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement in accordance with Article 13, the Members of the League agree that they will submit the matters to the Council. Any party to the dispute may effect such submission by giving notice of the existence of the dispute to the Secretary-General, who will make all necessary arrangements for a full investigation and consideration thereof."

Article 26. (a) The first paragraph of Article 26 of the Covenant shall be replaced by the following text: "Amendments to the present Covenant, the text of which shall have been voted by the Assembly on a three-fourths majority, in which there shall be included the votes of all the Members of the Council represented at the meeting, will take effect when ratified by the Members of the League whose Representatives composed the Council when the vote was taken and by the majority of those whose Representatives form the Assembly."

(b) A paragraph reading as follows shall be added after the first paragraph of Article 26: "If the required number of ratifications shall not have been obtained within twenty-two months after the vote of the Assembly, the proposed amendment shall remain without effect."

(c) The second paragraph of the present Article 26 shall be replaced by the two following paragraphs: "The Secretary-General shall inform the Members of the taking effect of an amendment."

Any Member of the League which has not at that time ratified the amendment is free to notify the Secretary-General within a year of its refusal to accept it, but in that case it shall cease to be a Member of the League."

(3) Amendment to Article 12. (His Majesty's ratification deposited 5th July, 1923.) The Article as amended will read as follows:—

"The Members of the League agree that, if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, they will submit the matter either to arbitration or judicial settlement or to inquiry by the Council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the judicial decision, or the report by the Council.

In any case under this Article the award of the arbitrators or the judicial decision shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the Council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute."

4. The following amendments, adopted by the Second Assembly, have not been ratified by His Majesty:—

(a) Two amendments to Article 6.

The first of these was to the effect that the following paragraph should be added to the Article:—

"The allocation of the expenses of the League set out on Annexure 3 shall be applied as from 1st January, 1922, until a revised allocation has come into force after adoption by the Assembly."

The second embodied a revised scale of contributions to be inserted in Annexure 3.

The Third Assembly (September, 1922) adopted a resolution asking the Council to notify the Members of the League that it was no longer necessary to ratify these two amendments.

(b) Four amendments to Article 16. As your Ministers are aware, the action to be taken in connexion with these amendments is at present under consideration, as a result of the discussions in the Fourth Assembly (September, 1923.)

2. Wide divergence of opinion still exists amongst Member States of the League as to the exact nature of the obligations contracted under Article 16. My Ministers feel that the proposed amendment raises difficult and very important questions which require, and, as they anticipate, will be subjected to, serious examination at the next meeting of the Assembly of the League. [Answered by No. 304.]

SIR, Downing Street, 5th June, 1924.
I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's Confidential despatch of the 27th of March,§ regarding the amendments to the Covenant of the League of Nations adopted by the Second Assembly in 1921.

* No. 242 in Dominions No. 88. † No. 236 in Dominions No. 88. ‡ No. 301. § No. 302.

2. The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs feels considerable doubt whether the second, third and fourth of the amendments in question will, in fact, be discussed at the next meeting of the Assembly. As your Ministers will have seen from League of Nations paper A.3, 1924, they do not appear on the Agenda for the fifth Session, and, indeed, there would appear no reason for a further discussion of them by the Assembly, the only question arising being that of their ratification. It is, of course, the case that a revised text of the first of the amendments (and a consequential amendment to paragraph 2 of Article 16 in its existing form) is on the Agenda of the forthcoming session of the Assembly as a result of the postponement from last year of the alternative Franco-British amendment to the first paragraph of Article 16 (vide League of Nations paper A.26, 1923, V. of the 10th August, 1923, and page 4 of paper A.3, 1924).

3. As, however, will be seen from League of Nations paper A.86, 1923, V. of the 19th September, 1923, one of the difficulties felt by the First Committee of the Fourth Assembly in dealing with the Franco-British proposal was that the amendments adopted by the Second Assembly had not yet come into force; it was thought that it would be inopportune to adopt new amendments on the same subject as amendments already adopted, but not yet completely ratified. It was to meet this difficulty that the suggestion was made that all the amendments to Article 16 adopted by the Second Assembly should now be ratified by His Majesty.

4. As the amendments now in question have already been ratified by a large number of Members of the League, including the majority of those represented on the Council, and as it is the wish of His Majesty's Government and the Governments of the other Dominion Members of the League and of India that these amendments should be ratified, His Majesty's Government propose to arrange for action accordingly. If it is still the desire of your Ministers that ratification of the amendments on behalf of the Irish Free State should be deferred, steps will be taken to exclude the Free State from the instrument of His Majesty's ratification, but, before action to this end is taken, His Majesty's Government will be glad to learn whether your Ministers would be disposed to reconsider the matter in the light of the foregoing considerations. It is desired to have the instrument of His Majesty's ratification ready for deposit towards the end of June; so I should be glad of an answer to this despatch not later than the 15th June.

5. Your Ministers will recollect that, under Article 26 of the Covenant in its present form, amendments to the Covenant take effect when ratified by the Members of the League whose representatives compose the Council, and by a majority of the Members of the League whose representatives compose the Assembly.

I have, &c.,
J. H. THOMAS.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Confidential despatch of the 5th instant* regarding the amendments to Article 16 of the Covenant of the League of Nations adopted by the Second Assembly in 1921.

2. Having given careful consideration to the points raised in your despatch under reply, my Ministers regret that they cannot depart from the decision set forth in my Confidential despatch of the 27th March,† and they therefore desire that the Irish Free State should be excluded from the instrument of His Majesty's ratification.

SIR,

Downing Street, 19th September, 1924.

WITH reference to Mr. Churchill's despatch No. 86 of the 19th June, 1922,* I have the honour to request you to inform your Ministers that the Protocols embodying the amendments to Article 16 of the Covenant of the League of Nations adopted by the Second Assembly of the League in 1921 have now been ratified by His Majesty. I enclose a copy of a letter from the Secretary-General of the League notifying the deposit of His Majesty's ratification.

2. As was stated in paragraph 4 of Mr. Churchill's despatch No. 3 of the 4th January, 1922,† an agreement was made between Lord Balfour and the French Delegation to the Second Assembly that no action would be taken by His Majesty's Government or the French Government with regard to the ratification of these amendments before the meeting of the Third Assembly in 1922. Subsequently negotiations took place with the French Government on the subject of the first of the amendments, and as a result His Majesty's Government proposed at the Fourth Assembly in 1923 that the following amended text of the first paragraph of Article 16 of the Covenant should be adopted in place of the amended text adopted by the Second Assembly, which had not yet entered into force:—

"Should any Member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenants under Articles 12, 13 or 15, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other Members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, and to prohibit all intercourse, even if not between their nationals and the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State, at least between persons resident within their territories and persons resident within the territory of the Covenant-breaking State, and to prevent all financial, commercial or personal intercourse, even if not between the nationals of the covenant-breaking State and the nationals of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not, at least between persons resident within the territory of that State and persons resident within the territory of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not."

His Majesty's Government further proposed that at the beginning of the existing second paragraph of Article 16, which on the coming into force of the amendments adopted by the Second Assembly would become the fifth paragraph, the words "in such case" should be deleted on the ground that they would become redundant.

3. The Fourth Assembly decided to defer discussion of these amendments until the Fifth Assembly, which is now in session. It was therefore considered that the best course would be for all the four amendments adopted by the Second Assembly in 1921 to be ratified by His Majesty forthwith.

4. The proposals put forward by His Majesty's Government in 1923 have been included in the Agenda for the Fifth Assembly and are at present under discussion in the Assembly.

(No. 403.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 19th September, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request you to inform your Ministers that the Second Assembly of the League of Nations in 1921 adopted four amendments to Article 16 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, which were subsequently embodied in Protocols open for signature and ratification on behalf of the various Members of the League. These amendments were as follows:—

(1) "The latter part of the first paragraph of Article 16 of the Covenant shall read as follows:—

"... which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between persons residing in their territory and persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State and persons residing in the territory of any other State, whether a member of the League or not."

(2) "The second paragraph of Article 16 shall read as follows:—

"It is for the Council to give an opinion whether or not a breach of the Covenant has taken place. In deliberations on this question in the Council the votes of members of the League alleged to have resorted to war and of members against whom such action was directed shall not be counted."

(3) "The third paragraph of Article 16 shall read as follows:—

"The Council will notify to all members of the League the date which it recommends for the application of the economic pressure under this article."

(4) "The fourth paragraph of Article 16 shall read as follows:—

"Nevertheless, the Council may, in the case of particular members postpone the coming into force of any of these measures for a specified period where it is satisfied that such a postponement will facilitate the attainment of the object of the measures referred to in the preceding paragraph, or that it is necessary in order to minimise the loss and inconvenience which will be caused to such members."

2. An agreement was made between Lord Balfour (the Chief British Delegate to the Second Assembly) and the French Delegation that no action would be taken by His Majesty's Government or the French Government with regard to the ratification of these amendments before the meeting of the Third Assembly in 1922. Subsequently negotiations took place with the French Government on the subject of the first of the amendments, and as a result His Majesty's Government proposed at the Fourth Assembly in 1923 that the following amended text of the first paragraph of Article 16 of the Covenant should be adopted in place of the amended text adopted by the Second Assembly, which had not yet entered into force:—

"Should any Member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenants under Articles 12, 13 or 15, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other Members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, and to prohibit all intercourse, even if not between their nationals and the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State, at least between persons resident within their territories and persons resident within the territory of the Covenant-breaking State, and to prevent all financial, commercial or personal intercourse, even if not between the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State and the nationals of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not, at least between persons resident within the territory of that State and persons resident within the territory of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not."

His Majesty's Government further proposed that at the beginning of the existing second paragraph of Article 16, which on the coming into force of the amendments adopted by the Second Assembly would become the fifth paragraph, the words "in such case" should be deleted on the ground that they would become redundant.

3. The Fourth Assembly decided to defer discussion of these amendments until the Fifth Assembly, which is now in session. It was therefore considered that the best course would be for all the four amendments adopted by the Second Assembly in 1921 to be ratified by His Majesty forthwith. Action has been taken accordingly, and I enclose a copy of a letter* from the Secretary-General of the League notifying the deposit of His Majesty's ratification.

4. The proposals put forward by His Majesty's Government in 1923 have been included in the Agenda for the Fifth Assembly and are at present under discussion in the Assembly.

3RD DECEMBER. My despatch 25th September, Dominions 469.* As stated in League of Nations paper A. 131, 27th September, Fifth Assembly adopted Resolution in which, noting that amendment to Article 16, first paragraph, Covenant adopted by Second Assembly had not entered into force and appeared to be open to objections which seemed to render entry into force impossible, it adopted in place thereof fresh amendment which it recommended should be ratified. This amendment has now been embodied in protocol which it is proposed should be signed on behalf of His Majesty's Government at first convenient opportunity and subsequently ratified by His Majesty. Do your Ministers desire signature and ratification on their behalf, and if so whom do they nominate to sign? Considered desirable that steps necessary to enable ratification to be effected should be taken with as little delay as possible. If amendment comes into force it will replace first amendment to Article 16 already ratified by His Majesty (see Secretary-General's letter 29th August, C.L. 117,† and my despatch 25th September*).—AMERY.

2. His Majesty's Government would be glad to learn, at your Ministers' early convenience, their views as to signature and ratification on behalf of the Irish Free State of the protocol embodying the new amendment.

3. Whilst this amendment, if it comes into force, will replace the first amendment to Article 16 adopted by the Second Assembly, the position with regard to the second, third and fourth amendments to Article 16 adopted by the Second Assembly will not be affected. 23RD MAY. Secret. My telegram of 23rd May, 1923.† His Majesty's Government have had under consideration League of Nations letter of 25th October, 1923,‡ submitting to Governments of Members of League draft Treaty of Mutual Assistance and documents relating thereto and propose to reply in following sense to Secretary-General:—

Begins: His Majesty's Government have examined with utmost care documents enclosed in League of Nations letter. There is no question to which they attach greater importance than reduction or limitation of armaments which is closely bound up with maintenance of peace, principal object of League. But very importance of these questions makes it vital that, before League makes any recommendation to Members, it should satisfy itself that scheme recommended is in all respects reliable and effective.

Principles of present scheme have obtained unqualified acceptance of only very few of twenty-six nations whose replies published by League. Criticisms are to be found in documents circulated to Members of League and fall under two main heads which can be expressed interrogatively.

* No. 308. † No. 245 in Dominions No. 88. ‡ See Cmd. 2200.

(1) Are guarantees offered by draft treaty sufficient to justify a State in reducing armaments?

(2) Are obligations involved such as can be conscientiously undertaken?

As regards first question, (a) effectiveness of scheme depends largely on ability of Council of League to determine by unanimous vote of all members not concerned in dispute which nation is aggressor.

This has to be settled within four days of notification of hostilities. Difficulties which might confront Council in reaching agreement within stipulated time and likelihood that unanimity might never be reached at all on really controversial issue fully discussed in documents circulated which also show impossibility of defining satisfactorily what constitutes act of aggression.

(b) Long delay liable to occur before forces at disposal of League can be brought into effective operation against aggressor, since (i) only after determination which State is aggressor, which is likely to occupy whole four days permitted, can Council begin to take steps for pressure, economic or military, on aggressor, (ii) economic pressure admittedly slow in operation, (iii) technical advisers of League agreed that no military assistance immediate and effective unless given in accordance with pre-arranged plan, and obvious that in case of general treaty of assistance plans can rarely be pre-arranged, and they would therefore have to be drawn up, after determination which State was aggressor, by officers designated by Council to command international forces. Experience of late war does not justify assumption that, where forces of several nations involved, immediate acceptance and rapid execution of plans of operations can be counted on, (iv) Council would have great difficulty in reaching unanimous decision on appointment of Higher Command.

(c) As measures necessary to carry general guarantee into effect are made dependent on explicit consent of each individual State called upon to render assistance, guarantee afforded by draft treaty is too precarious to justify any responsible Government in consenting to any reduction of armaments, and indeed scrupulous observance of obligations imposed by treaty would, in considered opinion of His Majesty's Government, involve increase rather than decrease in British armaments, and they cannot avoid belief that position would be same in other countries.

(d) Recognition of defects inherent in any general treaty has led to proposal to superimpose system of partial treaties between groups of countries. It has been urged that conclusion of such treaties by one group of States likely to bring about formation of competing groups, and that result would be reappearance of former system of alliances which in the past has proved such a serious menace to peace of world. Proposal to meet this objection by bringing partial treaties under control of League does not overcome difficulty, particularly so long as important nations remain outside League.

(e) Scheme for partial treaties would afford opening for conflict between Council and individual Governments, since under Article 4 of draft treaty it is duty of Council to decide which of two belligerents is aggressor, while under Article 8 parties to partial treaties will be at liberty to decide point for themselves before it is decided by Council.

As regards second question, (a) several countries whose opinions have been forwarded have been unable to accept obligations imposed by treaty, see especially Canadian Government's letter to Secretary-General of 19th June, 1923, page 27, League of Nations paper A.35, 1923, IX.

(b) Under Article 16 of Covenant Council can only recommend action. By Article 5 of draft Treaty Council authorized to decide to adopt measures. Council thus would become executive body with very large powers. In any case Council is most inappropriate body to control military forces in operation against particular State or States.

(c) Draft Treaty virtually amounts to extension of Article 10 of Covenant in its most stringent and now discarded interpretation. In so far as membership of League involved participation in Treaty, it would form insuperable barrier to entry of United States of America to League.

For above reasons His Majesty's Government consider draft Treaty offers no serious prospect of advantage compensating for its immense complication of international relations, uncertainty of effect of its clauses, and consequent difficulty of conducting national policy. They therefore support view of third committee of Fourth Assembly that it is impossible to recommend adoption of text included in report. Study of question has, however, not been fruitless and is proof of desire of Members of League to find solution of question of reduction and limitation of armaments. Reports under consideration contain encouraging and suggestive passages as to other lines of inquiry which might have useful results, e.g., possibility of defining zones of demilitarization, and advance made South and Central America in direction of limitation of armaments. Mention must also be made of recommendations of Washington Conference. His Majesty's Government feel that it is on above lines that question of reduction of armaments should be pursued, that real force of League is moral rather than material, and that policy of League should aim at elimination of causes of friction, settlement on equitable lines of long-standing differences, prompt consideration and public ventilation of disputes before they have reached acute stage, and seizing of opportunities which its success in these respects gives to diminish armaments.

Ends.

Before replying to League in above sense, His Majesty's Government would be glad to learn whether your Ministers concur. As it is desirable that views of His Majesty's Government should be communicated to Secretary-General in time to be presented at Assembly next September, should be glad to receive reply to this telegram as soon as possible.—THOMAS.

12TH JUNE. Your telegram of 23rd May.* My Ministers concur generally in conclusions as to the draft Treaty of Mutual Guarantee expressed in the proposed communication to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations communicated in your telegram. My Government has prepared on the same subject the following proposed reply to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, which will not be despatched, however, until His Majesty's Government has signified concurrence therein:—

Begins: Canadian Government has very earnestly considered the proposed Treaty of Mutual Assistance submitted to it by you in your communications of 23rd October, 1923, and 11th April, 1924, and has also examined the document(s) accompanying the draft. Realizing the vital importance of the subject and the devoted labour the formulation of the draft Treaty has entailed, and notwithstanding its profound sympathy with the objects sought to be attained, Canadian Government finds itself unable to conclude that these objects would be promoted by the arrangements suggested. It concurs generally with the conclusions on the subject expressed by the Government of Great Britain, and submits only the following brief observations.

Position of Canada in the British Empire is such that, in spite of the fact that the application of the Treaty to the Continent of North America is by its terms conditioned upon its ratification by the United States of America, question of Canadian adherence to it has more practical aspect than it would otherwise have, apart from indication that the Government of the United States of America was likely to find the plan acceptable in principle. Canada has already indicated disapproval of the interpretation of the terms of Article X of the Covenant as implying obligation upon her to intervene actively under that Article. Proposed Treaty creates obligation wider in its extent and more precise in its implication than any which Article X could be interpreted as imposing, and it proposes moreover to transfer the right to decide on the scope of action Canada should take from Canadian Parliament to the Council of the League of Nations. It is true that, for the purpose of deciding on assistance to be given by Canada, Council would include Canadian representative and that the draft limits the liability of the signatories in another Continent to measures not involving naval, military or air operations. But the presence of the Canadian representative on the Council would hardly compensate for (at least nominal) transfer of authority, and again Canada's position in the British Empire affects protection afforded her by the Continental limitations, of which in any event utility is uncertain, since it appears doubtful if hostile action can wisely or indeed safely be undertaken by any State upon the principle of limited liability.

For these reasons and those expressed in communication of the Government of Great Britain above referred to, the Canadian Government is of opinion that the nature of the proposed Treaty is such that so far as it purports to impose future obligations to take specific action in circumstances incapable of present definition it would be hopeless to expect the people of Canada to accept it, and it is also of opinion, even if these provisions of the draft were generally approved and brought into operation, their effect would neither be to minimize the danger of war nor to bring about any useful limitations of armaments.

On the other hand, the Canadian Government considers that every extension by general agreement of the facilities for formal, regular, early and informed public discussion of possible causes of war is to be welcomed. It omits to deal more at large with such of the provisions of the draft Treaty as appear to be designed to bring about such an extension only because it conceives that these would not appear in their present form if the draft were confined to provisions of that character. Ends.

(2) Concluding passage of reply beginning "e.g., possibility of defining" down to end of draft reply omitted and passage substituted, which may be summarized as follows:—

Begins: "It is policy of His Majesty's Government that at favourable opportunity Governments of world should meet in conference to devise schemes for reduction of armaments. Conference should include Governments of countries not yet members of League. Every suggestion for reduction of armaments would be open on its merits for full examination, including proposed Treaty, and His Majesty's Government have no intention to pre-judge further consideration of proposed Treaty by such conference. It is not within province of His Majesty's Government to attempt to formulate exhaustive list of proposals which might be brought before such conference. Among constructive proposals already discussed are those defining zones of demilitarization between States safeguarding special frontiers under some form of international control granting further powers to international court, and so on. His Majesty's Government believe they should keep themselves free to consider any and every practicable proposal and commit themselves at present only to a pledge to do everything in their power to bring about agreements that will have as an immediate effect substantial reduction in armaments." Ends.

INTERPRETATION OF THE COVENANT.

Report by the Special Commission of Jurists.

League of Nations, Geneva, 22nd March, 1924.

On 28th September, 1923, the Council of the League of Nations requested a special Commission of Jurists to reply to certain questions concerning the interpretation of the Covenant and other points of international law.

This Commission met on 18th January, 1924, and concluded its work on 24th January. In a letter bearing the latter date, the Chairman of the Committee, His Excellency M. Adatei, informed the President of the Council of the replies upon which he and his colleagues had agreed.

The Council of the League considered these replies at its meeting on 13th March, 1924, and adopted the following resolution:—

"The Council, having noted the replies of the special Commission of Jurists to the questions raised in the resolution of the Council dated 28th September, 1923, approves these replies as a whole.

"It further decides that the text of the present resolution, together with the text of the replies, shall be communicated to all the States Members of the League of Nations."

I am forwarding herewith the text of these replies.

I also have the honour to enclose a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the Council at which the above resolution was adopted.

I have, &c.,

Secretary-General.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

(C.L. 44. 1924.)
(Translation.)

Replies given by the Special Commission of Jurists to the Questions submitted by the Council of the League of Nations on 28th September, 1923.

FIRST QUESTION: Is the Council, when seized at the instance of a Member of the League of Nations of a dispute submitted in accordance with the terms of Article 15 of the Covenant, by such a Member as "likely to lead to a rupture" bound either at the request of the other party or on its own authority, and before inquiring into any point, to decide whether in fact such description is well-founded?

REPLY: "The Council, when seized at the instance of a Member of the League of Nations of a dispute submitted, in accordance with the terms of Article 15 of the Covenant, by such a member as 'likely to lead to a rupture,' is not bound, either at the request of the other party or on its own authority, and before inquiring into any point, to decide whether in fact such description is well-founded.

The Council may at all times estimate the gravity of the dispute and determine the course of its action accordingly."

SECOND QUESTION: Is the Council, when seized of a dispute in accordance with Article 15, paragraph 1, of the Covenant, at the instance of a Member of the League of Nations, bound, either at the request of a party, or on its own authority, to suspend its inquiry into the dispute, when, with the consent of the parties, the settlement of the dispute is being sought through some other channel?

REPLY: "Where, contrary to the terms of Article 15, paragraph 1, a dispute is submitted to the Council on the application of one of the parties, where such a dispute already forms the subject of arbitration or of judicial proceedings, the Council must refuse to consider the application.

If the matter in dispute, by an agreement between the parties, has already been submitted to other jurisdiction before which it is being regularly proceeded with, or is being dealt with in the said manner in another channel, it is in conformity with the general principles of law that it should be possible for a reference back to such jurisdiction to be asked for and ordered."

THIRD QUESTION: Is an objection founded on Article 15, paragraph 8, of the Covenant the only objection based on the merits of the dispute on which the competence of the Council to make an inquiry can be challenged?

REPLY: "Where a dispute likely to lead to a rupture is submitted to the Council, on the application of one of the parties, in accordance with the provisions of Article 15, paragraph 1, the case contemplated in paragraph 8 of Article 15 is the only case in which the Council is not to inquire into the dispute.

In particular the reservations commonly inserted in most arbitration treaties cannot be pleaded as a bar to the proceedings.

The Commission considers it desirable to observe that, where the case arises, the Council should, in determining the course of its action, have regard to international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings for securing the maintenance of peace."

FOURTH QUESTION: Are measures of coercion which are not meant to constitute acts of war consistent with the terms of Articles 12 to 15 of the Covenant when they are taken by one Member of the League of Nations against another Member of the League without prior recourse to the procedure laid down in those Articles?

REPLY: "Coercive measures which are not intended to constitute acts of war may, or may not, be consistent with the provisions of Articles 12 to 15 of the Covenant, and it is for the Council, when the dispute has been submitted to it, to decide immediately, having due regard to all the circumstances of the case and to the nature of the measures adopted, whether it should recommend the maintenance or the withdrawal of such measures."

FIFTH QUESTION: In what circumstances and to what extent is the responsibility of a State involved by the commission of a political crime in its territory?

REPLY: "The responsibility of a State is only involved by the commission in its territory of a political crime against the persons of foreigners, if the State has neglected to take all reasonable measures for the prevention of the crime and the pursuit, arrest and bringing to justice of the criminal.

The recognized public character of a foreigner and the circumstances in which he is present in its territory, entail upon the State a corresponding duty of special vigilance on his behalf."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

(C.L. 44. 1924. V.)

EXTRACT FROM THE MINUTES OF THE SIXTH MEETING (PUBLIC), HELD AT 3.30 P.M. ON 13TH MARCH, 1924.

Report of the Special Commission of Jurists on the Interpretation of the Covenant.

THE President reminded the Council that by a resolution of 26th September, 1923, it has instructed a special Commission of Jurists to reply to certain questions arising out of the interpretation of the Covenant, and other points of international law.

The following members were appointed to form the Commission of Jurists referred to in the above Resolution:—

Monsieur Adatei (Japan).
The Right Hon. Lord Buckmaster (British Empire).
Monsieur le Dr. Enrique Buero (Uruguay).
M. F. de Castello Branco Clark (Brazil).
Monsieur Fromageot (France).
Dr. van Hamel, Director of the Legal Section of the Secretariat of the League of Nations.
M. Vittorio Rolandi Rigoi (Italy).
Monsieur Oesten Unden (Sweden).
Marquis de Villa Urrutia (Spain).
Monsieur de Vissoher (Belgium).

The Commission of Jurists under the presidency of M. Adatci met for the first time on 18th January, 1924, and finished its work on 24th January. M. Adatci, in a letter dated 24th January, notified the President of the Council of the replies agreed upon by the Jurists. The questions and replies were as follows:—

I. "The Council, when seized at the instance of a Member of the League of Nations of a dispute submitted, in accordance with the terms of Article 15 of the Covenant, by such a Member as 'likely to lead to a rupture,' is not bound, either at the request of the other party or on its own authority, and before inquiring into any point, to decide whether in fact such description is well-founded.

The Council may at all times estimate the gravity of the dispute and determine the course of its action accordingly."

II. "Where, contrary to the terms of Article 15, paragraph 1, a dispute is submitted to the Council on the application of one of the parties, where such a dispute already forms the subject of arbitration or of judicial proceedings, the Council must refuse to consider the application.

If the matter in dispute, by an agreement between the parties, has already been submitted to other jurisdiction before which it is being regularly proceeded with, or is being dealt with in the said manner in another channel, it is in conformity with the general principles of law that it should be possible for a reference back to such jurisdiction to be asked for and ordered."

III. "Where a dispute likely to lead to a rupture is submitted to the Council, on the application of one of the parties, in accordance with the provisions of Article 15, paragraph 1, the case contemplated in paragraph 8 of Article 15 is the only case in which the Council is not to inquire into the dispute.

In particular the reservations commonly inserted in most arbitration treaties cannot be pleaded as a bar to the proceedings.

The Commission considered it desirable to observe that, where the case arises, the Council should, in determining the course of its action, have regard to international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings for securing the maintenance of peace."

IV. "Coercive measures which are not intended to constitute acts of war may, or may not, be consistent with the provisions of Articles 12 to 15 of the Covenant, and it is for the Council, when the dispute has been submitted to it, to decide immediately, having due regard to all the circumstances of the case and to the nature of the measures adopted, whether it should recommend the maintenance or the withdrawal of such measures."

V. "The responsibility of a State is only involved by the commission in its territory of a political crime against the persons of foreigners, if the State has neglected to take all reasonable measures for the prevention of the crime and the pursuit, arrest, and bringing to justice of the criminal.

"The recognized public character of a foreigner and the circumstances in which he is present in its territory entail upon the State a corresponding duty of special vigilance on his behalf."

These replies were now before the Council, and it was for the Council to take a decision in regard to them.

The President then submitted to his colleagues the following draft resolution:

"The Council having noted the replies of the special Committee of Jurists to the questions raised in the resolution of the Council dated 28th September, 1923, approves these replies as a whole.

"It further decides that the text of the present resolution, together with the text of the replies, shall be communicated to all the States Members of the League of Nations."

The PRESIDENT asked his colleagues for their views on this resolution. It was understood that in approving it each of the Members of the Council was at liberty to make any declarations which he might judge to be advisable.

M. HANOTAUX spoke as follows:

"I accept as a whole the replies made by the jurists to the questions put to them by the Council, and the terms in which they are expressed."

M. SALANDRA spoke as follows:

"I adhere to the proposal that the Council should approve as a whole the conclusions of the special Commission of Jurists. As far as I am concerned, I do not wish to make any declaration or reservation. The Royal Government of Italy and the delegate who has the honour personally to represent the Royal Government hopes that this attitude may be regarded as a proof of their loyal adhesion to the essential principles of the Covenant, and of their desire that the League of Nations shall develop still further its beneficent activities with the object of maintaining the best possible relations between civilized peoples, and of assuring the peace of the world.

It is not necessary for me to explain to the Council the important political reasons which justify the proposal not to admit any modification of the texts framed by the Commission of Jurists."

M. QUINONES DE LEON spoke as follows:

"On behalf of my Government I accept as a whole the replies made by the jurists to the questions put to them by the Council, and the terms in which they are expressed."

M. SOUZA DANTAS spoke as follows:

"On behalf of my Government I accept unreservedly the replies of the Commission of Jurists. I take this opportunity to remind the Council that the traditional policy of my Government is in favour of arbitration. Here at Geneva at the Assembly of the League in September, 1923, President Motta drew attention to this fact, and it is a pleasure to me to convey to him once more the thanks of Brazil. We are grateful to him for having done our country justice, and for having said, with the applause of the whole Assembly, that Brazil, the great State of South America, faithful to its national genius has once more proclaimed the idea of compulsory arbitration. Let us not forget that this idea had already been advanced at the Hague by M. Ruy Barboza. Brazil may have recourse to arbitration, or she may resort to a peaceful procedure as laid down in the treaties which she has signed, such as the 'Convention Fondra,' with a view to preventing and avoiding international disputes; this Convention was signed at the last Pan-American Conference, and Brazil was the first country to ratify it. Finally, Brazil may resort to one of the procedures laid down in the Covenant of the League of Nations, to which Brazil is a party, and the obligations of which Brazil intends faithfully to execute.

In conclusion, may I be permitted to remind the Council that Brazil is the only country in the world whose constitution requires compulsory resort to arbitration before affairs have reached the stage which the present Minister of Foreign Affairs of Brazil, M. Felix Pacheco, has termed in a remarkable speech, on the occasion of the centenary of the Monroe Doctrine, 'The abominable crime of war.' It is in this spirit that Brazil accepts and approves the replies of the Commission of Jurists."

M. BENES spoke as follows:—

"I agree with the other members of the Council in my appreciation of the work accomplished by the Commission of Jurists. I am persuaded that the opinions expressed by the Commission will facilitate the accomplishment of the difficult and important tasks which fall to the Council.

In consideration, however, of the subtlety of the legal formulas contained in the report of the Commission and the diversity of the cases which may be brought before the Council, as well as the fact that the precise legal meaning of the word 'approval' is not in this instance altogether clear to me, I would personally have preferred a formula to the effect that the Council takes note of the report. I admit, however, that in that case it might have been well to insert a clause expressing the firm conviction that the report would form a solid basis for the solution of questions with which the Council might be called upon to deal.

"Nevertheless, in the interests of unanimity, I associate myself with the votes of my colleagues and do not propose any modification of the formula adopted by them."

M. BRANTING spoke as follows:—

"I adhere to the resolution proposed by the President, but at the same time I have the honour on behalf of my Government to make the following declaration:

"The Swedish Government has noted with the greatest satisfaction the replies of the Commission of Jurists to the first three questions concerning the competence of the Council. The Council, in adopting these replies, has affirmed the obligatory character of the system of mediation introduced by the Covenant, and has safeguarded the effectiveness of this system. I have no difficulty in accepting the reply to the fifth question."

"As regards the reply to the fourth question, the Commission of Jurists has not indicated the cases in which coercive measures are legitimate and the cases in which they are not. It is evident that the reply of the Commission might cover different opinions as to the legal character of certain coercive measures. In these circumstances my Government would have liked this question to be referred to the Permanent Court of International Justice in order that a clearer opinion might be obtained on this extremely important and very delicate problem.

"As, however, this suggestion has not been favourably received by my colleagues, I declare, in accordance with my instructions, that my Government maintains in its integrity the interpretation of the Covenant on this subject, an interpretation which was supported by me during the previous session of the Council, and that it therefore continues to be of opinion that the use of armed forces is not compatible with the Covenant in the circumstances indicated in the fourth question. I accept the fourth reply subject to this declaration."

M. MELOT spoke as follows:—

"My Government highly appreciates the excellent work accomplished by the Commission of Jurists. I accordingly support on its behalf, wholly and unreservedly, the proposal which is before us."

VISCOUNT ISHII spoke as follows:—

"On behalf of the Japanese Government, I approve and accept as a whole and unconditionally the replies of the Commission of Jurists to the questions which the Council has put to them. In the present condition of international law, no more perfect or satisfactory reply could be anticipated. It is in my opinion extremely advisable to rest satisfied with the replies of the Jurists in the form in which they are given."

"I accordingly propose a small addition to the draft resolution requesting the Secretary-General to transmit the thanks of the Council to the members of the Commission of Jurists for their excellent work."

The PRESIDENT said that in making this proposal Viscount Ishii had anticipated his own suggestion, as he had himself also desired to express on behalf of the Council his thanks to the Commission of Jurists for their excellent work.

LORD PARMOOR spoke as follows:—

"On behalf of the Government of Great Britain, I approve wholly of all the answers given by the Jurists to the questions submitted to them. I desire to make no reservation of any kind, and I should like to support the remarks of the representative of Japan, which have been referred to by the President, by saying that the British Government appreciates very highly the work done by the Jurists in giving these answers to the questions submitted to them."

The PRESIDENT spoke as follows:—

"Having heard the views of my colleagues, I wish to submit the following observations:—

"I may be permitted to pay a tribute to the spirit in which the replies have been drafted by the Commission of Jurists, as well as to the expressions of loyalty to the Covenant which have been made, and to associate myself with the desire that each day the activity and policy of the League of Nations may be strengthened."

"I would add that the Government of Uruguay would have preferred a clearer reply to the fourth question. It appeared desirable, for example, that the kind of measures described as measures of coercion not intended to constitute acts of war, should be more precisely defined. I have reason to think that, outside reprisals of a legal, economic or financial character, any other acts of force by one State against another should be excluded, without taking account of the description of these measures given by the State applying them."

"It might also be added that no measures of coercion of this last character should be contemplated before the peaceful means for settling disputes between States Members of the League of Nations, mentioned in Articles 12 to 15 of the Covenant, had been exhausted. These measures include diplomatic negotiation, arbitration, reference to the Permanent Court of International Justice, or the mediation procedure of the Council."

"I would point out to my colleagues that, in conflicts of this character which have arisen in the history of the American nations, the point of view adopted on this subject, even before the signature of the Covenant, clearly tended towards the exclusion of such measures of reprisal and towards the adoption of the settlement by arbitration of all international disputes."

"Having made these declarations, I accept the legal replies which have been submitted for our consideration. They represent, taken as a whole, an interpretation which is largely favourable to the competence of the Council to settle in the future any dispute between Members of the League, thus guaranteeing peace and goodwill between nations."

The Members of the Council supported the President's proposal that the formal declaration which had just been made be inserted in the Minutes.

The President, in conclusion, noted that his draft resolution was unanimously adopted by the Council, and that the replies of the Commission of Jurists were consequently approved en bloc. He was sure that the members of the Council were glad to note this happy result. It was due in large part to the work of the Commission of Jurists. He proposed to his colleagues as the Japanese representative had suggested, that they should express the thanks of the Council to the distinguished Jurists who had given such able and valuable assistance.

The proposal was adopted.

The President asked the Secretary-General to convey the message to the members of the Commission of Jurists.

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 6th September, 1924.

As [Your Excellency's] [your] Ministers are aware, the Statute establishing the Permanent Court of International Justice (published in Treaty Series No. 23 of 1923, of which a copy was enclosed in my predecessor's despatch Dominions No. 435 of the 21st November, 1923*) contains provision in Article 36 under which, either at the time of signature or ratification of the Protocol to which the Statute is adjoined, or at a later moment, a declaration may be made that the Parties recognize as compulsory ipso facto and without special agreement in relation to any other Member of the League of Nations or State accepting the same obligation, the jurisdiction of the Court in certain specified classes of legal disputes.

2. No such declaration was, however, made on behalf of His Majesty's Government, either on the 16th of December, 1920, when the Protocol was signed by the Earl of Balfour or subsequently, nor has any declaration been made on behalf of any of the Dominion members of the League or of India.

3. Representations have been made recently to His Majesty's Government from Parliamentary and other quarters that the time has arrived when the matter should be reconsidered. The issues raised are, however, of great importance and complexity, particularly in relation to the position of the British Empire in time of war, when acceptance of the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court would enable any foreign country, if it were similarly bound, to contest before the Court the legality of naval measures.

4. In the circumstances His Majesty's Government desire to bring the whole question to the notice of the Dominion Governments. They will be glad to receive any observations which your Ministers may desire to offer upon it, with as little delay as may be possible.

I have, &c.,

SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES.

MAJOR BRYAN COOPER asked the Minister for External Affairs whether the Saorstát has signed the Protocol for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes unanimously recommended by the Assembly of the League of Nations, and if this is not the case, whether the Executive Council accepts the principle embodied in the Protocol.

MINISTER FOR EXTERNAL AFFAIRS (Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald): The Executive Council are in full agreement with the general principle of the Protocol, namely, that arbitration should be substituted for armed force in international disputes, but before signing they wish to give serious consideration to each one of the Articles, and, if necessary, to submit the Protocol for the approval of the Oireachtas.

MAJOR COOPER: Is the Minister aware that at least twelve States, including France, have already signed the Protocol, and are we going to be the last?

MR. FITZGERALD: I am aware that twelve States have already signed, but we have until next May to sign, so that we need not necessarily be the last.

MINUTE No. 845.

WITH reference to His Excellency the Governor-General's Minute (Confidential) No. 37/360 of the 3rd October, 1924, enclosing copy of Dominions despatch No. 446, Confidential, dated 6th September, 1924, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies on the subject of compulsory jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice, Ministers have the honour to inform His Excellency the Governor-General that the matter is receiving the careful consideration of the Union Government, and Ministers have come to the conclusion that it is not necessary at this stage, at all events, for the Union Government to offer any observations on the question.

13TH NOVEMBER. Your Confidential despatch Dominions No. 446 of 6th September and your Secret despatch of same date.† My Ministers advise me to the following effect: New Zealand Government strongly objects to the proposal that Great Britain should make a declaration under Article No. 36 of the Protocol establishing Permanent Court of International Justice recognizing as compulsory the jurisdiction of that Court in the classes of legal dispute defined in that Article. Upon a number of matters of International Law and in particular upon those relating to belligerent rights at sea it is clear that the view taken by Continental jurists conflicts with long-established principles and essential interests of Great Britain. New Zealand Government wholly dissents from the latest opinion expressed by Sir Cecil Hurst and emphatically agrees with the views expressed in Lord Balfour's [Haldane's] memorandum and in the carefully-reasoned Foreign Office memorandum initialled "E. A. C." and the Prime Minister trusts that no such declaration will ever be made without most carefully reserving, so far as Great Britain is concerned, matters of vital interest from the jurisdiction of the Permanent Court since it is a foregone conclusion that the decision on such matters, if submitted to a Court constituted of a majority of foreign jurists, will be adverse to Great Britain.—JELLICOE.

21ST NOVEMBER. With reference to letter* from Secretary-General, League of Nations, 11th October, C.L. 141 (a), letter has been sent by His Majesty's Government to Secretary-General 15th November in following terms:—

Begins: Owing to very recent accession to office His Majesty's Government will not be able for some time to form considered opinion on terms of Protocol for Pacific Settlement of International Disputes drawn up by Fifth Assembly nor will they be able to furnish proper instructions to their representative on Council for purpose of preparatory work for proposed Conference on reduction of armaments which it is contemplated should be undertaken by Council at next meeting. They find themselves therefore to their great regret obliged to request that this item of agenda of next meeting of Council may be postponed to later session when they will have been able to give it close attention which its great importance necessitates. Ends.

This step has been taken in order to allow His Majesty's Government more time to study exceedingly important problems involved and in particular on account of their desire to arrive at agreement with Dominion Governments before any further action taken in regard to Protocol.—AMERY.

THERE is one pressing matter raising issues which affect the vital interests of the whole Empire, on which personal consultation is, in the view of His Majesty's Government, essential. With regard to the arrangements to be made for securing personal consultation His Majesty's Government hope to communicate with your Ministers at a very early date.

We note, too, that you contemplate suggesting at an early date some method of personal consultation in connexion with the very important question of the Geneva Protocol. Public opinion in Australia, as you are doubtless aware, has already been considerably excited over this matter, and it is of the utmost importance to us that no action shall be taken by the British Government unless we have been fully consulted, and that such action when taken shall represent the considered opinion of the whole Empire. Until I hear further from you as to what you propose to ensure the fullest consultation and co-operation of the various parts of the Empire, my Government does not propose to take any further action in this connexion. Ends.

CONFIDENTIAL. 19th December. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: We have now been able to give preliminary examination to terms of Geneva Protocol for Pacific Settlement of International Disputes and are greatly impressed with momentous character of question both in its scope and in its consequences. Not only does instrument itself raise issues of highest importance involving as they do such matters as the submission to compulsory arbitration even of vital interests and the imposition of sanctions of the most drastic character, but its consideration necessarily brings to the forefront far-reaching problems affecting the security of the Empire, and its future relations to the countries of Europe and the United States of America.

We conceive it to be essential that in regard to a problem of this magnitude the Empire should have a single policy, and we are equally convinced that such a policy can only be determined as a result of personal consultation between Ministers. The first question to be considered therefore is how soon can such consultation take place.

At recent session of Council of League of Nations, which as you know was attended by Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, it became evident that it would be expected that at any rate some preliminary pronouncement should be made on behalf of British Empire at next meeting of Council in middle of March. We should like, therefore, if it is at all possible, to arrange a special meeting of Imperial Conference to discuss whole problem before that time. Character of issues is, in our opinion, such as to render presence of Prime Ministers highly desirable, and we greatly hope, therefore, that you may be able to attend in person. Would this be possible if Conference began in first week of March? If not, could you depute one of your colleagues in the Government to take your place and what would be the earliest date at which he could reach London?

Similar message sent to other Dominion Prime Ministers. BALDWIN.

19TH DECEMBER. Secret. Please communicate to your Prime Minister following message from Prime Minister which has been sent also to other Dominion Prime Ministers:—

Begins: Geneva Protocol. My telegram of to-day's date* was framed in such a way as to be suitable for publication eventually if necessary. I should add for your secret information that the problem has been discussed at two Meetings of Committee of Imperial Defence. Full reports of these Meetings will be sent to you. Secretary of State for the Colonies has sent to you already various memoranda prepared for these meetings by departments. Sub-Committee was appointed at second of these Meetings with terms of reference as follows:—

(1) How far Protocol is susceptible of being amended so as to meet the criticisms that have been directed against it, and alternatively,

(2) what are the principles which should be adopted if it should be desired to substitute some other proposals for Protocol.

There is, therefore, already available, as you will observe, a considerable amount of material for study of problem and more will be ready before date proposed for Meetings. It really is not possible for me at the present moment to give you any indication of our own view on Protocol beyond saying that, in spite of the fact that criticisms of an extremely cogent character can be directed against its terms, we are of opinion that the rejection of the instrument without at least some attempt being made to formulate in substitution some positive policy to govern our future relations with Europe on the one hand and the United States on the other would be a mistaken policy and even a disastrous one. After you have had an opportunity of considering the papers which we are sending we should be very glad to receive any preliminary expression of opinion which you may be able to give.

You will be interested to know that Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the course of his visits recently to Paris and Rome gained the impression that, whilst Belgium cannot afford not to show enthusiasm for the Protocol and France is pledged to it, the Protocol is not regarded by either of these countries as forming a substitute for some kind of Defence Pact between themselves and Great Britain of the nature of those which received consideration some years ago.

Benes felt also that a Defence Pact to supplement the Protocol would be necessary. It was clear also that the difficulties which arise out of the instrument for the British Empire with interests in all parts of the world and corresponding obligations had not been fully comprehended by him. Mussolini had no enthusiasm for Protocol. The Foreign Secretary is making inquiries confidentially with a view to ascertaining the real views of United States Government on Protocol. BALDWIN. Ends.

Begins: I note that the Committee of Imperial Defence have discussed the Protocol, that full reports which I await with interest are being forwarded, and that you are unable to give at this stage any indication of the views of the British Government. Although, therefore, I will give you the earliest possible indication of our attitude towards the proposed Conference, you will readily appreciate that it is impossible for my Government to express an opinion as to the necessity of such a Conference pending consultation with Sir Littleton Groom and receipt of all information.

I entirely concur in the view that it would be most unwise to reject the Protocol except for some cogent reasons or without endeavouring to formulate some positive alternative policy, but Australia on the other hand will not allow any abrogation of her rights with regard to immigration and is anxious that the policy pursued shall, if possible, be acceptable to the United States. I note in this connexion that Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs is endeavouring by confidential inquiries to ascertain the United States Government's real opinion on this subject, which I regard as a most essential preliminary to any discussion as to the British Empire's policy. Ends.

23RD DECEMBER. Confidential. Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your telegram of 19th December† setting out views of His Majesty's Government with regard to importance of issue involved in Geneva Protocol. Commonwealth Government agrees that it is of the utmost importance that on this difficult and delicate matter Empire should have a single policy and speak with a single voice.

Before expressing an opinion with regard to your suggestion that a Conference should be (groups omitted) held in March, however, my Government feels that it must await the return of Sir Littleton Groom, who is expected back on the 10th January. Up to the present the Government has received very little information as to what actually transpired at Geneva. Draft copy of the Protocol is to have (?hand), but the opinions of the British Government's legal expert(s) in regard thereto which apparently largely determined the attitude of the Empire's representative(s) have not been received and presumably will come with Sir Littleton Groom. In the circumstances the Commonwealth Government has refrained from any comment whatsoever, stating that on the return of its representative the whole position would be closely examined. This will be done immediately on Sir Littleton Groom's return, and my Government will then be in a position to communicate with you as to its views upon the Protocol and also as to necessity for personal consultation in order to enable a single Empire Policy to be evolved. As my Government sees the position at present it believes that consultation by cable should enable such a policy to be evolved and would welcome an indication of the views of His Majesty's Government and also of the other Governments of the Empire.

In the event of its being demonstrated that it is impossible to deal adequately with this matter by cable, it will be necessary for personal consultations to take place, but with regard to such consultations placed as I am I feel that it is practically impossible for me personally to attend, and grave difficulties are in the way of another Minister being sent in my place.

In view of this fact my Government urge very strongly that every effort should be made to deal with this matter by cable communications.

In this connexion I would point out that press cables have already indicated that a conference will be held in March to consider the Protocol. The form of these cables would appear to indicate that they have been inspired, but even if this were not so it appears clear that some leakage must have occurred. I would emphasize to you what an embarrassing position this places Dominion Governments in and how undesirable it is that such a question should be discussed in the public press when there are grave doubts that it will be possible for Dominion Prime Ministers to attend such a Conference. Ends.

The Canadian Government has given question some preliminary consideration; it is now being examined by the Departmental Committee, and will in the immediate future be gone into in detail by the Cabinet. We agree that it is highly desirable that similar attitude should be adopted towards Protocol by countries of the British Empire which are Members of the League of Nations. The suggestion, however, to hold the Imperial Conference in London to be attended by Prime Ministers of Dominions as well as of Great Britain in March to discuss question does not appear practicable. Our Parliament has been called for the first week in February. It would be quite impossible for me to be absent from Canada for any length of time during the Session and pressure of legislative duties would also make it difficult for any of the Ministers particularly concerned to be similarly absent.

We would suggest interchange of opinions by cable and post with understanding that, if these means are found inadequate and if other Dominions consider it practicable to attend Conference in London, Canadian Government will be prepared to consider proposal again. Ends.

(6) Registration of Treaties under Article 18.

No. 352.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

MR. E. J. HARDING to SIR R. R. GARRAN.

DEAR GARRAN,

Downing Street, 22nd May, 1924.

I HAVE been asked to write about certain points which have arisen in connexion with the registration of treaties with the League of Nations under Article 18 of the Covenant. The question arises primarily from the fact that the Foreign Office have received from the Secretary-General of the League a certificate of registration of a convention between the Commonwealth of Australia and the Federated Malay States for the exchange of money orders, signed at Kuala Lumpur on the 7th September, 1920, and at Melbourne on the 24th January, 1921.

* No. 341.

2. The question was raised by one of the Colonies not long ago whether postal conventions between different parts of the Empire were to be regarded as falling within the scope of Article 18 of the Covenant, and the reply returned by the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Foreign Office, was that agreements between different parts of the Empire, whether such parts individually are separate Members of the League or not, are not to be regarded as falling within the scope of Article 18, and are therefore not included among the Conventions which would be registered with the League. The Federated Malay States are, of course, not part of His Majesty's Dominions, but they are under His Majesty's protection, and their external relations with foreign countries are in our hands; so that for all international purposes they form part of the British Empire.

3. The Secretary of State would have sent an official despatch to the Governor-General in this sense, but it was thought advisable in the first instance to make private inquiries as to whether the Commonwealth Government had some special reason for registering this particular Convention.

4. Apart from this point, the question has recently arisen what is the most convenient procedure for the registration with the League of any Treaties and Conventions with foreign States especially affecting one of the Dominions.

5. The Foreign Office are anxious that the Treaty Series of Papers laid before Parliament should include such Treaties and Conventions as far as possible, since they attach importance to this Series of Papers being preserved as a complete record of all international agreements of consequence concluded by or on behalf of the various parts of the Empire, and their regular practice has hitherto been to publish such instruments in the Treaty Series and to register them with the League Secretariat as soon as they have been so published. They would be glad to continue this practice and to make the necessary arrangements for the inclusion of instruments particularly affecting Australia amongst those which they communicate themselves to the League Secretariat for registration, if this course would be of convenience to the Commonwealth Government. I may mention that this question was recently raised with the Canadian Government in connexion with the registration of the Italo-Canadian Commercial Convention, copies of which were enclosed in the Secretary of State's despatch Dominions No. 114 of the 12th March,* and the Canadian Government have asked that His Majesty's Government will include the Convention among those which they communicate to the League Secretariat for registration.

6. It had been suggested that we should ask the Commonwealth Government officially for their views on this question, but, having regard to the fact that the Commonwealth Government have themselves registered the Money Order Convention with the Federated Malay States, we should be grateful for your opinion first as to the advisability of our writing officially on the point.

7. I am sending this letter to you partly in your capacity as Commonwealth Secretary at the Imperial Conference, and partly because I am not sure who is now Secretary to the Prime Minister's Department.

Yours sincerely,

E. J. HARDING.

Note.—No reply to this letter had been received up to the end of 1924.

(No. 17/37039/37039.)

THE Secretary-General of the League of Nations has the honour to inform His Britannic Majesty's Government that the Representative of the Irish Free State, accredited to the League of Nations, has presented to him on behalf of his Government, for the purpose of registration, the Treaty concluded between Great Britain and Ireland on the 6th December, 1921.

Under the terms of Article 18 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, the above-mentioned Treaty was registered with the Secretariat on 11th July, 1924, and will be published in the League's "Treaty Series" as soon as possible.

A certificate of registration will be forwarded to His Britannic Majesty's Government in due course.

MEMORANDUM ON THE REGISTRATION OF THE IRISH "TREATY" WITH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

A DESPATCH from the Governor-General of the Irish Free State was received on the 7th of July* stating that in conformity with Article 18 of the Covenant of the League of Nations his Ministers had instructed their representative at Geneva to deposit for registration the Treaty concluded on the 6th December, 1921, between Ireland and Great Britain. Intimation has since been received that the Treaty was registered by the Secretariat on the 11th July.

Article 18 of the Covenant of the League is as follows:—

"Every treaty or international engagement entered into hereafter by any member of the League shall be forthwith registered with the Secretariat, and shall as soon as possible be published by it. No such treaty or international engagement shall be binding until so registered."

* No. 353.

No doubt one of the chief objects of the Free State Government's action was to enable them, if they should at any time think it expedient to do so, to bring the Boundary question before the League and possibly the Permanent Court of International Justice. It seems, however, to be destructive of the Empire to allow any question relating to the interpretation of the Articles of Agreement to be dealt with by the League as though it were a question arising between two independent and sovereign states. It has indeed always been the view of His Majesty's Government that the Covenant of the League is not intended to regulate the relations between the various parts of the British Empire which are members of the League.

It became necessary to consider what protest should be made against the registration of the Articles of Agreement and at what time.

The matter was submitted to the Secretary of State before he left for South Africa. On the one hand, Mr. Thomas was extremely anxious to do nothing which would tend further to excite political feeling in the Irish Free State, before the Boundary Commission Bill is passed. On the other hand, he felt that it was impossible to let the episode pass wholly sub silentio, as to do so might affect the whole constitutional position of the various parts of the British Empire in relation to the League.

Mr. Thomas therefore decided to instruct the Assistant Secretary in charge of the Irish Branch (who was visiting Dublin on other business) to explain personally to Mr. Cosgrave the position and the attitude of His Majesty's Government.

The correspondence annexed results from this interview and shows some misunderstanding on the part of President Cosgrave. The question of the registration of the Articles of Agreement may arise at Geneva, or attention may be drawn to it in the press.

It may be added that the Commonwealth Government recently took action which might conceivably be quoted as a precedent in registering with the League postal agreements with the Federated Malay States and Nauru. This action was probably per incuriam, and the attention of the Commonwealth authorities has been drawn to the matter privately.*

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

Downing Street, 13th August, 1924.

ALTHOUGH it was, I think, agreed that no formal despatches on the subject should be sent at present, it will probably be well to place on record in this informal way that the question of the registration of the Treaty with the League of Nations was mentioned at our interview last week. I then informed you, by direction of the Secretary of State, that inasmuch as the action of the Irish Free State Government raised questions of very great constitutional importance as to the relations between the component parts of the Empire, he thought that His Majesty's Government would feel bound, in order to make their own position clear, to inform the Secretariat of the League that they did not agree that the Treaty was an instrument proper to be registered under Article 18 of the Covenant.

I understood you to take the view that, in these circumstances, the matter was one which ought to be considered by the Imperial Conference; and I understood you further to agree that, for the present, the matter should, if possible, be left in abeyance.

I am placing this letter on confidential record at the Colonial Office, and will show it to the Secretary of State on his return so that he may be aware of what passed between us and of your desire that the subject should be noted for consideration at the next Imperial Conference.

Yours sincerely,

G. G. WHISKARD.

The President's Office, Upper Merrion Street, Dublin,

14th August, 1924.

DEAR MR. WHISKARD,

I HAVE your letter of the 13th. I must say that it surprised me very much indeed. I understood you to say to me that there was no objection and would be none to the Registration of the Treaty, but that a formal communication to this effect was not a matter which the Secretary of State would like to send. I may say that if I were to have inferred from you that there was a likelihood of objection to Registration I would not have undertaken the responsibility of moving the first reading of the Bill on Tuesday.

Up to date of Mr. Henderson's and Mr. Thomas's visit we had understood that the Treaty was duly registered without objection.

In accordance with Article 18 of the Covenant it was obviously our duty to register the Treaty as the Treaty regulated the relations between two States members of the League. We accordingly submitted the Treaty for registration as we informed you on the 5th July, and we are informed the Treaty was duly registered on the 11th July.

Failure to register might rightly have been regarded as a breach of the Covenant.

I understood that I pointed out to you how much this matter affected us here, that the Treaty was a matter between two nations, and as such was regarded by those who supported it.

Yours sincerely,

W. T. COSGRAVE.

Enclosure 3 in No. 355.

c/o Mrs. Lartar, Palling-on-Sea, Norfolk,

22nd August, 1924.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

YOUR letter of the 14th instant as to the registration of the Treaty with the League of Nations has been forwarded to me here; and I hasten to reply to it as well as I can away from the office.

I am much concerned that so considerable a misunderstanding should have arisen between us, and I am at a loss to know how it can have arisen, unless it be due to the fact that the matter was discussed at a moment when there was not much time available, and when, moreover, you had had no warning that it would be raised.

What I intended to say (on the direct instructions of the Secretary of State immediately before he left for South Africa), and what I certainly thought I had said, was this:—

The registration of the Treaty raised constitutional questions of such importance to the Empire that Mr. Thomas felt that he could not take the responsibility of acquiescing in it.

He felt, however, the weight of the political considerations in the Free State—considerations which you emphasized and with which, I think I may fairly say, he fully sympathizes. He therefore did not propose in present circumstances to enter any formal objection either to the League or to the Free State: but in order that the standpoint of the British Government might not be prejudiced hereafter, he thought it would be necessary to inform the League, without giving any reasons, that His Majesty's Government did not agree that the Treaty was a document proper to be registered.

I understood you to acquiesce in this position as leaving the matter open, and meanwhile to agree that, in present circumstances, it was undesirable that any formal despatches should pass between us or that the matter should be raised at the next Assembly of the League.

This is, of course, a very considerable expansion of my letter of the 13th; but that letter was only intended as the barest record of a conversation as to the purport of which I had hoped we were both agreed. I am indeed sorry to learn that this is not so.

My own feeling is that it would be best now for the whole matter to await Mr. Thomas's return—which will be some time before the 30th September. But as it is conceivable that the question might arise at the Assembly of the League, I think I should add that, as I understand it, the British Government have consistently taken the view that neither the Covenant of the League of Nations nor Conventions negotiated under the auspices of the League are to be regarded as regulating the internal relations between the various parts of the British Empire. In fact, a provision designed to make this clear has been inserted in a number of such Conventions. (This has, if I remember rightly, been explained to the Free State Government in an official despatch from the Secretary of State some time in the early part of this year.) If therefore the question should arise at the Assembly, I am sure that the British representatives would feel compelled to adopt this attitude, though, as I mentioned at our interview, the view taken in London was that any public discussion of the matter at Geneva would be unfortunate.

Yours sincerely,

G. G. WHISKARD.

I HAVE the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that His Majesty's Government have had under consideration your despatch No. 258 of 5th July* notifying that, in conformity with Article 18 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, your Ministers had instructed their representative at Geneva to deposit for registration the Treaty concluded on the 6th of December, 1921, between Ireland and Great Britain.

of Nations, and to state that Article 18 of the Convention of the League clearly imposes upon States' Members of the League an obligation to deposit for registration all Treaties and International engagements entered into by them.

2. Inasmuch as the Irish Free State is a member of the League and as the Treaty is the basis of the relations existing between the Irish Free State and the remaining members of the Commonwealth—also States Members of the League—my Ministers were and are convinced that, in pursuance of Article 18 of the Covenant, it was eminently their duty to deposit the Treaty for registration. Action to this effect was accordingly taken and the Treaty was duly registered on the 11th July of the present year.

3. As a condition of admission to membership of the League the Irish Free State gave guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations and to carry out all the obligations involved in membership of the League. In the opinion of my Ministers the view, expressed on behalf of the British Government in the despatch under reply, that the terms of Article 18 of the Covenant are not applicable to the Treaty, constitutes a disavowal of that Article of the Covenant and would, if accepted by my Ministers, involve a repudiation of their guarantees. My Ministers are, therefore, unable to accept that view.

IRISH FREE STATE AND LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

MR. ROSE asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs why the British Government has given notice to the Secretariat of the League of Nations stating that matters affecting the Irish Free State are not in their opinion within the ambit of the League's authority; will he state the reasons which actuated His Majesty's Government in arriving at such a decision; whether any intimation of the Government's view has been circulated to the Governments which are members of the League; and what replies, if any, have been received?

MR. CHAMBERLAIN: His Majesty's Government have made no such statement. They have, however, informed the Secretary-General of the League of Nations that, in their opinion, the terms of Article 18 of the Covenant are not applicable to the articles of agreement for a Treaty between Great Britain and Ireland signed on the 6th December, 1921. The ground for this action as stated in the letter addressed by His Majesty's Government to the Secretary-General was that since the Covenant came into force His Majesty's Government have consistently taken the view that neither it, nor any Conventions concluded under the auspices of the League, are intended to govern the relations inter se of the various parts of the British Commonwealth. The letter from His Majesty's Government to the Secretary-General has been circulated to members of the League in the usual manner.

IRISH FREE STATE.

SIR,

Ministry of Foreign Affairs, 18th December, 1924.

I AM directed by the Minister for External Affairs to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 8th instant, enclosing copy of the letter addressed to you by the British Government concerning the Registration of the Treaty concluded between Great Britain and Ireland on the 6th December, 1921.

The Government of the Irish Free State cannot see that any useful purpose would be served by the initiation of a controversy as to the intentions of any individual signatory to the Covenant. The obligations contained in Article 18 are, in their opinion, imposed in the most specific terms on every member of the League and they are unable to accept the contention that the clear and unequivocal language of that Article is susceptible of any interpretation compatible with the limitation which the British Government now seek to read into it.

They accordingly dissent from the view expressed by the British Government that the terms of Article 18 are not applicable to the Treaty of 6th December, 1921.

I have, &c.,

J. P. WALSH,
Secretary.

Attached 58941

No. 363.

MEMORANDUM ON THE REGISTRATION OF THE "ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT" OF 6TH DECEMBER, 1921, BY THE IRISH FREE STATE UNDER ARTICLE 18 OF THE COVENANT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

THE following considerations bear on what may be called the formal side of the question raised by the Irish Free State Government:—

(1) If the Articles of Agreement come within the terms of Article 18 of the Covenant, it would appear, in view of the express terms of that Article, that the Articles of Agreement were not binding either upon Great Britain or upon the Irish Free State prior to 11th July last. His Majesty's Government have certainly never so regarded the Articles of Agreement; on the contrary, they have always regarded them as binding upon them in the fullest sense since they were given the force of law by the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922. That the Government of the Free State have regarded them as equally binding from the first has been repeatedly shown not only by their public statements but by their actions.

(2) If the Articles of Agreement are a "Treaty or International Engagement" within the meaning of Article 18 of the Covenant, it would have been the duty of the British Government to have registered them in December, 1921, the more so as at that date the Irish Free State, which was not then recognizable as a self-governing Dominion (see (3) infra) was incapable of doing so. The fact that the British Government did not then or subsequently register the Articles of Agreement is evidence that the view expressed in Mr. Thomas's despatch of 4th November,* namely, that neither the Covenant of the League nor any Conventions concluded under the auspices of the League, are intended to govern the relations inter se of the various parts of the British Commonwealth, is not a view invented to meet the situation created by the action of the Free State Government, but is one which was previously held by His Majesty's Government.

* No. 356.

In fact that view was enunciated even before December, 1921. Early in that year the question arose in connexion with the League of Nations Conference on Transit and Communications at Barcelona how best to indicate, in technical Conventions of the kind negotiated at that Conference, that the internal relations between different parts of the British Empire were not to be regarded as regulated by the terms of the Conventions. After a good deal of discussion, the question was settled by the insertion of the following clause in the Conventions relating to Freedom of Transit (Treaty Series 27 of 1923) and the régime of Navigable Waterways (Treaty Series 29 of 1923):—

"It is understood that this Statute must not be interpreted as regulating in any way rights and obligations inter se of territories forming part or placed under the protection of the same sovereign State, whether or not these territories are individually members of the League of Nations."

The same Article appears in the Customs Formalities Convention negotiated at Geneva in October and November, 1923, and in the Conventions relating to railways, maritime ports, electric power and hydraulic power negotiated at the Conference on Transit and Communications held at Geneva in the autumn of 1923.

The insertion of the same or a similar Article has been considered in connexion with other Conventions (e.g., that on Workmen's Compensation, negotiated at the International Labour Conference, 1924), but on the occasion of the latter Convention it was thought unnecessary to insist on the Article, and it does not appear in other Conventions, such as that on the Traffic in Women and Children (Treaty Series 26 of 1923) and on Obscene Publications. The main question to be considered in each case is whether the Convention simply contains provisions of an administrative character, or whether it may lead to arbitration or judicial decisions, e.g., a reference to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

It may be added that an explanation of the interpretation of the Article in question has already been given to the Irish Free State in Mr. Thomas's despatch of the 27th March, 1924,* on the Customs Formalities Convention in the following terms:—

"The inclusion of the Article to which your Ministers refer in international instruments negotiated under the auspices of the League of Nations is designed to make it clear that the internal relations between the various parts of the British Empire are not intended to be regulated by the terms of such instruments."

(3) The Articles of Agreement are not in themselves the fundamental instrument on which the existence of the Irish Free State is based. At the date of the signature of those Articles, and for some months thereafter, the Irish Free State had no de jure existence, and was neither recognized, nor capable of recognition, internationally as a self-governing Dominion. That status was created not by the Articles of Agreement but by the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922, which was passed on 31st March, 1922, by the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, which up to that date alone possessed internationally recognized legislative authority over the area which is now the Irish Free State.

That the Articles of Agreement were not valid in themselves but required legislation by the British Parliament to constitute the Free State is shown by No. 18 of the Articles themselves, which requires in terms that they shall be ratified "by the necessary legislation;" and that it was this legislation, and not the Articles of Agreement, which rendered the Free State eligible for membership of the League of Nations is borne out by the Report of the Sixth Commission of the 1923 Assembly of the League of Nations on the subject of the eligibility of the Free State for admission to the League, in which the Act of 1922 is referred to as "the fundamental law constituting the Irish Free State."

The Governor-General's despatch of 16th December, 1924,† raises, however, wider issues. It refers to the "relations between the Irish Free State and the remaining members of the Commonwealth—also States members of the League" as being based on the Articles of Agreement of December, 1921, and it seems necessary to examine this phraseology and its implications.

The words in Annex I to the Covenant of the League of Nations which set out the position of the British Commonwealth as regards membership are as follows:—

* No. 375. † No. 300.

British Empire—

Canada.
Australia.
South Africa.
New Zealand.
India.

As the Irish Free State became a member of the League, as a self-governing Dominion, in 1923, if the list of members in Annex I were to be reprinted so as to show the membership now existing, presumably the Irish Free State would appear after New Zealand, or possibly India. It is understood that there are no records to show how the words in this Annex relating to the British Commonwealth came to be adopted, but presumably they were designed to follow, as far as possible, the arrangements for representation of the British Empire at the Paris Peace Conference.

As they stand, the words seem to contemplate

- (a) Membership of the League by the British Empire as a whole, and
- (b) in addition, individual membership of the Dominions and India.

If this interpretation is correct, it follows that the United Kingdom is not itself a separate member of the League. The phraseology employed in the Irish Free State despatch quoted above, seems, accordingly, based on a misunderstanding of the position.

Assuming, however, that the exact meaning of the words in the Covenant is not insisted upon, and it is, of course, the fact that the words have been variously interpreted at different times since the Covenant came into force, and that for the practical purposes of the League the words "British Empire" are often treated as though they meant "United Kingdom," it remains to be considered what would be the result if it could be successfully maintained that the Covenant, and international agreements generally, signed and ratified on behalf of all or any of the Governments of the Empire, were binding as between those Governments.

In effect, the result would seem to be that the various parts of the British Empire would be held internationally to stand in relation to one another in the same position as the whole Empire, and to some extent the various parts of it, now stand in relation to foreign countries.

The following examples will show how such a situation would work out:—

(a) In matters of war and peace, the British Empire has, so far, been always treated internationally as a unit. If one part of the Empire is at war, the whole is held to be at war.*

But the Covenant of the League, and still more the Geneva Protocol of 1924, contain clauses regarding sanctions of an economic and military nature, to be directed in certain circumstances by members against one another, which, if deemed to be applicable as between the various parts of the British Empire inter se, could only result in the position that parts of the Empire might simultaneously be held to be:—

- (1) From the international point of view at war against one another;
- (2) From the Imperial point of view at war on behalf of one another.

(b) In the judicial sphere, the doctrine that the various parts of the British Empire were bound inter se by the provisions of the Covenant, and possibly the Geneva Protocol (should it ever come into force) would mean that the whole machinery of Council, Assembly, and Permanent Court of International Justice would be held applicable in the event of disputes between one part and another.

The Irish Free State might, indeed, welcome this as a means of settlement of the Boundary question; but how would the doctrine be viewed by, say, the Union of South Africa when it was realized that one of its effects might be to enable India to bring before the Assembly or the Council, under Article 11 of the Covenant, the question of Indian immigration into South Africa as a circumstance "threatening to disturb international peace."

(c) In the matter of commercial relations, the system of Imperial Preference is founded on the theory that, whilst His Majesty's Government and the Dominion Governments are each free to make such fiscal arrangements as they like with foreign countries, these arrangements, so long as they do not concede "national" treatment to foreign imports, do not operate to give to foreign countries the benefit of any special arrangements made with other parts of the Empire.

* That the correctness of this is admitted, even by the Irish Free State, would appear to be implied by Article XLIX of the Constitution.

It was because the Treaties with Belgium and Germany of 1862 and 1865 respectively included Articles giving "national" treatment in the Dominions to Belgian and German goods, that they were denounced in 1897 by His Majesty's Government on the ground that these Articles were inconsistent with the internal fiscal arrangements of the British Empire. Again, when, at the end of the War, the Belgian Government asked His Majesty's Government to concede to Belgian goods the benefits of any preferential tariff in force in the United Kingdom, His Majesty's Government declined on the ground that it would be impossible for them to comply with the request "without detriment to the whole inter-Imperial principle involved."

If, however, the Dominions and the United Kingdom were held to be, in relation to one another, in the same position as foreign countries are in relation to any of them, it would be necessary for the Governments concerned either to put an end altogether to special concessions to other parts of the Empire, or to extend the benefits of such concessions to any country entitled to "most-favoured-nation" treatment.

(d) It would seem difficult, if not impossible, to maintain the principle of the diplomatic unity of the British Empire in connexion with the representation of His Majesty at foreign capitals should it be held that the Dominions and the United Kingdom were for practical purposes independent nations. Yet this is a principle which the various Governments from time to time have declared to be of first-class importance.

Thus in the agreed public announcement made in Parliament here and in Canada in 1920, at the time when the appointment of a Canadian Minister at Washington had been settled between His Majesty's Government and the Canadian Government, it was stated:—

"This new arrangement will not denote any departure, either on the part of the British Government or of the Canadian Government, from the principle of diplomatic unity of the British Empire."

When the arrangements for an Irish Free State Minister at Washington were under discussion early in 1924, the Commonwealth Government expressed the view that the new appointment proposed might lead to consequences having a serious effect on the principle of the diplomatic unity of the Empire. The Prime Minister of New Zealand recorded the view that it was "essential that all territories of the Crown should be united in their relations to foreign powers," and the belief that "union can only be maintained by a single representative of the Crown in every foreign capital."

His Majesty's Government stated to the Irish Free State Government that they assumed that it was the latter's intention that the appointment of a Minister at Washington should not denote any departure from the principle of the diplomatic unity of the British Empire. The Irish Free State Government replied that they did not apprehend that "the principle of diplomatic unity in the Commonwealth will be affected." The announcement made to the United States Government intimated that "the arrangements proposed by His Majesty's Government would not denote any departure from the principle of the diplomatic unity of the Empire."

(e) An illustration of the diplomatic unity of the British Empire as it now exists is found in the protection accorded by His Majesty's Representatives at foreign capitals to all British subjects irrespective of the part of the Empire with which they are connected; another illustration is found in the wording of Commercial Treaties negotiated on behalf of His Majesty's Government with foreign Governments whereby personal rights are secured for all British subjects in the foreign countries concerned.

It would seem difficult, if not impossible, to maintain the present practice in these respects, which depends on the principle of a common Imperial nationality, should the Dominions henceforward be treated as separate nations in relation to foreign countries. Yet the principle in question was described at the Imperial Conference of 1923, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, as "vital," and Imperial nationality as "one and indivisible."

Generally speaking, it seems not too much to say that the effect of acceptance of the doctrine put forward by the Irish Free State would be to destroy the whole conception of the British Empire as it is now understood.

[MY LORD.] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 19th January, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to invite reference to the International Convention relating to the Simplification of Customs Formalities and the Protocol thereto, contained in

* No. 365.

League of Nations paper C.D.I.96 (1) 193, a copy of which was forwarded to the Members of the League of Nations in a letter from the Secretary-General C.L.131, 1923, V, of the 28th November. The Convention was negotiated at an International Conference in Geneva, at which [To Canada only: Canada was represented by the Hon. P. Roy.] [To Australia only: the Commonwealth of Australia was represented by Mr. C. A. B. Campion.] [To Irish Free State only: the Irish Free State was represented by Mr. C. J. Flynn.] [To New Zealand only: Mr. C. A. B. Campion, the representative of the Commonwealth of Australia, acted as observer on behalf of New Zealand.]

2. It is contemplated that the Convention should in due course be ratified by His Majesty, so far as concerns this country, the Colonies not possessing responsible Government, and British Protectorates. The position of Newfoundland, Southern Rhodesia and the Territories mandated to Great Britain is under consideration. It would be convenient to His Majesty's Government to learn, before the instrument of ratification is prepared, whether Your Excellency's Ministers desire that the Convention (with the Protocol) should be also ratified on behalf of [Canada,] [the Commonwealth of Australia,] [New Zealand,] [the Irish Free State,] and, if so, what arrangements they contemplate for its signature. [Not to Irish Free State: I should be obliged if your Ministers' views could be communicated by telegraph.]

[To Australia and New Zealand only: 3. It will be observed that Article 29 of the Convention provides that any State signing the Convention may declare, at the moment of signature or ratification, that its acceptance does not include any or all of its Colonies, Overseas Possessions, Protectorates, or Overseas Territories under its sovereignty or authority. In the event of your Ministers deciding to participate in the Convention but desiring that [Papua, Norfolk Island and the Mandated Territory of New Guinea] [Western Samoa] should be excluded, a decision would be necessary on the question whether a declaration under the Article should be made at the time of signature or postponed until ratification.]

[To Australia only: 4. The position of Nauru will also need consideration, and I shall be glad of your Ministers' observations as to the application of the Convention and Protocol to it.]

[To Irish Free State only: 3. Similar despatches are being sent to the other self-governing Dominions concerned.]

2. The Convention (with the Protocol) was signed on behalf of the Union of South Africa by Sir H. Llewellyn-Smith, and I should be glad to learn whether Your Excellency's Ministers would desire that it should be ratified on behalf of the Union. It would be convenient if your Ministers' decision could be communicated by telegraph.

3. It will be observed that Article 29 of the Convention provides that any State signing the Convention may declare, at the moment of signature or ratification, that its acceptance does not include any or all of its Colonies, Overseas Possessions, Protectorates or Overseas Territories under its sovereignty or authority. Enclosure in No. 382.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 17TH MAY, 1924.

(P.C. 744.)

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a Report, dated 28th April, 1924, from the Secretary of State for External Affairs, with reference to a communication from the Acting Secretary-General of the League of Nations, dated 28th November, 1923, forwarding certain documents in regard to the International Convention relating to the Simplification of Customs Facilities, and stating that the said Convention, the Protocol and the Final Act of the Conference would remain open for signature until the 31st of October, 1924.

The Minister, with the concurrence of the Minister of Customs and Excise, recommends that the above-mentioned Convention (with the Protocol) be not ratified on behalf of Canada for the following, among other reasons:—

1. Generally the Convention appears to be framed to apply to countries situated differently from Canada.

2. Article 10. Commercial Travellers' Samples, Regulations similar to those here stated are at present applied by Canada to the United Kingdom, British Colonies and Possessions and to the several countries accorded most-favoured-nation treatment in tariff matters by Canada.

It is inadvisable to extend such treatment to all countries, some of which would be able to benefit therefrom to an extent out of all proportion to reciprocal benefit to Canada.

3. Article 13. This provision if binding on Canada would complicate the administration of the Canadian Customs Tariff which provides only for Canadian analysis and test where necessary.

4. Article 16. Canada cannot be guided by principles laid down in the annex to this Article applying to goods imported or exported to undergo a manufacturing process, and to apparatus and articles employed for experiments or demonstrations and to samples, packing cases and wrappings, as such principles are entirely contrary to the Canadian Customs Tariff and practice.

The Minister observes that Mr. Philippe Roy, Commissioner-General for Canada in France, attended the Conference as Delegate for Canada but was not authorized to sign the Convention.

The Committee concur in the foregoing and on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for External Affairs, advise that a copy hereof, be forwarded to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, and to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in reply to Colonial Office despatch dated 19th January, 1924.

All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

Suisse avait consenti à assumer, à l'étranger, par l'intermédiaire de sa représentation diplomatique et consulaire, les intérêts de la Principauté de Liechtenstein.

En faisant suite à cette communications et d'ordre de mon Gouvernement, j'ai l'honneur de communiquer à Votre Excellence ce qui suit :

Au printemps 1919, la Principauté de Liechtenstein, aux prises avec de sérieuses difficultés, demanda au Conseil Fédéral Suisse de l'assister dans la sauvegarde de ses intérêts économiques. Celui-ci ne refusa pas l'aide que sollicitait le petit pays voisin, dont la superficie est de 159 kilomètres carrés et qui compte à peine 12,000 habitants. Des pourparlers furent engagés en vue de la conclusion entre les deux pays d'accords relatifs aux postes et aux douanes. En vertu d'une convention signée le 10 novembre, 1920, la Confédération Suisse a assumé l'exploitation du service postal, télégraphique et téléphonique dans la Principauté.

Ensuite, le 29 mars 1923, est intervenu entre la Suisse et la Principauté de Liechtenstein un traité réunissant la Principauté au territoire douanier suisse. Ce traité est entré en vigueur le 1er janvier 1924. Depuis cette date, toutes les dispositions réglementant les relations commerciales entre la Grande-Bretagne et la Suisse sont appliquées à la Principauté. Pendant la durée du Traité du 29 mars 1923, la Principauté de Liechtenstein ne peut négocier, de son propre chef, aucune convention de commerce et de douane avec un Etat tiers, mais il appartient à la Confédération Suisse de passer de telles conventions avec pleins effets pour la Principauté.

Le Conseil Fédéral croit pouvoir admettre que, vu les conditions très particuliers de la Principauté de Liechtenstein, le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté consentira à appliquer à celle-ci, tant et aussi longtemps qu'elle constituera une partie intégrante du territoire douanier suisse, les dispositions réglementant les relations commerciales entre la Grande-Bretagne et la Suisse.

Votre Excellence m'obligerait beaucoup en voulant bien prendre note de ce qui précède et en me donnant connaissance de l'attitude que le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté sera en mesure d'adopter par rapport à cet arrangement entre la Suisse et la Principauté de Liechtenstein.

Veuillez agréer, etc.,
C. R. PARAVICINI.

SIR,

Italian Embassy, London, 20th March, 1924.

WITH reference to my note No. 3247 of the 28th December last, I have the honour to inform you that the decree No. 2465 of the 15th October, 1923, giving effect in Italy and her Colonies to the Convention of the 31st October, 1920, for the combating of locusts was published in the Italian Official Gazette on the 30th November last.

In communicating the above to Your Excellency, for the purpose of ratification by Italy, I have the honour to inform you that the Convention in question should now be held to be in force in the following States in addition to Italy:—France, French West Africa, Algeria, Indo-China, Madagascar, Morocco (French Zone), Tunis (which countries ratified the Convention on the 3rd January, 1922), Spain (which adhered thereto on the 7th February, 1921), Australia (which adhered on the 30th June, 1921), and Egypt (which adhered on the 1st November, 1923.)

On the other hand the ratifications of the other contracting States, namely, Bulgaria, Cuba, Mexico, the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Hungary and Uruguay have not yet been received.

Certain of these States have, however, already conveyed the information that the Convention in question was in the process of being approved, and the Argentine Government have reported the approval of the Convention by that Republic, though they have not yet deposited the corresponding instrument of ratification.

I shall be grateful if Your Excellency will be good enough to communicate the foregoing to the Governments of the British Dominions also.

WITH reference to my predecessor's Confidential despatch Dominions Treaty No. 46 of the 6th of December, 1923,* [Not to Canada: and to my Confidential despatch of the 6th of September,†] I have the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, for the information of your Ministers, the accompanying copy of correspondence with the United States Ambassador on the subject of the proposed treaties with the United States of America respecting the former German territories in Central Africa now administered by His Majesty's Government under mandate on behalf of the League of Nations.

Enclosure 1 in No. 391.

(No. 54.)

SIR,

London, 18th February, 1924.

IN reply to the note, dated 26th November, 1923, of your predecessor, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, concerning the position of your Government with regard to the proposed Anglo-American treaties affecting the former German territories in Central Africa now administered by His Majesty's Government under mandate on behalf of the League of Nations, I have the honour, under instructions of my Government, to make the following statement:

The Government of the United States understands that except as to the text of the preambles there is now complete agreement between it and His Majesty's Government with respect to the terms of the proposed treaties affecting the former German territories in Central Africa now administered by His Majesty's Government under mandate on behalf of the League of Nations.

As explained in its previous notes on this subject, the Government of the United States, in proposing the text of the preambles in question, followed substantially the same form as has been accepted in the treaties with Belgium and France covering territories in Tropical Africa under mandates to those Governments, and in the Treaty with Japan covering the former German territories in the North Pacific Ocean under mandate to that Government, believing it to be desirable in the interest of uniformity to incorporate in the treaties proposed for negotiation between Great Britain and the United States substantially the same preambles as those incorporated in the other treaties mentioned above.

The Government of the United States adheres to the position it has heretofore taken, namely, that the right to dispose of the overseas possessions of Germany was acquired only through the victory of the Allied and Associated Powers and that there can be no valid or effective disposition of these territories without the assent of the United States as one of the participants in that victory. This position of the United States is not opposed but is confirmed by the Treaty of Versailles by which Germany renounced in favour of the principal Allied and Associated Powers, of which the United States was one, all her rights and titles over her overseas possessions. It may further be observed that, in providing (Article 440) that the Treaty, when ratified by Germany and three of the principal Allied and Associated Powers, should come into force between the ratifying Powers, it was manifestly not the intention that on such ratification by three Powers there should still remain in Germany any undivided share of right, title or sovereignty in the overseas possessions described. It would seem to be clear that the renunciation set forth in Article 119 of the Treaty was not intended to be divisible. In consequence, had the Treaty come into force on the ratification by only three of the principal Allied and Associated Powers, the renunciation would still have been completely effective, disposing of the entire interest of Germany, and Article 119 would necessarily have thus become effective according to its express terms—that is, in favour of the five principal Allied and Associated Powers, and not otherwise. The three ratifying Powers could have claimed no greater right or title than the Treaty gave and no exclusive right or title which the Treaty by its terms did not confer. There was the same result on the actual ratification of the Treaty and the failure of the United States to ratify did not qualify the terms of Germany's renunciation. Any different terms would necessarily require the agreement of the parties concerned, including Germany herself, and no such agreement was made. Subsequently, it may be added, Germany, by her Treaty with the United States, confirmed to the United States the rights and benefits accruing to it under Article 119 of the Treaty of Versailles. Thus it must be insisted that, both by virtue of the participation of the United States in the common victory, and by the explicit terms of Germany's renunciation of her overseas possessions, no valid disposition of the territories in question can be made without the consent of the United States and, as has already been pointed out, this consent can only be granted through a duly negotiated Treaty ratified with the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States. The Government of the United States cannot depart from this fundamental position and consequently is unable to admit that four of the five principal Allied and Associated Powers can accord to themselves or to others any privileged position or any advantages not equally accorded to the United States in the former German overseas possessions, title and right to which, as a result of the common victory, were renounced by Germany in favour of the five principal Allied and Associated Powers.

Although, as stated above, the Government of the United States believes that it would be desirable in the interest of uniformity if the preambles of the treaties which it is negotiating with His Majesty's Government could follow substantially the form of the preambles accepted by the Governments of Belgium, France and Japan in the treaties concluded between those countries and the United States, nevertheless the Government of the United States, while it maintains unqualifiedly the position it has taken with regard to its rights in mandated territories, is not disposed to insist unduly upon the mere form of the preambles heretofore suggested for incorporation in the pending treaties with Great Britain. Accordingly the Government of the United States submits for the consideration of His Majesty's Government the following alternative form of preamble which it is hoped satisfactorily meets the objections of the latter Government:

"Whereas His Britannic Majesty has accepted a mandate for the administration of part of the former colony of . . . the terms of which have been defined by the Council of the League of Nations as follows (insert terms of mandate except for preamble).

And,

Whereas the Government of the United States of America and the Government of His Britannic Majesty are desirous of reaching a definite understanding as to the rights of their respective Governments and of their nationals in the said territory:

The President of the United States of America and His Britannic Majesty have decided to conclude a Convention to this effect and have nominated as their plenipotentiaries, . . . etc."

The Government of the United States is willing to proceed immediately to the signature of these proposed treaties with the preambles modified as suggested herein.

I have the honour further to state that, should His Majesty's Government approve the form of preamble quoted above, I have no doubt that I shall be empowered to sign the treaties on behalf of my Government.

I have, &c.,
FRANK B. KELLOGG.

YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 29th July, 1924.

You recently inquired whether His Majesty's Government were in a position to reply to Your Excellency's note of the 18th February last, regarding the proposed treaties affecting the former German territories in Central Africa now administered by His Majesty's Government under mandate on behalf of the League of Nations, and to proceed to the conclusion of those treaties.

2. I have the honour to state that His Majesty's Government would prefer to postpone their final answer to the note in question until a more advanced stage has been reached in the negotiation of the Treaty relating to the British mandate in Palestine. Their views on the latest proposals of the United States Government in regard to that matter were communicated to you in my note of the 17th instant.

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 6th September, 1924.

WITH reference to [Your Excellency's Confidential despatch of the 7th April, 1923,*] [Your Excellency's Confidential despatch of the 2nd November, 1922,†] [Mr. Churchill's Confidential despatch of the 18th August, 1922,‡] I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that the United States Ambassador has inquired whether he may shortly expect a reply to the representations of the United States Government as to the position of the United States in relation to British "C" mandated territories.

2. As your Ministers are aware, consideration of the reply to the United States Government was deferred pending discussion at the Imperial Conference of 1923. The question was referred to a Committee of the Conference including the Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa. At a meeting of this Committee on the 23rd October, 1923, it was agreed that no reply need be sent to the United States Government on the general question raised by them, unless and until they brought the matter forward again, and that there should be further consultation as to the exact terms of the reply, though certain conclusions were reached as to the general nature of the reply which might be returned, should the United States Government raise the matter again and press for an answer. An extract§ from the conclusions of the Committee is enclosed.

3. On the 25th October, 1923, the United States Ambassador communicated to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a further note,|| of which a copy is enclosed. This note was circulated to the members of the Imperial Conference Committee referred to in the preceding paragraph, and a draft reply¶ was prepared by His Majesty's Government as a basis for discussion and circulated to the Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth, New Zealand, and the Union. A copy of this draft is enclosed. The Prime Minister of the Commonwealth intimated that he concurred in the draft reply. The Prime Minister of New Zealand stated* that he was not in a position to give a considered opinion until he had had an opportunity of consulting the New Zealand Cabinet. The Prime Minister of the Union thought† that an answer might be sent that, in so far as the Union Government were concerned, they were on the whole sympathetic with the view of the United States Government and that, while there were certain administrative difficulties to be overcome, they would be prepared to act in the same way as His Majesty's Government had acted in regard to "B" mandates.

4. As regards the negotiations with the United States on the subject of "B" mandates, to which allusion was made in General Smuts' reply, I would invite reference to the correspondence ending with the Duke of Devonshire's Confidential despatch of the 6th December, 1923, Dominions Treaty No. 46.‡ Agreement has now been reached upon all points except the preamble to the proposed draft treaties, and the United States Government have submitted a revised form of preamble which His Majesty's Government are disposed to accept. A final reply to the United States Government as regards "B" mandates has, however, been deferred pending further progress in the negotiation of a proposed treaty relating to the British "A" mandate for Palestine. These negotiations are now nearing completion.

5. In the circumstances, His Majesty's Government are inclined to think that a reply to the United States Government on the subject of "C" mandates might well be deferred until the questions at issue as regards "A" and "B" mandates have been definitely settled but that, when a settlement of these questions has been reached, it might be advisable, if all the Dominion Governments concerned agreed, to send an answer on the lines of the draft referred to in paragraph 3 (subject to some slight alterations of form necessitated by the lapse of time since it was prepared). They would be glad to learn whether your Ministers would concur in such an answer being sent to the United States Government when the occasion arises.

6. I am sending a similar despatch to the Governors-General of [To Australia only: New Zealand and the Union of South Africa.] [To New Zealand only: the Commonwealth of Australia and the Union of South Africa.] [To Union of South Africa only: the Commonwealth of Australia and New Zealand.]

1ST DECEMBER. Confidential. Your despatch of 6th September, Confidential, and telegram of 27th November,|| United States and "C" Mandates. Following is text of Minute I have received from my Ministers with the exception of the first paragraph, which contains simple reference and preamble:—

Begins: Ministers have given their serious consideration to the Secretary of State's despatch and desire to draw the attention of His Excellency to the fact that the claims raised by the United States of America in respect of "C" Mandates, in so far as they relate to the South-West African Mandated territory, affect matters with which the Government of the Union alone are concerned as mandatories of that territory, and that in such matters solely concerning the Union and its Government, foreign Powers should recognize that the proper authority to approach and with whom to discuss and settle such questions is the Government of the Union.

For reasons on which it is not necessary here to dwell the Government of the Union are unanimous in feeling that it is highly undesirable that they should be party to any procedure or negotiations which will tend to strengthen the erroneous impression under which the Government of the United States is apparently labouring that matters such as these now sought to be brought under discussion by it are to be disposed of by the British Government.

Ministers cannot but regret that the attention of the British Government was not drawn at an earlier stage to the point now raised by them; which, however, they feel to be one of such a grave nature that, if they were to allow negotiations to continue without intervening, a precedent would be established which might eventually be the cause of the very greatest prejudice to the interest of the Union and the Commonwealth.

Ministers cannot, therefore, but impress upon the British Government the necessity of immediately bringing to the notice of the United States Government that the Union Government are the proper authority to whom any claim respecting South-West Africa is to be submitted, and that this Government will at any time be prepared to give the fullest consideration to such claim. Ends.

PRIVATE and Personal. 1st December. My Confidential telegram of 1st December.* Following views expressed by Prime Minister in conversation regarding negotiations with the United States in connexion with South-West Africa may help by throwing light on motives for the action taken.

There does not appear to be any wish to raise at this moment question of diplomatic unity of the Empire, but the Prime Minister feels that, while the status of the Dominions as equal nations has been recognized by the British Government in every possible way, Foreign Powers have been reluctant to do so, and that it is now time to insist on their independent position. He maintains that "C" mandate questions are domestic to the mandatory Dominion and should therefore be dealt with directly by that Dominion. He stated that the Union Government had not decided on the channel through which negotiations with the United States of America should be conducted, but that they felt it necessary to make clear their position, and I have reason for believing that advice on this point would be welcome. He assured me that the Government in dealing with mandatory questions would never lose sight of the special interests of other parts of the Empire, and that His Majesty's Government and other Dominions would be kept fully informed.

I am inclined to believe, though the Prime Minister did not say as much, that the Government here feel aggrieved that the question of "C" Mandates should be regarded as at all dependent on the result of the discussion now proceeding in regard to "B" Mandates, and that the United States should have failed to recognize that the Union as mandatory are in a special position and responsible only to the League of Nations for fulfilment of the terms of the mandate.—ATHLONE.

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 23rd January, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch No. 341 of the 20th October,§ regarding certain recommendations of the Permanent

* No. 395. † No. 393. ‡ No. 392. § No. 261 in Dominions No. 88.

Mandates Commission of the League of Nations on the subject of the application of treaties to Mandated Territories.

2. As regards the first point (viz., the application of special International Conventions), His Majesty's Government propose to inform the Secretary-General of the League, so far as territories administered under "B" Mandates are affected, that (a) in Commercial Treaties with foreign Powers recently negotiated by them provision has been made for the accession of Mandated Territories, and it is proposed to make similar provision in subsequent Treaties, while steps are also being taken to insert in Extradition Treaties, when negotiated, a provision under which they may be made applicable to Mandated Territories; (b) in the case of earlier Treaties which do not apply to Mandated Territories and contain no provision for extension to such Territories, His Majesty's Government will be satisfied to take up the question with the particular foreign Power concerned in any individual case where action appears desirable.

3. It will be observed that the first part of the above reply is also applicable to the case of Nauru, whilst action in the direction suggested in the second part of the reply could doubtless be taken, should necessity arise.

4. It is not clear whether the Commission has realized that the extension of a General Commercial Treaty between this country and a foreign Power to a Mandated Territory would not of itself have the effect of entitling the native inhabitants of the Territory to enjoy the personal privileges conferred by the Treaty on British subjects generally. A special arrangement would be needed, the position in this respect as regards Mandated Territories being the same as that which obtains in the case of Protectorates. It will be recollected that, where an Extradition Treaty either applies to, or is framed with a view to possible application to, Protectorates and Mandated Territories, special provision is inserted for assimilating the position of native inhabitants of Protectorates and Mandated Territories, to which the Treaty is applicable, to that of British subjects under the Treaty. Further, the Commission is apparently under the impression that Commercial Treaties between this country and foreign Powers apply to all British Colonies and Protectorates. This is, of course, not the case.

5. As regards the second point (viz., the application of General International Conventions), the position is that no such Conventions have hitherto been applied to Nauru, even in cases where provision is contained for adhesion, if desired. It would seem best to answer the Permanent Mandates Commission accordingly, and to deal with individual cases as they arise.

OBSERVATIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA ON THE REPORT OF THE PERMANENT MANDATES COMMISSION ON THE WORK OF ITS THIRD SESSION FORWARDED BY THE COUNCIL.

(Circulated by Secretary-General under cover of note dated 6th June, 1924.)

Extract from letter dated 30th April, 1924, from Department of External Affairs, Commonwealth of Australia, to the Secretary-General, League of Nations.

(Received from Foreign Office 1st August, 1924.)

DEAR SIR,

WITH reference to your letter of the 22nd December,* I have by direction to inform you that special consideration has been given to the recommendations of the Permanent Mandates Commission, and that the views of the Commonwealth Government in regard thereto are as follows:—

A. Recommendations of a General Character.

III and V. The extension to the Territories under Mandate of special and general international Conventions.

It is not desirable that a definite direction should be given with regard to the question of the application of conventions and treaties to the Mandated Territories as it is considered that each particular case should be dealt with as it arises.

* No. 520/23 in Miscellaneous No. 362.

In arriving at a decision with regard to the extension to the Territory of New Guinea of any particular convention, the Commonwealth Government will be guided by considerations of whether any necessity exists for the application of the convention, whether any advantage would be derived by the Territory from adherence to the convention, and whether machinery can be provided for effectively carrying out the provisions of the convention. Where it is clear that the extension of a convention to New Guinea would be of advantage to the Territory, or where it is desirable that a particular convention should be extended to New Guinea to enable the Commonwealth Government to effectively carry out its obligations thereunder, the necessary steps will immediately be taken to signify adherence on behalf of the Territory. If, however, it is evident that the extension of a convention to New Guinea would merely entail the passage of legislation which it might never be necessary to enforce, and the performance of duties and the submission of reports and returns which would be of no interest or assistance to the adhering States but would impose unnecessary work upon the officers of the Territory, no steps would be taken to apply that particular convention.

I may add, for the information of the Council, that this is the policy adopted by the Commonwealth Government in regard to the application of Treaties and Conventions to the Territories of Papua and Norfolk Island.

III. The Extension to the Territories under Mandate of Special International Treaties.

THE New Zealand Government has not so far found it necessary in any commercial treaty negotiated with a foreign Power to make provision for the accession of its Mandated Territory. The question of extending such treaties to Samoa is, however, always considered, and the New Zealand Government will be willing, in respect of any treaty that may be negotiated in the future, to take up the question with the particular foreign Power concerned where this action appears desirable. Steps have recently been taken to apply all Extradition Treaties which are now in force in the Dominion of New Zealand to the Mandated Territory of Samoa.

(Translation.)

Extract from letter dated 7th June, 1924, from the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs to the Secretary-General, League of Nations.

(Received from Foreign Office 1st August, 1924.)

Two further points are dealt with in the present letter:

The first relates to the possibility of extending to the territories under "B" mandates the advantages which are conferred upon the contiguous colonies and protectorates of the mandatory State by special treaties and conventions entered into by that State with any other Member of the League of Nations, on the understanding that reciprocity will only be recognized if it does not in any way infringe the principles of economic equality.

In all cases in which the decision rests solely with the Royal Government, the latter will extend to the Ruanda-Urundi territories all the advantages derived by Belgium, on behalf of the Belgian Congo, from the special conventions and treaties to which Belgium already is a party. In all cases in which the extension of these advantages to the Ruanda-Urundi territory depends upon the consent of the other Powers which are parties to these conventions, the Royal Government will endeavour to obtain such consent.

The Belgian Government will further endeavour to secure that any special conventions which it may conclude in the future shall be made applicable to the Ruanda-Urundi territory on the same terms as to the Belgian Congo. The Belgian Government makes this promise, however, on the understanding that it reserves freedom of action should any special situation arise in the Belgian Congo or in the Ruanda-Urundi territory.

OBSERVATIONS OF THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT REGARDING THE REPORT ON THE WORK OF THE THIRD SESSION OF THE PERMANENT MANDATES COMMISSION, WHICH WAS COMMUNICATED TO THAT GOVERNMENT BY THE COUNCIL.

Extract from letter dated 21st October, 1924, from the Japanese League of Nations' Office to the Secretary-General, League of Nations.

Japanese League of Nations' Office,
9, Rue La Pérouse,

SIR,

Paris, 21st October, 1924.

In your letter dated 22nd December, 1923, you were good enough to communicate to the Japanese Government the Resolution adopted by the Council of the League of Nations on the Report drawn up at the Third Session of the Permanent Mandates Commission.

In reply, on behalf of my Government, I have the honour to communicate to you its point of view on the two questions dealt with in this Resolution.

* * * * *

2. Extension of Special International Conventions to the Mandated Territories.

As regards the application of special Conventions and Treaties, in particular of commercial treaties, the Japanese Government is of opinion that it is very desirable that these should be applied to mandated territories, and that the application of such Treaties as are already in force in other Colonies be extended to these territories.

I have, &c.,

MATSUDA,

Head of the Japanese League of Nations' Office.

(No. 268.)

SIR, Governor-General's Office, Melbourne, 24th September, 1924.

I HAVE the honour, at the instance of the Prime Minister, to inform you that the Commonwealth Government considers it desirable that all existing and future extradition treaties entered into by Great Britain should be applied to New Guinea, Papua and Norfolk Island.

* 35256/24: not printed; the Order contained the following sections:

2. The provisions of the Imperial Acts cited together as the Extradition Acts, 1870 to 1906 (hereinafter called the said Acts) shall be in force and apply to the Territory of Western Samoa as if that Territory were a British Possession subject to the modifications and alterations hereinafter mentioned.

3. All treaties with foreign States to which the said Acts have been or may be applied by His Majesty shall be deemed to apply and to be effective in the Territory of Western Samoa.

† No. 403.

I should be glad, therefore, if you would be so good as to arrange for all existing extradition treaties to be applied to New Guinea, if necessary by supplementary treaties, and for notice of adherence to be given on behalf of Papua and Norfolk Island to all existing extradition treaties which do not already apply to those Territories.

18TH DECEMBER. Confidential. Your telegram of 2nd December.† Extension of the existing Extradition Treaties to "B" and "C" Mandated Territories generally. My Ministers state that they are unable without further information than is contained in your telegram to concur in the suggestion made therein as regards South-West Africa.

They assume that to carry out the suggestion it would be necessary that the Extradition Acts 1870 and 1879 of Parliament of the United Kingdom be amended inasmuch as those Acts can only be extended by order of the King in Council to British possessions and no Mandated Territory can be regarded in law as a British possession. Such legislation they consider would involve a recognition so far as South-West Africa is concerned of the authority of the Imperial Parliament to legislate in respect of a territory the sole responsibility for which is vested in the Union Government as Mandatory under the Treaty of Versailles.

If contrary to the above assumption it is not proposed to amend the Extradition Act on the lines indicated, but the idea is that each Government in the British Empire which holds a mandate for ex-enemy territory should attempt to negotiate an agreement with some foreign State for extending extradition treaties to cover extradition between the possessions of that foreign State and the territory in respect of which the mandate is held, then it would seem that the Mandatory Government should itself directly negotiate agreement (s).

In connexion with the foregoing paragraph Ministers draw attention to their minute of 29th November in relation to the attitude of the United States Government to certain matters in South African "C" Mandated Territories (see my telegram of

* No. 95 in Dominions No. 81. † No. 406.

1st December, Confidential*) and state that the principles enunciated in that minute seem to apply in respect of the matter referred to in your telegram under reply.

Ministers add that they have for some time had under consideration a Bill for introduction into the Union Parliament next session enabling the Union Government to enter into agreement with foreign States for extradition as between such States and the mandated territory of South-West Africa.

MY LORD,

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Lord Stradbroke's despatch No. 268 of the 24th of September,† relative to the application of extradition treaties to New Guinea, Papua and Norfolk Island.

2. As regards pre-War extradition treaties, all those which are of general application already apply to Papua and Norfolk Island as parts of His Majesty's Dominions, and no special arrangements are required as regards those territories. Steps will be taken to approach the foreign States concerned with a view to the formal extension of existing extradition treaties to the mandated Territory of New Guinea.

3. With regard to treaties in the form of the present model draft (vide my predecessor's despatch Dominions No. 47 of the 6th February‡), of which only that with Finland has been ratified and those with Latvia and Czechoslovakia signed but not ratified, accession in respect of the Commonwealth of Australia under Article 17 will include accession in respect of Papua and Norfolk Island, while extension to New Guinea can always be arranged under Article 19.

My Ministers are not entirely satisfied with the terms of paragraph 4 of draft note but are content that the note as drafted should be sent to the United States Ambassador provided there is despatched therewith the following as a communication received by His Majesty's Government from the New Zealand Government.

1. The New Zealand Government, acting by His Majesty's delegation as mandatory authority of Western Samoa, regrets any apparent delay in reply to the representation of the United States Government on the subject of British preferential duties in Western Samoa.

2. This Government had, however, believed that the United States Government understood the points of difference and this Government were awaiting an intimation from the United States Government that the Tripartite Treaty of 1899 prevented the United States from restrictions upon British shipping in American Samoa.

3. The New Zealand Government has recognized that the question whether obligations of Tripartite Treaty are still imposed on Western Samoa, notwithstanding its transition from German sovereignty to mandatory authority, is one to be determined by the Law Officers of the Crown in England and in deference to their advice has not contended that it is free from those obligations.

4. But this Government has maintained that Tripartite Treaty is equally binding upon the Government of American Samoa and therefore that restrictions upon British shipping in American Samoa are at least as inconsistent with Tripartite Treaty as are the British preferential duties in Western Samoa.

5. If the Government of the United States definitely concede that New Zealand ships and all British ships are entitled to carry goods and passengers between American ports and ports of American Samoa, and that British shipping will receive exactly the same treatment in all other respects in such trade as American ships both in American Samoa and in United States ports, then the New Zealand Government will reciprocally legislate to place American imports in the same position as the British imports in Western Samoa. Ends.

My Ministers trust that no exception will be taken by either Colonial Office or the Foreign Office to transmission of this statement of New Zealand Government's position in its exact terms to the American Ambassador.—JELlicoe.

Enclosure 1 in No. 413.

(No. A 3920/2287/45.)

YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 30th June, 1924

WITH reference to our conversation on the 10th April last, I have the honour to inform Your Excellency that His Majesty's Government have discussed with the Government of New Zealand the question dealt with in previous correspondence ending with Mr. Harvey's note No. 1071 of the 25th October, 1923, with regard to the rights claimed by the United States in Western Samoa under Article 3 of the Convention concluded at Washington on the 2nd December, 1899, between the United Kingdom, Germany and the United States.

2. You will observe that it is provided in the same article of that Convention that each of the three signatory Powers shall continue to enjoy in respect of their commerce and commercial vessels in all the islands of the Samoan group privileges and conditions equal to those enjoyed by the sovereign Power in all ports which may be open to the commerce of either of them. It will be remembered that in 1911 the United States authorities had exercised some discrimination against British ships trading between Pago Pago and Leone in Tutuila. On that occasion inquiries were made of your Government, who stated that Leone was not a port of entry; but in the course of the correspondence which ensued the United States Government admitted that British ships were entitled to the same treatment as United States and German ships in this respect (in this connexion, I would refer you to the note from the State Department to His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington of the 5th February, 1912, et cetera). In the same year also a complaint was made by a British firm that bills of health were being issued gratis by the United States Consul at Apia to United States vessels trading between Apia and Pago Pago, while a charge was made for similar bills of health issued to British vessels trading on the same route. This complaint being brought to the notice of the United States Government, it was decided by the State Department in 1913 that the exaction of fees from British vessels while United States vessels were exempt was contrary to Article 3 of the Convention of 1899, and instructions were accordingly given for the collection of such fees to be discontinued (see note from the State Department to His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington, 15th October, 1913). The United States Government were thus, in 1913, of opinion that the Convention prevented preference in this respect being given to United States ships trading with American Samoa.

3. The Government of New Zealand have also called my attention to the fact that, owing to the operation of the United States coast-wise laws, British ships trading from New Zealand to San Francisco are no longer able to call at Honolulu and to carry goods and passengers between that port and San Francisco. Consequently, British ships can no longer call at Honolulu except those on the Vancouver mail service. It is, therefore, a matter of considerable importance to the Government of New Zealand that British ships trading between New Zealand and the United States should be able to call at Tutuila and, if necessary, to carry goods and passengers between that port and the United States under the same conditions as United States ships.

4. In the circumstances, the Government of New Zealand would be willing to consider the request of the United States Government for national treatment for their commerce and commercial vessels in Western Samoa, provided the United States Government on their part are willing to give a specific assurance of their understanding that Article 3 of the Convention of 1899 ensures to British commerce and commercial vessels national treatment in that part of Samoa under United States administration.

5. At the request of the Government of New Zealand, I have the honour to append a communication received from them by His Majesty's Government stating their position in this matter.

6. I beg leave further to refer you to your personal letter to me of 10th April, giving the only case which you have been able to trace of any case of discrimination against British vessels in ports of Samoa under United States administration. In this connexion, I have the honour to point out that the discrimination of which complaint is made by His Majesty's Government is rather that involved by the extension to American Samoa of the coast-wise laws restricting trade between United States ports to vessels of United States registry, which was provided for by Section 21 of the United States Merchant Marine Act of 5th June, 1920.

7. With regard to the statement contained in the aide-memoire which you were so good as to leave with me on 10th April last, to the effect that an Order in Council of 25th September, 1923, admits the entry free of duty into Western Samoa of German and Austrian goods, I have the honour to enclose herein a copy of the Order in Council in question, and of that of the 3rd September, 1923, which it amended. You will observe that the Order in Council of the 25th September only dispensed with the necessity for a licence in respect of German and Austrian goods imported into Western Samoa after 1st April, 1924, and did not provide for their entry free of duty.

I have, &c.,

TELEGRAM FROM THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF NEW ZEALAND TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES.

1. THE New Zealand Government, acting by His Majesty's delegation as mandatory authority of Western Samoa, regrets any apparent delay in reply to the representation of the United States Government on the subject of British preferential duties in Western Samoa.

2. This Government had, however, believed that the United States Government understood the points of difference, and this Government were awaiting an intimation from the United States Government that the Tripartite Treaty of 1899 prevented the United States from restrictions upon British shipping in American Samoa.

[18066]

Enclosure 2 in No. 413.

(A 2287/2287/45.)

AIDE-MÉMOIRE.

By a New Zealand Order in Council taking effect the first day of May, 1920, all goods imported into Western Samoa not exempted from duty, excepting cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, were made subject to increased Customs duty, which amounted to 15 per cent. on all British goods and 22½ per cent. on all other goods. A discrimination against American goods of 7½ per cent. was thus established.

Immediately after the promulgation of this Order the American Government protested against this discrimination as a violation of the Tripartite Convention between Great Britain, Germany and the United States, dated 2nd December, 1899, which provides by Article 3:—

"It is understood and agreed that each of the three signatory Powers shall continue to enjoy, in respect to their commerce and commercial vessels, in all the islands of the Samoan group privileges and conditions equal to those enjoyed by the Sovereign Power, in all ports which may be open to the commerce of either of them."

Despite repeated requests which the American Embassy had made of the British Government for an indication of their attitude with respect to the preferential tariff now in effect in Samoa, no replies have been received except that the British Government have the matter under consideration and that it would be dealt with as quickly as possible. The last word from the British Government was on 2nd June, 1922—nearly two years ago—to the effect that the Colonial Office would be pressed for an early decision.

The American Government now learns that the New Zealand Order in Council of 3rd September, 1923, which modified Customs regulations in Samoa, reiterates the position of the New Zealand Government with respect to American goods, which, by the above-mentioned Order, are subjected to the same duties as all goods of origin other than British. Furthermore, an Order in Council of 25th September, 1923, admits the entry free of duty of German and Austrian products. The American Government has consistently objected to this discrimination against United States products. At present, articles of British origin enjoy seven and a-half per cent. preference in tariff over American goods.

It is further suggested that the position taken by the New Zealand Government is in conflict with the principles enunciated by the Government of the United States regarding the administration of mandate territories, a position which, it is understood, has been conceded by the British Government. The then Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Lord Curzon, in a note dated 30th September, 1922,* relating to mandates of certain ex-German territories in East Africa, stated to the then American Ambassador:—

"His Majesty's Government have not the slightest intention to discriminate against United States nationals or institutions by subjecting their operations to restrictions not equally applicable to British nationals or institutions."

It is obviously desirable that this matter be adjusted at the earliest possible moment, in view of the severe losses resulting to American firms having business with Samoa.

MY DEAR MR. MACDONALD,

REFERRING to our conversation to-day in reference to the discriminatory tariff against American goods by the New Zealand Government, you said that you understood that New Zealand had some claim of discrimination against British vessels in the Samoan ports.

The only thing I find in the correspondence is in a report on the subject of preferential tariffs by Mason Mitchell, American Consul in Samoa, made 19th May, 1920, a copy of which report I enclose. This shows the charges made against British vessels were refunded as in violation of the Tripartite Treaty of 1899.

* Enclosure in No. 191 in Dominions No. 87.

American Consulate, Apia, Samoa,
19th May, 1920.

Subject: Preferential tariff against American goods.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to report by the "Samoa Customs Order, 1920," taking effect on the first day of May, 1920, all goods imported into Western Samoa not exempted from duty, except cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, are subject to an increased customs duty which amounts to 15 per cent. on all British goods and 22½ per cent. on all other goods. The former tax being 12½ per cent. on all goods irrespective of their origin.

Enclosed are copies of correspondence with the "Administrator of Western Samoa," in which is quoted the Convention in Berlin, which concluded and signed a general Act on the 14th day of June, 1899, by the three Protectorating Powers of Samoa, America, Great Britain and Germany, whereby in Article III of the aforesaid Act states:—

"It is understood and agreed that each of the Signatory Powers shall continue to enjoy, in respect to their commerce and commercial vessels, in all of the islands of the Samoan group, privileges and conditions equal to those enjoyed by the Sovereign Power, in all parts which may be open to the commerce of either of them."

As the aforesaid Samoa Customs Order of 1920, a preferential tariff had been enacted against American goods and no notice received of the cessation of this agreement, I respectfully requested to be informed if it was null and void.

In reply the Administrator stated that the point raised by self had been referred to the New Zealand Government and soon as a reply was received would have the pleasure of again communicating with me.

If this tariff is carried out as it stands, in conjunction with the present rate of exchange whereby the Pound Sterling is quoted $3.91, it will inevitably ruin the trade from America to Western Samoa.

It may be noted by instructions received from the Department No. 56, dated 27th January, 1912, I was empowered to collect a fee of $5 for the insurance of a consular bill of health to foreign vessels clearing from Apia to Pago Pago.

This fee was paid until 15th October, 1913, when owing to the decision of the Controller of the Treasury that, as American vessels were free from the payment of this fee between the ports of Apia and Pago Pago, the payment of the fee by British vessels was not in accordance with the Treaty of 1899 and the Auditor for State and other Departments refunded to British subjects the amount of fees paid for consular bills of health from Apia to Pago Pago.

Am enclosing a protest from the American firm of John Rothschild and Company, of San Francisco, who have a branch house in Apia. Other American firms intend entering protests against this preferential tariff.

I have, &c.,

Consul.

IRISH FREE STATE.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 527.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 6th September, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that the seventh General Conference of the International Bureau of Weights and Measures will probably be held in 1925, when the amount of the total "endowment" of the Bureau and the contributions thereto of the participating States will come up for reconsideration; and in this connexion, His Majesty's Government are desirous of ascertaining the wishes of the Government of the Irish Free State in the matter of their adherence to the International Metric Convention of the 6th of October, 1921. A copy of the Convention (Cmd. 1982) is enclosed, and attention is invited in particular to the provisions contained therein as to the contributions of participating States, which are set out on pages 5 and 9 of the print.

* No. 415. † Nos. 415 and 417.

2. It will be observed that the endowment of the Bureau consists of two parts, one fixed and the other supplementary. The fixed part, which at present amounts to 250,000 francs, is paid (on a population basis) by the States which had acceded to the original Convention of 1875 prior to the Sixth General Conference in 1921, when the new Convention was adopted. The supplementary part consists of the contributions of States adhering to the Convention after that date.

3. The question to be considered is (i) whether the Free State Government would prefer to exercise their right, as a self-governing Dominion, of adhering independently to the Bureau and paying the appropriate subscription, or (ii) whether they would prefer to remain outside the Convention of 1921 altogether. If the first alternative is adopted, the amount of the subscription to which the Irish Free State would become liable is not clear, but it would probably be not much (if at all) in excess of the minimum (at present francs 1,250) prescribed by the Convention.

4. His Majesty's Government will be glad to learn at an early date which of the two courses your Ministers desire to adopt. Should they desire any further information beyond what is contained in the Convention and in this despatch before they come to a decision, His Majesty's Government will be glad to furnish it, if available.

I have, &c.,

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 21st June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request [Your Excellency,] [you,] to inform your Ministers that the French Government have formally requested the surrender of British capitulatory rights in the French Protectorate of Morocco.

2. Now that the Tangier Convention has been ratified by both His Majesty and the French Government (see my despatch Dominions No. 266 of the 13th June*), this request on the part of the latter is not unexpected, and the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs is disposed to think that the surrender of these rights should be agreed to, subject to the provision of satisfactory safeguards for British trade and commerce in Morocco. This aspect of the question is now receiving consideration.

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 28th May, 1924.

[Not to Irish Free State: With reference to my predecessor's despatch No. [221 of the 12th May, 1923,*] [397 of the 22nd October, 1923,†] I have the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, for the information of your Ministers, the accompanying copy of a document prolonging for one year from the 11th February, 1924, the Commercial Treaty with Muscat of 1891, [To Irish Free State only: (Treaty Series No. 9 of 1892)] [To Australia only: together with a copy of the notice of the withdrawal of the Commonwealth of Australia from participation in the Treaty, and of the acknowledgment thereto.]

[To Irish Free State only: 2. This Treaty, which was (under Article XXIII), subject to revision after 12 years, is at present being renewed from year to year pending the negotiation of a new Treaty. If such a new Treaty were negotiated, a Clause would be inserted in it providing, not only that its stipulations should not be applicable to any of the self-governing Dominions unless notice to that effect were given, but also that it might be terminated separately in respect of any Dominion to which it had been made applicable.

3. It would also be possible, if such a course were desired by your Ministers, to propose the insertion in any future agreement extending the present Treaty for a further period, of a Clause giving the Irish Free State separate liberty of withdrawal. I should be glad to learn whether your Ministers would desire such a course, or whether they would think it sufficient that the matter should remain in abeyance until a new Treaty is negotiated.

4. In this connexion I would observe that the Governments of the other Dominions to which the 1891 Treaty applied, were consulted in 1922 as to the insertion of such a Clause in their cases. The Governments of Canada and the Commonwealth of Australia wished arrangements to be made to enable them to withdraw at any time on notice being given, and the Commonwealth Government has in fact withdrawn. The Governments of the Union of South Africa and Newfoundland thought that the matter might remain in abeyance pending the negotiation of a new Treaty. The Government of New Zealand had not acceded under Article XXI of the Treaty of 1891.]

And it will remain in force for a period of one year from this eleventh day of February, 1924, corresponding to the 5th Rajab 1342 H., unless a suitable Treaty by agreement between His Highness the Sultan of Maskat and Oman and the Glorious British Government be substituted for that ancient Treaty aforesaid. It is also understood that it shall be open to the Dominion of Canada to withdraw from the aforesaid Treaty at any time on notice being given to that effect by His Majesty's Representative at Maskat.

From the Council of Ministers to His Highness the Sultan of Maskat and Oman, Maskat, to Major Hinde, His Britannic Majesty's Consul, Maskat.

After Compliments,

WE received your letter dated 11th February, 1924, in which you invite our attention to your letter No. 6, dated 3rd December, 1923, with regard to the agreement concluded with His Highness the Sultan of Maskat and Oman on the 11th day of February, 1923, corresponding to 24th Jamadi-al-Akhir 1341. In that letter you mentioned that you received instructions from His Britannic Majesty's Government to inform us that it is the desire of the Commonwealth Government of Australia to withdraw from participation in the Maskat Commercial Treaty of 1891. We considered your said letter and regarded it as notice of withdrawal of the Commonwealth Government of Australia from participation in the Commercial Treaty, as is understood from the note made on the 11th February, 1923, that it will be open to them to withdraw from participation in the said Treaty at any time after notice being given to that effect by His Britannic Majesty's Representative at Maskat. [My LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 10th January, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] to be laid before your Ministers, an extract from the Summary of Proceedings of the Imperial Conference (Cmd. 1987) containing a resolution agreed to by the Conference as to the procedure to be observed in the negotiation, signature and ratification of international agreements.

2. His Majesty's Government are prepared to accept the recommendation that the procedure set out in the Resolution should be followed in these matters, and they will be glad to learn whether your Ministers also accept it.

I have, &c.,

Enclosure in No. 430.

(Extract.)

IX. NEGOTIATION, SIGNATURE AND RATIFICATION OF TREATIES.

The principles governing the relations of the various parts of the Empire in connexion with the negotiation, signature and ratification of Treaties seemed to the Conference to be of the greatest importance. Accordingly it was arranged that the subject should be fully examined by a Committee, of which the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs was Chairman. The Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Prime Ministers of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and Newfoundland, the Minister of External Affairs of the Irish Free State, and the Secretary of State for India as Head of the Indian Delegation, served on this Committee. With the assistance of the Legal Adviser to the Foreign Office, Sir C. J. B. Hurst, K.C.B., K.C., the following Resolution was drawn up and agreed to:—

"The Conference recommends for the acceptance of the governments of the Empire represented that the following procedure should be observed in the negotiation, signature and ratification of international agreements.

"The word 'treaty' is used in the sense of an agreement which, in accordance with the normal practice of diplomacy, would take the form of a treaty between Heads of States, signed by plenipotentiaries provided with Full Powers issued by the Heads of the States, and authorizing the holders to conclude a treaty."

I

"1. Negotiation.

"(a) It is desirable that no treaty should be negotiated by any of the governments of the Empire without due consideration of its possible effect on other parts of the Empire, or, if circumstances so demand, on the Empire as a whole.

"(b) Before negotiations are opened with the intention of concluding a treaty, steps should be taken to ensure that any of the other governments of the Empire likely to be interested are informed, so that, if any such government considers that its interests would be affected, it may have an opportunity of expressing its views, or, when its interests are intimately involved, of participating in the negotiations.

"(c) In all cases where more than one of the governments of the Empire participates in the negotiations, there should be the fullest possible exchange of views between those governments before and during the negotiations. In the case of treaties negotiated at International Conferences, where there is a British Empire Delegation, on which, in accordance with the now established practice, the Dominions and India are separately represented, such representation should also be utilized to attain this object.

"(d) Steps should be taken to ensure that those governments of the Empire whose representatives are not participating in the negotiations should, during their progress, be kept informed in regard to any points arising in which they may be interested.

"2. Signature.

"(a) Bilateral treaties imposing obligations on one part of the Empire only should be signed by a representative of the government of that part. The Full Power issued to such representative should indicate the part of the Empire in respect of which the obligations are to be undertaken, and the preamble and text of the treaty should be so worded as to make its scope clear.

"(b) Where a bilateral treaty imposes obligations on more than one part of the Empire, the treaty should be signed by one or more plenipotentiaries on behalf of all the governments concerned.

"(c) As regards treaties negotiated at International Conferences, the existing practice of signature by plenipotentiaries on behalf of all the governments of the Empire represented at the Conference should be continued, and the Full Powers should be in the form employed at Paris and Washington.

"3. Ratification.

"The existing practice in connexion with the ratification of treaties should be maintained.

II.

"Apart from treaties made between Heads of States, it is not unusual for agreements to be made between governments. Such agreements, which are usually of a technical or administrative character, are made in the names of the signatory governments, and signed by representatives of those governments, who do not act under Full Powers issued by the Heads of the States; they are not ratified by the Heads of the States, though in some cases some form of acceptance or confirmation by the governments concerned is employed. As regards agreements of this nature the existing practice should be continued, but before entering on negotiations the governments of the Empire should consider whether the interests of any other part of the Empire may be affected, and, if so, steps should be taken to ensure that the government of such part is informed of the proposed negotiations, in order that it may have an opportunity of expressing its views."

The Resolution was submitted to the full Conference and unanimously approved. It was thought, however, that it would be of assistance to add a short explanatory statement in connexion with part I (3), setting out the existing procedure in relation to the ratification of Treaties. This procedure is as follows:—

- (a) The ratification of treaties imposing obligations on one part of the Empire is effected at the instance of the government of that part:
- (b) The ratification of treaties imposing obligations on more than one part of the Empire is effected after consultation between the governments of those parts of the Empire concerned. It is for each government to decide whether Parliamentary approval or legislation is required before desire for, or concurrence in, ratification is intimated by that government.

MY LORD,

India Office, London, 21st February, 1924.

I TRANSMIT for the information of Your Excellency's Government copy of the official summary of the proceedings of the Imperial Conference of 1923‡ relative to the negotiation, signature and ratification of treaties.

2. It will be observed that the word "treaty" is defined to mean an agreement between Heads of States signed by plenipotentiaries provided with full powers issued by the Heads of the States concerned.

3. The first part of the Resolution adopted by the Conference refers to the procedure to be followed in the case of treaties as thus defined. In the event of India negotiating such a treaty it will be necessary that the officer deputed to sign it should, in future, be provided with a full power from His Majesty. Ratification by His Majesty will be confined to treaties signed by such plenipotentiaries. The second part of the Resolution refers to agreements between Governments, which do not take the form of treaties as defined.

4. I request that the procedure laid down in the Resolution, both as regards treaties proper and as regards Governmental agreements, may be adopted at all stages of future negotiations undertaken by the Government of India. If it is considered that any of the other Governments of the Empire are likely to be interested in such negotiations, steps should be taken to keep any such Government informed through the usual channel.

I have, &c.,

OLIVIER.

WITH reference to Your Excellency's despatches No. 193 of the 22nd May and No. 297 of the 19th July,‡ I have the honour to transmit to you, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a memorandum on the subject of the Agreements between Governments referred to in the first paragraph of Part II of the Resolution of the Imperial Conference, 1923, with regard to the negotiation, signature and ratification of Treaties.

MEMORANDUM.

1. THE Agreements between Governments referred to in the first paragraph of Part II of the Resolution of the Imperial Conference, 1923, with regard to the negotiation, signature and ratification of Treaties, are those of a minor nature, neither concluded under Full Powers issued by the Heads of States, nor entailing ratification by Heads of States.

2. Such Agreements are mainly of a departmental kind. Under existing arrangements with the General Post Office of Great Britain, Agreements with foreign countries concerning postal matters, exchanges of money orders, etc., are as a rule concluded direct between His Majesty's Postmaster-General and the Head of the foreign postal administration, the draft Agreement, unless in the stereotyped form habitually used, being first communicated to the Foreign Office for concurrence, and the original signed instrument being eventually deposited in the archives of the Foreign Office and registered by the latter with the Secretariat of the League of Nations. The postal administrations of the other parts of the Empire similarly negotiate direct with foreign postal administrations.

* No. 436. † No. 438. ‡ Nos. 437 and 34459: reminder; not printed.

3. Conventions negotiated at Congresses of the Universal Postal Union are signed on behalf of this country by delegates holding letters of authority from the Postmaster-General, subject to subsequent confirmation and approval by him.

4. These may be said to be the only cases of usual occurrence, though there are a few exceptional instances where some deviation from the common practice has been necessary.

5. For instance, in Treaties in regard to boundaries with foreign countries, it has sometimes been provided that commissioners be appointed to demarcate the boundary agreed upon. The completed work of these commissioners usually takes the form of a Protocol, signed by them, which is afterwards confirmed by an exchange of notes with the foreign government through the diplomatic channel.

6. Similarly, in the case of "A" mandated Territories, provisional and temporary Agreements in regard to local matters have been concluded by the High Commissioners of these Territories with the authorities of adjacent Territories; these are subsequently confirmed by exchanges of notes through the diplomatic channel between His Majesty's Government and the foreign government concerned.

London,

July, 1924.

Note.—No reply to No. 430 had been received from the Irish Free State up to the end of 1924 beyond No. 437, but in the despatch from the Governor-General as to the proposed negotiation of a Commercial Convention with France (No. 191), it was stated that "the negotiations will be carried out in accordance with the Resolution of the Imperial Conference regarding the negotiation, signature and ratification of Treaties." It was also stated in a despatch from the Governor-General of the 16th May, 1924, as to the appointment of a Free State Minister at Washington (printed in Dominions No. 90) that "questions which may arise regarding negotiation and signature of Treaties with the United States will be dealt with in accordance with the Resolutions of the Imperial Conference."

SIR,

Downing Street, 14th August, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that steps are now being taken for the ratification by His Majesty, on behalf of this country, of the Convention for the Suppression of the Circulation of and Traffic in Obscene Publications, negotiated at Geneva in September, 1923.

2. It is observed from the copy of the Convention contained in League of Nations paper C. 202, M. 64, 1924, IV., that the Convention has been signed on behalf of the Irish Free State. It has also been signed on behalf of New Zealand with Western Samoa and the Union of South Africa with South-West Africa.

3. The usual procedure in such cases has been that the Instrument of His Majesty's Ratification should include, not only ratification on behalf of this country, but also ratification on behalf of any of the Dominion Members of the League which desire the Convention to be ratified on their behalf. In the present case the Governments of New Zealand and the Union of South Africa have expressed concurrence in ratification and accordingly the Instrument of Ratification now in preparation will include ratification on behalf of New Zealand with Western Samoa and the Union of South Africa with South-West Africa.

4. I should be glad to be informed at an early date whether your Ministers would desire that the Instrument of Ratification should also include ratification on behalf of the Irish Free State.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL to THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

MY LORD DUKE, Governor-General's Office, Melbourne, 21st December, 1923.
WITH reference to your despatch dated 19th January, 1923, No. 33,† relative to the Anglo-Persian Agreement of 1920, I have the honour to inform Your Grace that I am advised by my Acting Prime Minister that the Commonwealth Government concurs in the interpretation placed by His Majesty's Government on Article 3 of the Agreement, namely, that the Article gives to the Commonwealth the right to free itself from all treaty obligations with Persia merely by giving notice to that effect. It is nevertheless desired that such withdrawal should be effected, if possible, without in any way affecting Australia's friendly relations with Persia.

My Ministers would be glad, therefore, if His Majesty's Representative at Teheran could be asked to inform the Persian Government that, in notifying its withdrawal from the Agreement of 1920, the Commonwealth Government was not actuated by any feelings of unfriendliness towards the Persian Government or people. During the last few years a general revision has been made of treaty relations, as regards commercial matters, between Australia and foreign countries, and the Commonwealth Government has, as a matter of general policy, withdrawn from all commercial treaties in which the terms were not distinctly favourable to the Commonwealth, or where, as in the case of Persia, the volume of trade exchanged was so small as to render treaty arrangements unnecessary.

In accordance with this general policy, Australia has withdrawn from treaties between Great Britain and, inter alia, the following countries:—

Belgium, Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, Egypt, France, Greece, Honduras, Japan, Liberia, Mexico, Muscat, Norway, Paraguay, Sweden, Salvador, Spain and Switzerland.

My Acting Prime Minister has asked me to express regret that, owing to an oversight, an earlier reply in regard to this matter was not furnished.

Enclosure 1 in No. 462.

(No. 8.)
(Confidential.)

MY LORD MARQUESS,

British Consulate, Danzig, 15th January, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to refer to Your Lordship's despatch No. 103 of the 20th December, 1923, transmitting copy of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between the United Kingdom and the Polish Republic, signed at Warsaw on the 26th November, 1923.

I am unaware whether it was the intention of His Majesty's Government that the Treaty with Poland should embrace also the Free City, but I note that in an appendix (Enclosure No. 12) M. Dmowski gives the assurance that the Treaty will apply equally to this Territory.

On the other hand, no mention of Danzig as contractual party occurs in the text of the Treaty, nor any clause to the effect that the Polish plenipotentiaries were acting also on behalf of the Free City.

In view of the Agreement reached at Geneva in September last (League of Nations No. C 579, 1923, 1, page 13, Foreign Affairs, paragraph 1, and page 14, paragraph 1, transmitted under cover of Your Lordship's despatch No. 84 of the 15th November last), and of the fact that uncertainty had already arisen through a similar omission, previously to this Agreement, as to whether the Italian-Polish Commercial Treaty applied to Danzig, I venture to request information as to the position of the Free City in relation to this Treaty.

I have, &c.,
B. H. FRY.

His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State,
London.

WITH reference to your despatch No. 8 of 13th January, in which you request information as to the position of the Free City of Danzig in relation to the Anglo-

Polish Commercial Treaty, I am directed by Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald to inform you that it is the intention of both parties that this Treaty should embrace the Free City.

2. His Majesty's Minister at Warsaw, towards the conclusion of negotiations and before the Danzig and Polish Governments had reached the agreement to which you refer, was informed by the Polish Government that the text of the Treaty had been submitted to and accepted by the Senate of the Free City. Consequently, it was not considered necessary that any mention of Danzig should be made in the text of the Treaty.

3. The Polish Government proposed, and His Majesty's Government agreed, that provision should be made for the accession of the Free City by means of a note annexed to the Treaty addressed by the Polish Minister for Foreign Affairs to His Majesty's Minister at Warsaw.

4. This note will in due course, together with the Treaty, be registered with the League of Nations.

THE OFFICE OF THE HIGH COMMISSIONER to COLONIAL OFFICE.

[Answered by No. 465.]

Office of the Secretary, Kinnaird House,

SIR,

Pall Mall East, London, S.W.1, 20th June, 1924.

I AM advised by the Department of Immigration at Ottawa that a Treaty of Commerce and Navigation has been made between the United Kingdom and Poland. Article 8 provides that the Treaty is not applicable to any British Dominion unless notice is given by the British Government of the desire of that Dominion to accept the terms of the Treaty.

In Article 2 of the Treaty it was stated, among other things, that there is a reciprocity arrangement between both countries for the carrying out of commercial operations and the establishment of the subjects or citizens of either contracting party in the territories of the other. Canada has not yet accepted the Treaty. It is now under discussion, and the question has been raised as to whether the Treaty is calculated to facilitate the admission of immigrants. Canada, of course, has no interest in the settlement of Canadians in Poland, but Poland has more than a passing interest in the settlement of her people in Canada. The Most-Favoured-Nation Treaty has not been looked upon by the Canadian Government as entitling immigrants from the countries with which such Treaty has been established to any special privileges as regards admission of immigrants. However, as we do treat the nationals of certain countries in a more favoured way than others, and as there is a possibility that Poland may have in mind acquiring certain privileges for immigrants, we would like to know whether Great Britain regards this Treaty as governing the admission to the British Isles of immigrants from Poland. In other words, whether this or the Aliens Act governs the admission. If this Treaty is looked upon as having any force or effect in the admission of immigrants from Poland to Great Britain, then we would expect Poland to claim some preferential treatment from Canada if the Treaty is accepted by Canada.

I would highly appreciate it if the necessary information could be given to me so that I may forward it to Ottawa.

LUCIEN PACAUD,
Secretary.

[Not to New Zealand or Irish Free State: 2. Further copies are being sent in Library despatch.]

I have, &c.,
(for the Secretary of State),
HENRY LAMBERT.

COLONIAL OFFICE to THE OFFICE OF THE HIGH COMMISSIONER.

SIR,

Downing Street, 20th September, 1924.

WITH further reference to your letter of the 20th of June† on the subject of the effect of Article 2 of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between the United Kingdom and Poland on the admission of immigrants from Poland, which has now received the careful consideration of the competent Departments of His Majesty's Government, I am directed to request you to convey to the High Commissioner the following observations on the points raised.

2. Article 2 of the Treaty provides that "such (i.e., unconditional) most-favoured-nation treatment shall apply in all that concerns . . . the establishment of the subjects or citizens of either Contracting Party in the territories of the other." These words, it is thought, can only be construed as meaning that Polish citizens must be allowed to establish themselves in the territories of His Majesty to which the Treaty is made applicable, under conditions which shall not be less favourable than those applicable to the nationals of any other foreign country. The words in question are not considered to be in conflict with the Aliens Restriction (Amendment) Act, 1919, in force in this country, which is of general application. In this connexion it may be of interest to quote a statement of the position of His Majesty's Government made to the Columbian Minister on the 2nd February, 1922, in the following terms:—

"Thus, aliens restriction regulations of a similar or even more rigorous nature than the British regulations in question are now in force throughout the greater part of the world, including many countries which have concluded with His Majesty's Government commercial treaties similar to the Treaty with Colombia, and it may be said indeed to be generally accepted that commercial treaties cannot be interpreted so as to deny to the Contracting Parties the right to make any regulations of this nature which may seem necessary to them in the present condition of the world."

* No. 316 in Dominions No. 88. † No. 463.

3. In the circumstances it does not appear that, if the Anglo-Polish Treaty were made applicable to Canada, the words in question in Article 2 could be held to be in conflict with any Canadian law of general application which, for example, laid down literacy or other similar tests applicable to all immigrants into Canada, even though it might be easier for, say, Scandinavian immigrants individually to pass such tests than for Polish immigrants.

4. If, on the other hand, the law or the regulations thereunder were not general in scope but differentiated against all Polish citizens as compared with the subjects or citizens of some other foreign country, whether by imposing special restrictions on Poles as such or as members of some specified group of nationalities (e.g., Eastern European races) or by conferring specially favourable treatment on the nationals of some other foreign country (e.g., the United States), it is thought that Poland would have a ground for claiming that these provisions were inconsistent with the Treaty assuming that it had been made applicable to Canada.

5. A copy of Cmd. 2219,* which contains the Treaty, is enclosed.

I am, &c.,
C. T. DAVIS.

MY LORD MARQUESS,

MY LORD DUKE, Government House, Ottawa, 24th January, 1924.

WITH reference to your despatch, Dominions 1 of the 1st January,* on the subject of the International Postal Congress to be held at Stockholm in June, 1924, I have the honour to transmit, herewith, copies of an Approved Minute of the Privy Council for Canada appointing Messrs. Enclosure in No. 468.

(P.C. 2260.)

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a Report, dated 3rd November, 1923, from the Postmaster-General, stating that the Universal Postal Union, in which Canada ranks as a member of the first class, holds international conferences from time to time, to each of which Canada is entitled to send representatives.

The last conference was held at Madrid, Spain, in 1920, and the next conference is called to meet in Stockholm, Sweden, during the first half of the year 1924, on a date to be fixed by the Government of Sweden.

Canada was represented at the Madrid Conference by three delegates, and it is proposed to send the same number to the Stockholm Conference.

The Minister observes that it is customary for the delegates of Great Britain and the Overseas Dominions to hold a preliminary conference in England prior to the general conference of the Universal Postal Union, and it is proposed to hold such a preliminary conference prior to the approaching conference at Stockholm.

The Minister recommends, in view of the foregoing, that Messrs. P. T. Coolican, General Superintendent of Postal Service, W. J. Glover, Financial Superintendent, and Arthur Webster, Secretary, Post Office Department, be appointed to represent Canada at the Stockholm Conference of 1924, and that they, or any two of them, be vested with authority to sign all necessary documents.

The Committee concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

E. J. LEMAIRE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

* No. 469. † No. 467.

Post Office and presumed that he will have letter of authority similar to that furnished to New Zealand Delegate Madrid Congress.

Position with regard to representation of and vote accorded to group of "Other Dominions, etc.," under Article 29 (6) of Madrid Convention recently under consideration here. In view of accession of Irish Free State to Postal Union and contemplated application at Stockholm for its recognition as a single country with a separate vote His Majesty's Government consider that there would be advantage in also proposing formally at Stockholm that New Zealand should be similarly recognized as single country and that vote now allotted to "Other Dominions and the whole of the Colonies and Protectorates" under Article 29 (6) and actually assigned to New Zealand (see Article 5 of final Protocol to Madrid Convention) should be replaced by separate vote for New Zealand only. If recognition for New Zealand and Irish Free State secured contemplated that other Dominions, Colonies, etc., also comprised in group "Other Dominions, etc.," should be in future included in representation and vote of Great Britain.

Should be glad to learn whether your Ministers concur in proposal and if so would wish British representatives to propose it at Stockholm Congress. Newfoundland and Southern Rhodesia being consulted also since proposal if adopted would affect their position to some degree.—SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES.

NEXT Universal Postal Union Congress to be held at Stockholm commencing 4th July. At previous Congresses arrangements made for Southern Rhodesia to be represented by the Union of South Africa delegates who received formal authority from High Commissioner but as present practice is for signature of British representatives to be on behalf of Great Britain and various British Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates it is thought that it would be more convenient on present occasion if formal authority for representation of Southern Rhodesia were given to delegates of His Majesty's Government, Union delegates being asked to bear in mind interests of Southern Rhodesia and Protectorates under South African High Commission as well as those of Union. Do your Ministers agree? If so, I will telegraph names of British delegates. Form of authority required could be obtained from High Commissioner's office.

Position with regard to representation of and vote accorded to group of "Other Dominions, etc.," under Article 29 (6) of Madrid Convention recently under consideration here. THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

[Answered by No. 483.]

(Confidential.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 15th May, 1924.

WITH reference to my predecessor's despatch Dominions No. 1 of the 1st of January and my despatch No. 175 of the 21st March,* I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that His Majesty's Government have recently had occasion to examine the arrangements for the representation of this country and of the various Dominions, Colonies and Protectorates at the forthcoming Congress of the Universal Postal Union to be held at Stockholm commencing on the 4th July next.

2. As your Ministers are aware, the following parts of the Empire are considered, under the terms of Article 29 of the Convention of Madrid, 1920, as forming, in addition to Great Britain, single countries or administrations for the purposes of Articles 24, 27 and 28 of the Convention, namely:—

A. British India.

B. Canada.

C. Commonwealth of Australia with British New Guinea.

D. Union of South Africa.

E. The other Dominions and the whole of the British Colonies and Protectorates.

3. In accordance with Article 27 (4) one vote is allotted to each of the above members or groups of members. Under Article V of the Final Protocol to the Madrid Convention the vote attributed by the Convention to the group of "the other Dominions and the whole of the British Colonies and Protectorates" is assigned to New Zealand.

4. In accordance with the request contained in your Confidential despatch of the 27th of July, 1923,† the British Delegation will formally propose at the Stockholm Congress the amendment of Article 29 so as to include the Irish Free State as "a single country or administration" for the purposes of Articles 24, 27 and 28. If this proposal is agreed to it would not, however, become effective until the next succeeding Congress, and it remains to decide the question of how best the interests of the Irish Free State may be represented at Stockholm.

5. In view of the customary procedure at former Congresses there appear to be two alternatives:—

(a) That the Government of the Irish Free State should depute an officer, or officers, to attend the Congress who would be attached to the Delegation from this country. It is understood that this procedure has already been discussed informally between officers of the Dublin Post Office and of the General Post Office in London.

(b) That a Delegate, or Delegates, of the Irish Free State should be included among the persons representing the group of "the other Dominions and the whole of the British Colonies and Protectorates" under Article 29 (6). The vote for this group is, as explained in paragraph 3 above, already assigned to New Zealand and will be exercised by the New Zealand representative.

6. I shall be glad to learn as early as possible which of these alternatives your Ministers would prefer.

7. It has been suggested that the procedure described under (b) above might possibly be prejudicial to the success of the proposal for the inclusion of the Free State in Article 29 as "a single country or administration," since the Congress may conceivably take the view that such procedure might be adhered to at future Congresses. The British Delegation will, however, be instructed strongly to oppose any such view, and no doubt it would also be opposed by the Delegates of the other Dominions. In this connexion I should add that it is contemplated that a formal proposal should be made by the British Delegation at Stockholm (a) to secure for New Zealand recognition as a "single country or administration" in place of the group "the other Dominions and the whole of the British Colonies and Protectorates," the vote for which is already assigned to her; (b) assuming that this recognition is secured, and similar recognition, in accordance with paragraph 4 above, is secured for the Irish Free State, to include Newfoundland, Southern Rhodesia, and the Colonies, etc., also comprised in the group "the other Dominions and the whole of the British Colonies and Protectorates" in the representation and vote of Great Britain.

8. As regards signature of any Convention or subsidiary agreements concluded at Stockholm, it is not certain, even if the amendment of Article 29 to be proposed by the British Delegation in relation to the Irish Free State is adopted, that the officers or delegates appointed by the Government of the Irish Free State to attend the Conference would be invited to sign the instruments, but in any case it would be of advantage if such officers or delegates were provided with letters of authority (in duplicate). A copy of the authority issued to the delegates of the Union of South Africa who attended the Madrid Congress in 1920 is enclosed.

I have, &c.,
W. L. ALLARDYCE.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL to THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 22nd April, 1924.)

(No. 45.)

SIR, Governor-General's Office, Melbourne, 7th March, 1924.
WITH reference to your predecessor's despatch dated 7th December, 1922, No. 441,‡ relative to an enquiry by the German Ambassador in London regarding the possibility of an extension to the self-governing Dominions other than New Zealand of an Agreement between His Majesty's Government and the Government of Germany respecting Article 297 of the Treaty of Versailles, I have the honour, at the instance of my Acting Prime Minister, to inform you that it is not considered that at the present time there would be sufficient practical advantage to justify the extension of the Agreement to the Commonwealth of Australia.

* No. 486. † No. 482. ‡ No. 262 in Dominions No. 87.

With regard to Article 11 of the Agreement, my Acting Prime Minister states that the policy of the Commonwealth Government is to retain and liquidate the property in Australia of German nationals resident outside Australia. So far as German nationals resident in Australia are concerned, the policy is to treat each case on its merits, and almost without exception the property has been released.

With respect to New Guinea, I am advised that the Commonwealth Government has retained all the property of German nationals, except in cases in which the existence of special circumstances moved it to exempt German property rights and interests from the measures of retention and liquidation authorized by Article 297 (b) of the Treaty of Versailles.

My Ministers, without agreeing to the general provisions of Article 13, will be prepared to consider favourably any representations made by the German authorities or by any individuals interested in any property or business in Australia which has been liquidated for the supply of information in regard thereto; and in so far as New Guinea is concerned Ministers will be prepared to give consideration to representations made by the German Government for information regarding liquidated properties in that Territory.

I have, &c.,

FORSTER,

Governor-General.

(1) LONDON CONFERENCE ON THE DAWES REPORT.

(Cmd. 2105, Cmd. 2191, Cmd. 2259 and Cmd. 2270.)

Note.—As stated on page 11 of the Summary of Proceedings of the Imperial Conference, 1923 (Cmd. 1987), it was while the Conference was sitting that the President of the United States renewed the offer of the United States Government to take part in an international conference or inquiry to investigate the European Reparations problem and to report upon the capacity of Germany to make the payments to which she was pledged. The Conference cordially welcomed and decided to take immediate advantage of this overture; and communications were at once entered into with the Allied Powers to obtain their co-operation.

The Dominion Prime Ministers were informed of the subsequent discussions as to the proposed inquiry and the final decision of the Reparation Commission to appoint two Expert Committees, in telegrams of the 23rd November and 12th December, 1923 (57802/23). Later discussions of the Reparation problem were described in telegrams of the 19th March (11920/24) and 26th March, 1924 (14638/24). The Expert Committees reported on the 9th April, and their reports were published in Cmd. 2105.

11TH APRIL. Secret. The Report of the Expert Committees of the Reparation Commission having been laid before Parliament, Prime Minister will be obliged to make a statement of the views of His Majesty's Government in the House of Commons before it rises for the Easter Recess.

Following is substance of declaration Prime Minister proposes to make:—

Begins: Express satisfaction that the report is unanimous and signed by representative experts from America, France, Italy and Belgium as well as this country.

His Majesty's Government feel that a report supported by such authority must command general assent and that there will be a universal desire to use the opportunity which such an authoritative report gives to end the existing unsettlement. One feature deserves special emphasis. It is explicitly stated in the report that it is an indivisible whole, and the signatories in terms renounce all responsibility if certain of their recommendations are adopted, and others rejected.

While therefore in some respects the proposals may be capable of improvement, His Majesty's Government attach so much importance to agreed recommendations which can be brought into immediate operation, that they for their part will be prepared to support the scheme in its entirety, provided that all the other parties concerned are willing to take the same course, agreeing to give the experiment a real chance and waiting to make any modifications which may appear necessary after experience and by common agreement. Ends.

Please inform your Prime Minister.—THOMAS.

Note.—Telegrams as to subsequent discussions, which led ultimately to the decision to summon the London Conference, were sent to the Dominion Prime Ministers on the 16th, 25th and 30th April (18533/24) 7th, 8th and 15th May (22087/24) and 23rd May (24837/24). SECRET. 2nd May. Your telegram of 30th April, Secret.* Experts' Report on Reparations.

Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: Conversation between Poincaré and British Ambassador prompts the following remarks: I agree profoundly with your recent remarks that the Experts' Report affords God-given opportunity to pull out of the slough of despond in which Europe has been floundering for the last five years. Reports have already received such a volume of international support and hold out such definite prospects of substantial payments to France that I do not see in the long run how the French Government can refuse to accept unconditionally. Two conditions which Poincaré seeks to attach to his acceptance in the above conversation should, in my opinion, be resolutely opposed, and in the end he will have to abandon them. Our slogan should be "Back to the Peace Treaty." Further occupation or control of the Ruhr, which is against the Peace Treaty, should come to an end, and sanctions beyond those provided in the Peace Treaty should not be agreed to. If the German elections result in favour of the Experts' Report, that means the voluntary acceptance by the German people of the new reparations settlement and their previous objection that the old reparations settlement was impossible of execution and was imposed on them by force falls away for ever. Their willing acceptance will create a new situation and new and better basis of security for execution of the settlement than one resting on arrangements about sanctions among the Allies.

* 18533/23: not printed; it summarized a conversation between His Majesty's Ambassador at Paris and M. Poincaré.

I think also that both from international and from Empire points of view an arrangement about sanctions entailing eventual military or other intervention by Great Britain in continental affairs would be the greatest mistake possible, and no such or similar direct action should be contemplated.

28TH JUNE. Secret. My telegram of 25th June.‡ Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: I have now had opportunity of going further into question of participation of Dominion Governments in Inter-Allied deliberations next month. Work of Conference will be to concert necessary arrangements for putting Dawes Report into operation. Conference being restricted to this one subject, questions of Inter-Allied debts and problem of security will not be dealt with. Principal task of Conference seems therefore likely to be to agree upon the terms of an instrument to be signed by the Allies and by Germany formally binding the parties to execute recommendations of Dawes Report.

In order to avoid any appearance of wishing to amend the Treaty of Versailles, this instrument might take the form of a protocol.

As I had already suggested in the conversations with the Belgian Ministers at the beginning of May (see telegram from Secretary of State

* See Official Report 23rd June, Columns 41-43. † No. 495. ‡ No. 494.

8th May)*, we favour the plan of fixing in such protocol (1) a date by which the legislative and other measures to be taken by Germany must be completed and (2) a second date, say a fortnight later, when all the fiscal and economic sanctions and other arrangements affecting the economic activities of the German Reich and now in force in German territory will be withdrawn.

The Dawes Report lays down that sanctions shall not be reimposed except in the case of flagrant failure to fulfil the conditions embodied in the Report itself. A stipulation to this effect will accordingly have to find a place in the protocol, and the question will have to be decided who is to be the authority to declare that there has been flagrant failure. That duty cannot properly be entrusted to the Reparation Commission, whose functions are strictly determined by the Treaty of Versailles, since the engagements to be undertaken by Germany under the Dawes scheme go altogether beyond those imposed by the Treaty. A suggestion has been made that the Financial Committee of the League of Nations might be brought in for the purpose, but the matter is still open for discussion.

Lastly, the protocol should contain a clause providing that any dispute as to its proper interpretation shall be referred to the International Court.

You will see from above outline of task before Conference that procedure as regards association of various Governments of Empire in its work should clearly be governed by principles of resolution as to negotiation, etc., of treaties agreed to by Imperial Conference, 1923. Our suggestion is that a meeting should be held in London of Dominion and Indian representatives to discuss with His Majesty's Government the policy to be adopted at Conference and make arrangements for representation.

If you agree, I should be grateful for reply as soon as possible and also to learn name of representative who will attend preliminary meeting. As opening date of Conference likely to be 16th July we ought to hold preliminary meeting in previous week. Report of Dawes Committee enclosed in Secretary of State's despatch 19th April, No. 188.† Similar telegram sent to other Prime Ministers. Ramsay MacDonald. Ends.

30TH JUNE. Secret. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister regarding participation of Dominion Governments in the Inter-Allied Conference:—

* 22087/24: not printed; it summarized the conversations with the Belgian Ministers at Chequers on the 2nd and 3rd May. † 18179/24: not printed; it enclosed copies of Cmd. 2105. ‡ No. 497.

Begins: Your telegram 28th June* was received yesterday, Sunday, and the contents considered with colleagues at the Cabinet Council to-day. We agree from the outline of the task before the Conference as set forth in your telegram that the procedure as regards the association of various governments of the Empire in its work should be governed by the principle(s) of the resolution as to negotiation, &c., of treaties agreed to by the Imperial Conference, 1923. In this connexion we assume that procedure with respect to the proposed Protocol will be that set forth in the case of Treaties negotiated at International Conferences where there is British Empire Delegation in which, in accordance with the now established practice, Dominions and India will be separately represented.

We are pleased to concur in your suggestion that the meetings of such representatives should be held in London to discuss with His Majesty's Government policy to be adopted at the Conference and make arrangements for representation. We should like to have our Government represented by one of its Ministers at the preliminary meeting. But, as you indicate that this meeting should be held in the week previous to the 16th July, we doubt if it will be possible so to arrange owing to the limited time between now and then. We hope, however, to be able to arrange to have one of our Ministers representing Canada at the main Conference. To effect this it will be necessary for us to be immediately advised if we are right in the assumption that as respects negotiation for signature and ratification of the proposed Protocol principles governing will be the same as those regarding Treaties negotiated at International Conferences as referred to in Section 1, Sub-section (c) respecting negotiations and Section 2, Sub-section (c) respecting signature procedure as set forth in the Resolution of the Imperial Conference, 1923. We should like if possible to be informed as to this before deciding on representative to be named to attend the preliminary meeting, as the selection of the latter will necessarily be governed to some extent by the procedure to be observed with respect to our representation at the Inter-Allied Conference. Ends.

3RD JULY. Secret. Your telegram of 30th June.* Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister.

Begins: Your message was considered by Cabinet 2nd July. As explained in my message of 28th June,† work of Inter-Allied Conference will be of strictly limited scope. There is no question, for example, of changing percentage payable to British Empire on account of sums received by way of reparation (viz., 22 per cent.), or of altering allocation of this percentage which was agreed at Imperial Conference, 1921.

Also, not only will problem of security not be dealt with but no military commitments will be entered into. We intend to retain liberty of action in event of wilful default by Germany, and not to go further than agree, in that event, to consult with Allies as to nature of sanctions to be applied.

Generally speaking, it is difficult to see that any special obligations on Dominions will be entailed.

I thus find it difficult to give a definite answer to that part of your message which deals with the precise application of the principles of the Resolution as to negotiation, etc., of Treaties passed at Imperial Conference last year to arrangements for representation at Inter-Allied Conference. We had contemplated that question of representation should be discussed and settled at preliminary conference in London referred to in my message of 28th June.† Would you have any objection to this and nominate representative accordingly to attend it?

I ought to tell you quite frankly that in the circumstances we do see difficulties in arranging for separate representation of all Dominions and India if this should be desired, since this would result in our total representation largely out-numbering that of foreign countries.

For this reason we had hoped to consider at preliminary conference with Dominions and India whether there was any method of arranging to keep our representation down to three.

One method might be application of panel system as arranged at Paris in 1919, but as to this I should explain that I think my own presence will be essential throughout and probably that of Chancellor of the Exchequer. Another method might be that Dominions and India should agree on a single representative, but this would be departure which, so far as I know, has never been discussed previously, and might very probably be regarded as open to objection.

* No. 499. † No. 497.

Whatever system adopted British Empire Delegation should, we think, remain in session during Conference so as to deal with all developments requiring discussion after Conference had opened. Also our view is that arrangements should be considered as applicable to this Conference only which, as already indicated, is of a very special character. As regards general question of application of Conference Resolution on negotiation, etc., of Treaties see my message of 23rd June.*

Our present view is that proposed protocol should be signed on behalf of all Powers represented at Conference and that separate signatures for Dominions and India should be included. I should add, however, that it is intended to be an instrument not requiring ratification.

Prime Minister of Commonwealth of Australia has nominated High Commissioner to attend preliminary meeting. No replies yet received from other Dominions. Duration of Conference estimated at about a week.

I am repeating your message and this reply to Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, Union of South Africa and Irish Free State. I should like to arrange preliminary meeting if possible for Thursday, 10th July. Ends.

7TH JULY. Participation of Canada in the Inter-Allied Conference.
Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: I have submitted to my colleagues in Council your reply of the 3rd July to my telegram 30th June.‡ We feel that representations of your telegram in respect of negotiation and signature of proposed Protocol present so many features parallel to those of the Lausanne Treaty which have given rise to recent discussions in your Parliament and our own that exact position cannot be too clearly understood or too carefully stated.

* Nos. 497 and 503. † No. 497. ‡ Nos. 502 and 499.

In your telegram you say: "Our present view is that proposed Protocol should be signed on behalf of all parties represented at the Conference and that separate signatures for Dominions and India should be included." Elsewhere in the same message you say: "I thus find it difficult to give definite answer to that part of your message which deals with the precise application of the principles of the Resolution as to negotiation, etc., of Treaties passed at the Imperial Conference last year to arrangements for representation at the Inter-Allied Conference." And also "I ought to tell you quite frankly that in the circumstances we do see difficulty in arranging for separate representation of all Dominions and India if this should be desired."

If the proposed Protocol is to be regarded as coming within the category of the Treaties negotiated at International Conferences where there are British Empire delegations and if as stated in your telegram of 28th June* principles of Resolution as to negotiation, etc., of Treaties agreed to by the Imperial Conference of 1923 are to apply, there would, in our opinion, from the wording of the Resolution, appear to be no escape from conclusion of now established practice with respect to negotiations in such a case, requiring that Dominions and India should be separately represented and that the existing practice with respect to signature demands signature by plenipotentiaries on behalf of the Governments of the Empire represented at the Conference, full powers, to be in form employed at Paris and Washington.

At Paris and Washington Canada's representative held a Full Power signed by His Majesty the King in the form of Letters Patent authorizing him to sign "For and in name of His Majesty the King in respect of the Dominion of Canada" any Treaties, Conventions and Agreements that might tend to the attainment of the objects of the Conference, Canadian Government having by Order in Council sanctioned the issuance of these Full Powers by His Majesty.

If the Protocol is to be signed on behalf of Canada and the terms of the Resolution of the Imperial Conference are to be followed, it will, we think, be necessary to have at the Conference representative of Canada holding a Full Power signed by His Majesty the King in the form described and sanctioned by the Order in Council of our Government.

We regret that it will not be possible for Canada to be represented at the preliminary meeting by a member of our Cabinet who is wholly familiar with all the considerations of which we think full account should be taken and who might also serve as Canada's representative at the Inter-Allied Conference. As time will not permit of this, I am to-day cabling our High Commissioner in London, Honourable Peter C. Larkin, to represent our Dominion at the preliminary meeting which it is anticipated will be held on Thursday and instructing Mr. Larkin to present the point of view of our Government as herein set forth. I should be deeply obliged if you would have Mr. Larkin immediately supplied with copies of all the correspondence that has been exchanged between our respective Governments upon the subject of the representation of Canada at the Inter-Allied Conference including copy of this message, in order that he may in advance of the meeting be made as familiar as possible therewith. Ends.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL to THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 10.40 p.m., 9th July, 1924.)

TELEGRAM.

10TH JULY. Secret. Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: My telegram‡ informing you that Sir Joseph Cook would act as Australian representative on preliminary Conference was based on the assumption that effect would be given to statement expressed by you that procedure should be clearly governed by principles of the Resolutions as to the negotiation, etc., of Treaties agreed to by the Imperial Conference, 1923, and that preliminary meeting would naturally give effect to these principles as regards representation.

Your telegram of the 3rd July§ covering communications which have passed between you and the Government of Canada, however, makes it clear that, in order to facilitate the deliberations of the Conference, you have in mind a modification of the procedure laid down in those Resolutions.

In view of the above principle involved, think it necessary that we should make our attitude quite clear. We concur generally in Canada's claim for separate representation in accordance with now established practice and Resolutions passed at the Imperial Conference, 1923. We regard it as highly desirable that there should be no departure from this principle, as in our opinion any such departure must ultimately deprive us internationally of status we achieved at Versailles and subsequent Conferences.

Further, when the question of reparations was considered at the Spa Conference, British Empire Delegation was revived and the Dominions invited to send plenipotentiaries. The circumstances of the present Conference appear to be precisely similar to those obtaining then. The objections to which you refer, viz., that separate representation of the Dominions and India would result in British Empire representation largely outnumbering that of foreign countries is not new. It has been raised before and may be raised again. We cannot therefore subscribe to it now, particularly as there is no question of a vote, and the only important issue involved in such representation is, in our opinion, that of our own status.

In view, however, of your statement that Conference will be of strictly limited scope; that there is no question of changing percentage payable to the British Empire by way of reparations or of altering allocation of this percentage as arranged at the Imperial Conference, 1921; that the problem of security will not be dealt with nor military commitment(s) entered into; we do not, if you press your objection, insist dogmatically on separate representative, but should be willing to ask one of your Ministers to be appointed to represent us. We could not agree to the appointment of a single representative for the whole of the Dominions and India, as this would have nothing to commend it either in principle or practice.

We believe that the procedure we suggest, combined of course with separate signatures for the Dominions and India as indicated by you, will meet the requirements of the Resolution of 1923, though we prefer separate representation.

In view, however, of the fact that the Conference will almost certainly discuss suggested modifications of the total amount Germany is to pay, method of payment and guarantees in connexion therewith, and of Australia's direct interest in percentage of the amount to be allotted to the British Empire, we consider it highly desirable that Sub-section D of Resolution regarding negotiations of Treaties should be vigorously adhered to and that (as in the case of the Spa Conference) we be kept fully advised, during the progress of negotiations of any points affecting us or in which we may be interested, and that a British Empire Delegation on the spot also should be used for that purpose. Ends.

9TH JULY. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: On the Order of the day to-day question was asked with respect to the Inter-Allied Conference, to which I replied intimating that I would bring its contents to the attention of His Majesty's Government with a view to ascertaining your wishes in the matter. I should be obliged if you would kindly indicate the reply which you wish me to make as from His Majesty's Government. Question and answer appear in Hansard as follows:—

"Mr. Joseph T. Shaw (West Calgary): Press despatches having indicated that Premier Ramsay MacDonald has issued memorandum with reference to the proceedings at the proposed Conference regarding the Dawes Report and that the French Press in discussing the memorandum has treated it as formulation of British policy, I want to ask the Prime Minister the following question: First, has the Government received such a memorandum? Secondly, will the Government lay on the table all correspondence in connexion with this matter? And, lastly, if for any reason the Government is unable to table all correspondence, will the memorandum referred to be tabled?

Right Honourable W. L. Mackenzie King (Prime Minister): Government has not received formal memorandum but has received a communication from the Prime Minister of Great Britain intimating the matter that would probably come before the Inter-Allied Conference. That communication is very similar in its context to the memorandum to which I think the Honourable Member refers and which I have seen in the Press. It was an intimation from the Prime Minister of Great Britain to the Government of Canada of the matter which would probably be discussed at the Inter-Allied Conference. There was, however, a further communication requesting that the Government should name a representative to meet with the representatives of the other British Dominions in Conference with His Majesty's Government in London this week. The Conference I believe takes place to-morrow, and we have asked our High Commissioner, Mr. Larkin, to represent us at that preliminary Conference, at which I understand that the policy of the British Empire in this matter will be considered. Pending authority from the British Government, I should hesitate to place on the table any of the communications which have thus far been received, but I shall have pleasure in communicating to the British Government request of the Honourable Member with a view to ascertaining their wishes in the circumstances." Ends.

11TH JULY. Secret. Following from Prime Minister for [To Canada, Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand: your Prime Minister:—] [To Irish Free State: President of Executive Council:—]

Begins: I have had full and frank talk at Conference with High Commissioners for Canada, Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand and Irish Free State, and Secretary of State for India this afternoon, and have explained to them in detail difficulties which confront us in securing separate representation of Dominions and India in the same manner as at Versailles and Washington.

It is of the most urgent necessity that the Dawes Report should be put into operation without delay, and that the Inter-Allied Conference which is to deal with nothing but how this can be done, and is therefore not a Treaty-making Conference, should meet as fixed on the 16th July.

Under present arrangements, delegations of each of the Chief Powers are to consist of three representatives, and even if we were in a position to negotiate an extension now, it could not be fixed up before next Wednesday. In view of the political and economic situation in Europe that would mean that the Conference would be postponed indefinitely. This would destroy all chance of the Report being put into operation, with disastrous consequences to Europe and indeed the whole world. All that the British Government has striven for would be wrecked, and any hope of obtaining financial result from Versailles Treaty would be gone.

Whilst Australia, if separate representation at Conference is impossible, and New Zealand are prepared to be represented by a British Minister, instructions of the other High Commissioners present did not enable any definite recommendation to be made. It seemed, however, that following arrangements were likely to meet situation best.

(a) British representatives to keep in continuous consultation with High Commissioners or other representatives appointed by Governments of Dominions and India during course of sittings of Conference.

(b) Dominion Governments to be kept fully informed by telegraph of Conference proceedings.

I gave High Commissioners present and Secretary of State for India following assurance:

"Whatever is agreed to now under exceptional character of this Conference will not be regarded or quoted as a precedent, and a statement to that effect will be made by me to the Conference."

I am quite sure that you will appreciate our difficulty and do your best to help us. Please reply urgently.

I am sending this message to Prime Ministers of Canada, Commonwealth of Australia, and New Zealand, and to President of Executive Council, Irish Free State. I am also repeating it to Prime Minister of Union of South Africa.* Ramsay MacDonald. Ends.

13TH JULY. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Inter-Allied Conference. Your telegram of 11th July* was received yesterday and contents carefully considered by the Cabinet at meeting held during the day. We are naturally most anxious to avoid any embarrassment to your Government, and it was with this end in view that, when informed by you that the Inter-Allied Conference came within the scope of the 1923 Imperial Conference Resolution, in consequence we were being asked to send a representative to the preliminary Conference between His Majesty's Government and Self-Governing Dominions and India to arrange for representation at the Inter-Allied Conference, we deemed it advisable to anticipate the possibility of any misunderstanding by stating clearly our position with respect to representation in accordance with the terms of that resolution. From the statement of your telegram of 11th July it would seem that the preliminary Conference was not, as we had been led to believe, so much for the purpose of representation of the Dominions and India on British Empire Delegation, as for the purpose of informing the Dominions and India of what in advance of consultation with their representatives had been decided upon with respect of representation at the Inter-Allied Conference. This is precisely the procedure adopted with respect to representation at the Lausanne Conference to which exception has been taken, concerning which we have been told that we should have spoken more plainly at the time and which for many reasons we had hoped would not be repeated. We regret that we are unable to acquiesce in this method of proceeding or to depart from the position which we have consistently maintained of having Canada's right to representation at the Inter-Allied Conference determined in accordance with the precedent established at Versailles and Washington, and confirmed by 1923 Conference Resolution which our Government has formally approved. With regard to possible objections by other countries we deem it sufficient to observe that the British Empire has an absolute right to determine its internal organization which in relevant aspect has already received international recognition. In case a rule of procedure at the Inter-Allied Conference does not permit entire British Empire Delegation to be present at the session of the Conference, we are quite prepared to agree that representation at such session should be determined from time to time by the Delegation, but we regard as essential to our signature to any protocol or other agreement negotiated at the International Conference where there is British Empire Delegation representation of Canada on such delegation by delegate holding

17TH JULY. Secret. Following for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your two messages of 15th July* in reply to my message of same day† were read at further meeting with High Commissioners to-day at which Senator Belcourt was present.

In order to avoid any possibility of misunderstanding I want to make it quite clear that proposal in my message of 15th July was that Canadian representative should attend meetings of Inter-Allied Conference, under panel system, in rotation with representatives of other Dominions.

This procedure follows that at Paris Peace Conference in so far as rules of that Conference provided that each delegation had the right to avail itself of the panel system, but is not in accordance with that part of rules of Paris Conference which provided for separate representation of Dominions and India in addition to possibility of their inclusion, if so desired, in representation of the British Empire by the panel system.

I feel bound to point this out before definite arrangements made for representation of Dominions, as I am not sure on reading your telegrams whether this position was understood.

I very much hope that my proposal (which has already been accepted on behalf of Australia, New Zealand and India) may be carried out, it being understood, of course, that arrangement is a special one and governed by Prime Minister's assurance contained in my telegram of 11th July.‡ You will also like to know that it can be arranged for representatives of Dominions to be present at meetings of Inter-Allied Conference on days when it is not their turn to sit as Members of the British Empire Delegation. This will ensure that they are fully acquainted with all that goes on in the Conference.

Personal. Unauthorized statements are appearing in Press here, and I am most anxious that matter should be settled at once, as otherwise an already complicated situation will become still more difficult. Ends.

17TH JULY. Secret. Your telegram of 16th July.§

As your Prime Minister will see from my separate message of to-day,|| position as regards representation of Dominions at Inter-Allied Conference is not yet quite clear. For this reason it would seem impossible in any case to lay any papers at present. Both Prime Minister and I feel strongly, however, that it would be most undesirable to publish any of the correspondence regarding representation of the Dominions whilst the Inter-Allied Conference is proceeding, though announcement should, of course, be made as soon as matter is settled.—THOMAS.

In view of all the circumstances and to avoid any possibility of exception being taken by any member of our Parliament to our action in thus accepting your proposals we would like to be assured that there will be included in Protocol which our representative may be expected to sign a clause similar to that which formed part of our guarantee treaty between United Kingdom and France as follows:—

Clause begins: Present protocol shall impose no obligation upon any of the Dominions of the British Empire unless and until it is approved by Parliament of Dominion concerned. Clause ends.

I might add that in any event it would have been an instruction to our representative to see that such clause was inserted. Message ends.

EXTRACT FROM MINUTES OF MEETING OF INTER-ALLIED CONFERENCE HELD AT THE FOREIGN OFFICE ON 23RD JULY, 1924, AT 3 P.M.

MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD: I have first of all to make a statement. As the delegates are aware, the British Empire is at present considering the whole question of how, in future, delegations to conferences, which may result in obligations being imposed not only upon us here at home but upon the whole of the Empire, shall be selected. We have had to come to a very hurried and a very temporary settlement of that question amongst ourselves, and I am going to communicate to the Conference what our arrangement has been. I hope the Conference will accept it, as the delegates will see, at the end of the statement which I am about to read, that it is clearly laid down that this shall not be taken as a precedent for further conferences.

The statement I should like to make is that it has been arranged that representatives of any of the Dominions so desiring, and of India, shall become members of the British Empire Delegation at the Conference on the panel system, and, in pursuance of this arrangement, I am glad to say that the Hon. N. A. Belcourt, K.C., a member of the Privy Council and Senate of Canada, is present to-day as the representative of the Dominion of Canada.

* No. 547. † No. 546.

The representatives of the Dominions and India who are appointed will be able, even on days when it is not their turn to sit as members of the British Empire Delegation, nevertheless to be present at the meetings of the Conference; this will ensure that they are fully acquainted with all that goes on at the Conference.

The plan adopted is a special one in view of the exceptional character of this Conference, and differs from that adopted at the Peace Conference at Paris and at the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments. It is therefore not to be regarded or quoted as a precedent. I may add to that, that this arrangement does not in any way increase the representation of Great Britain at this Conference; it is only a method of substituting one delegate for another. I hope that will be agreed to. (Agreed.)

The next item on the programme to-day is the appointment of a Committee of Jurists, which I think Monsieur Herriot has in hand.

MR. R. GREEN: I ask the Prime Minister whether Australia will be represented at the Allies Conference, and if so, whether the status of our delegates will be at least equal to that of our representatives at the Versailles Conference.

* 35008/24: not printed; it summarized the developments at the Conference and mentioned that the Prime Minister proposed at the Plenary Session to be held that day to make a statement as to representation of the Dominions and India.

MR. BRUCE: Last week, in reply to the Leader of the Opposition, I indicated that arrangements had been made for the representation of the Dominions at the Allies Conference in Britain on the basis of the panel system, under which a representative of each Dominion, in turn, sits at the main Conference. In addition to representation at the main Conference, the British Empire Delegation, which existed at the time of the Versailles negotiations, has been reconstituted, and the representative of the Commonwealth is present at each sitting of that Empire Delegation. The whole of the negotiations taking place at the main Conference are considered by the British Empire Delegation, and further, the Prime Ministers of the self-governing parts of the Empire are being kept fully informed of everything that transpires.

MR. R. GREEN: Has the Prime Minister protested against the lowering of the status of Australia's representative at the Conference, and similar Conferences arising out of the War? At the Versailles Conference Australia was allowed full representation as a nation, but apparently the Commonwealth has not now that status.

MR. BRUCE: Australia retains full status, and is represented at the Inter-Allies Conference as one of the nations concerned in the negotiations. There has been no reduction of the status of the Commonwealth.

5TH AUGUST. Secret. Following for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: As indicated in Jurists' Report telegraphed on 28th July,* which was accepted by Plenary Conference on same day, three separate agreements are desirable for the purpose of putting Dawes plan into operation. Of these only the second and third will be signed by the representatives of the Allied Governments. The first will be an agreement between the Reparation Commission and Germany. The second will be between the Allied Governments and Germany, and will set out the measures to be taken by the former for restoring the economic unity of the Reich. The third will be Inter-Allied and will provide for certain amendments being made to the Reparation Annex of the Treaty of Versailles and will contain certain limitations on the right of Allied Governments to impose sanctions on Germany.

As you will have gathered from Reports of Committees already communicated to you by telegraph, it appears certain that neither the agreement between Allied Governments and Germany nor Inter-Allied agreement will impose obligations in any real sense of that term on Dominion Governments.

Further, in order that these agreements may become binding on powers concerned as soon as signed, not proposed to make them, or Protocol referred to in Jurists' Report, instruments requiring ratification by Heads of States or subject to formal approval of Parliaments.

In these circumstances Clause suggested in message from Canadian Prime Minister of 17th July† (which was repeated to other Dominions), subsequently endorsed by Prime Minister of Union of South Africa, seems unnecessary, and Legal Adviser to Foreign Office deprecates its insertion on two grounds; first, that it would appear to have no practical application; secondly, that it would imply that, when Dominion Parliaments had approved, obligations would be imposed, which, as explained above, would not be the case in any real sense.

In these circumstances I hope that you and other Prime Ministers to whom I am sending similar message will agree to omission of Clause. Please reply urgently.

Secret and not for publication. Above message has been framed with a view to eventual publication if necessary, but you will appreciate that further argument against insertion of Clause is that it would encourage Governments like France and Belgium to demand that in their case also approval of legislature should be condition precedent to bringing Dawes plan into operation.

We are most anxious that no such demand should be made, since whole object of Conference is to bring plan into operation at once. Position of France and Belgium is quite different from that of Canada and other Dominions, since in their case very heavy obligations are imposed by agreements. Ends.

PART II.

IN the near future a Conference of Financial Experts, to be followed, if necessary, by a Conference of Finance Ministers, is to be held in Paris to deal with various accounting questions which have to be settled in connexion with the end of the occupation of the Ruhr and the putting into force of the Experts' Plan. Countries to be represented at the Conference will be the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan (that is to say, Powers which signed the previous financial arrangement of 11th March, 1922 [Cmd. 1616], see my despatch of 31st March, 1922, Dominions 107*), together with a representative of the United States of America. This Conference will have to discuss, on the one hand, the method in which the proceeds of the Ruhr sanctions are to be brought to account and also the expenditure incurred in the occupation of the Ruhr and, on the other hand, the exact arrangements required in consequence of the fact that the annuity under the Experts' Plan is to cover all Treaty charges and not only reparation; that is to say it will cover cost of occupation, Belgian War debt, and "restitution" as well as reparation proper. Conference is not, however, to discuss the percentages agreed to at Spa, which His Majesty's Government would, under no circumstances, agree to alter now, nor general financial questions such as War debts. There is of course no intention of altering the apportionment of the Empire reparation percentage which was agreed to at Imperial Conference, 1921.

Please inform your Prime Minister.—THOMAS.

DEAR SIR,

29th October, 1924.

Re Reparations:

I BEG to refer to your communication of the 18th instant,† covering copy of a telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies to the Governor-General of Canada on the above subject.

I refer particularly to Part 2 of this message.

The Counsellor to the Department of External Affairs and the Under-Secretary of State and Deputy Custodian of Canada have been in London and have discussed the matter set forth in the message, and the conclusion reached, with which I agree, is that the Canadian Government desires to send a representative to attend the Experts' Conference now assembled in Paris in the capacity only of an observer.

I request under the circumstances that you will obtain for Lieutenant-Colonel J. Reid Hyde, C.B.E., on my behalf, such credentials as may be necessary to permit him to attend the meetings, and through the British Experts to obtain relative documents.

Yours faithfully,

SIR,

Downing Street, 31st October, 1924.

I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Thomas to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Larkin's letter of 29th October* regarding the Conference of Financial Experts now taking place at Paris.

2. The whole question was discussed at a Conference held at the Treasury on the 30th October between the Controller of Finance and the Under-Secretary of State for Canada and Colonel Reid Hyde. The Secretary of State understands that at that Conference Sir Otto Niemeyer explained the difficulties in the way of complying with the High Commissioner's request, but discussed various alternative methods of meeting the position, and in particular promised that he would arrange for a document to be drawn up and supplied to Mr. Mulvey giving an indication, so far as the available data permit, of the amount which may be available for Canada by way of reparation as the outcome of the Dawes Report, during the next few years. This document will be forwarded as soon as possible.

Kinnaid House, Pall Mall East, London, S.W.1,

DEAR SIR,

3rd November, 1924.

I AM to acknowledge the receipt of Sir Charles Davis's letter of the 31st October† regarding the Conference of Financial Experts now taking place in Paris.

The representatives of His Majesty's Treasury discussed, as stated in your letter, various alternative methods of meeting the position, and the High Commissioner would be glad to receive a letter briefly outlining these alternatives.

It was at the request of the Under-Secretary of State of Canada that a document be supplied, indicating as far as available data permits, the amount which might be available to Canada, and I am glad to note that this memorandum is to be supplied.

It is desirable, I think, that the suggestions made by the Treasury should be put forward for consideration as soon as possible.

Yours faithfully,

2. With reference to paragraph 2 of Colonel Reid Hyde's letter, it is understood that, at the Conference at the Treasury, referred to in paragraph 2 of the letter from this Department of the 31st October,‡ Sir Otto Niemeyer stated that, although he had not been able to consult Ministers, he felt sure that the Chancellor of the Exchequer would be ready to consult with representatives of the Dominions before proceeding to Paris to attend the proposed Conference of Allied Finance Ministers.

9TH DECEMBER. Confidential. United States Government are asking that claims which private United States citizens may have against Germany under the separate German-American Treaty for damages to person or property should be met out of the annuities fixed by the Dawes plan for Treaty of Versailles charges. Amount of these claims being assessed by a Mixed Commission and is not known, but latest estimate is that amount will be about $250,000,000. United States do not propose apparently to set against their claim, even though it includes private damages before the United States entered War, very large German assets in their hands, despite the fact that similar pre-War claims of Allies are not claimable as reparation and can only be met out of German assets. They would spread claim over a period of years.

We regard this claim as not well founded either in law or in equity so long as United States does not bear burdens or submit to restrictions of Treaty of Versailles. We have therefore replied contesting the claim though we have reason to believe French and Belgian Governments have given way on it.

Our objections are:—

(1) As to legal position we cannot admit that Germany, by her later Treaty with United States, could alter or vary obligations already contracted by Treaty of Versailles towards Powers which ratified that Treaty;

(2) Legal position could not be altered by report of Dawes Committee since Committee was appointed by Reparation Commission, which derives its authority with regard to Germany from Treaty of Versailles alone, to consider means of balancing German Budget and measures to be taken to stabilize currency, and any question as to States which were to share in reparation payments or proportions of share of each was clearly outside scope of Committee;

* No. 576. † Not printed. ‡ No. 575. § Cmd. 1973.

(3) Under Treaty of Versailles amount of damage for which compensation was to be made by Germany was left to be determined by Reparation Commission which had to take into account various claims put forward by Allied Governments. So far as we are aware, at no time did United States Government intimate that they wished to put forward claim for inclusion in total to be demanded from Germany nor does any reservation appear to have been made by any United States representative of any possible future right of United States to make such claim;

(4) As regards equities, we have drawn attention to very large sums under control of United States Government in respect of German property and to sums in respect of ships retained by the United States in excess of their tonnage losses, which we have understood as likely to be about equal to sums assessed by Mixed Commission.

Note to United States Government adds that we should be quite willing to examine whole matter in connexion with forthcoming meeting of Finance Ministers in Paris (see my telegram 15th October*) if United States Government would supply statement of any further grounds on which it appears that claim can be maintained, and would state what amount of claim actually is and whether United States Government prepared to set off against it any credit balance arising from dealing with German assets which have come into their hands and to have net claim fixed by Reparation Commission and made subject to same reductions as apply to countries claiming under Treaty of Versailles. Note mentions that Dominions interest in reparations would in any case require us to consult them before arriving at any new decisions.

Copies of Note from United States Ambassador and of reply summarized above being sent by mail.†—AMERY.

30TH JANUARY. Secret. His Majesty's Government have had under consideration question of future relations with Russia and have come to conclusion that resumption of normal intercourse is urgently required in interests of European resettlement. Accordingly they propose to address to Soviet Government within next few days note of which following is substance:—

Begins: His Majesty's Government recognize Union of Socialist Soviet Republics as de jure rulers of those territories of old Russian Empire which they now administer. Recognition will not itself suffice to create normal conditions of complete friendly relations and full commercial intercourse which it is earnest desire of His Majesty's Government to see restored at earliest possible moment. For this purpose it will be necessary to conclude definite practical agreements on variety of matters some of which not directly connected with de jure recognition, while others intimately bound up with fact of recognition. Question of existing treaties is in latter category. His Majesty's Government advised that recognition will, according to accepted principles of international law, automatically bring into force all treaties concluded previous to Revolution except where these denounced or have otherwise juridically lapsed, obviously to advantage of both countries that position in this respect should be regularized simultaneously with recognition. Technically unconnected with recognition but clearly of utmost importance to resumption of full commercial intercourse are problems of settlement of existing claims by Government and nationals of one party against other and restoration of Russia's credit. Also manifest that genuinely friendly relations cannot be said to be completely established so long as either party has reason to suspect other of carrying on propaganda against its interests and directed to overthrow of its institutions.

In the circumstances His Majesty's Government invite Russian Government to send to London at earliest possible date representatives with full powers to discuss these matters and draw up preliminary bases of complete treaty to settle all outstanding matters.

His Majesty's Government have in past been associated with Allies and other Powers in negotiations with Russia and in interests of general peace desire to continue to be so associated. They therefore propose to invite any other Powers prepared to recognize Soviet Government de jure to participate in discussions.

Meanwhile British Agent Moscow given status of Chargé d'Affaires pending appointment of Ambassador. Ends.

"I am directed by the High Commissioner to inquire whether you would be so good as to inform me what action the South African Government proposes taking in reference to the recognition by Great Britain of the Union of Soviet Republics."

I put the matter to South Africa and have now received the following reply from the Prime Minister's Office:—

"With reference to your letter 12/305/21 of 4th March, 1924, addressed to the Secretary for the Interior, enclosing copy of a letter from the Secretary to the High Commissioner of the Irish Free State, I have to inform you that the Union Government have taken note of the de jure recognition of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics by His Majesty's Government.

In view of the fact that the Union Government was not consulted, it is not proposed to take any action."

Shall I tell the Irish High Commissioner's Office, or would you care to deal with the matter?

Yours sincerely,

R. A. BLANKENBERG.

SIR,

Downing Street, 5th May, 1924.

I AM directed by Mr. Secretary Thomas to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st of April,* relative to the reported recognition by Canada of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

2. As Mr. Secretary Ramsay MacDonald is aware, the question of the extent to which the de jure recognition of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics applies has, since the receipt of your letter, been raised by the Soviet Delegation. In view of the action then taken,† Mr. Thomas is not addressing any communication to the Canadian Government, but a copy of a newspaper report of the correspondence between the Prime Minister of Canada and the head of the Soviet Trade Delegation in Canada is enclosed for record.

I am, &c.,

E. J. HARDING,

CANADA RECOGNIZES RUSSIAN SOVIETS.

PREMIER KING SO ASSURES TRADE COMMISSIONER FROM MOSCOW.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, 26th March.—Complete recognition by the Canadian Government of the Russian Soviet Republics is implied in an exchange of correspondence between Prime Minister Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Alex. Yasikoff of Montreal, agent in Canada of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. M. Yasikoff, who heads a trade commission from Moscow, now established in Canada, was received by the Canadian Government recently. Following his interview with the Government, M. Yasikoff wrote to the Prime Minister as follows:

"Referring to the conference I had with you yesterday, and wishing for a more definite basis of trade negotiations and for the performance of my other functions, I would ask you to be good enough to inform me whether the de jure recognition of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics proclaimed by His Britannic Majesty's Government on the first of February last comprehends recognition by Canada."

Replying under date of 24th March, the Prime Minister said:

"Following up my conversation with you a few days ago with a special reference to your letter of 20th March, I have the honour, in the best interests of both countries, to represent that Canada is prepared to recognize the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

* No. 592.

† Note.—The question was raised by the Soviet representatives at the first meeting of the Second Committee of the Anglo-Soviet Conference. The British representatives undertook to endeavour to obtain a legal opinion on the point. At the second meeting of the Committee, they circulated the following opinion:—

"The British Delegation are advised that, in view of the terms of the note of 1st February, it is unlikely that the Courts in any part of the British Empire would maintain that the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics had not been recognized. In accordance with the usual British constitutional practice, the various self-governing portions of His Majesty's Dominions will make their own arrangements with regard to their future commercial relations with the Union. Any agreement or agreements which may be concluded as the result of the present negotiations will not bind the Dominion Governments."

SIR C. T. DAVIS to SIR R. A. BLANKENBERG.

DEAR BLANKENBERG,

22nd May, 1924.

IN reply to your letter of the 30th April,* as to de jure recognition of the Soviet Government, we think that it would be most convenient if you were to communicate with the Office of the High Commissioner for the Irish Free State, and we would suggest that it would be sufficient to tell them that the Union Government have taken note of the de jure recognition of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics by His Majesty's Government.

As regards the last sentence of the reply from the Prime Minister's Office, which you quote, you may like to know that a telegram giving the substance of the proposed note intimating the de jure recognition of the Soviet Government by His Majesty's Government was sent to the Dominion Governments two days before the note was actually delivered.

Yours sincerely,
C. T. DAVIS.

Anglo-Soviet Agreements.

MR. BRUCE (Flinders—Prime Minister and Minister for External Affairs)—(By leave): I have been asked several questions about the agreements recently arrived at between the British Government and the Government of the Soviet Union of Russia. For the information of honourable members I now propose to amplify the replies which I have previously given. Action, in three directions, has recently been taken by two Governments concerned, namely: (1) The recognition of the Soviet Union Government in Russia by the British Government, (2) the making of a general treaty on outstanding questions between the two governments, and (3) the making of a commercial treaty. As to the first matter, action was taken by the present British Government immediately after it assumed office, without consultation with the other self-governing parts of the Empire. Technically, this was not a compliance with the now established principle of consultation with the Dominions on all questions of Imperial foreign policy. But, as the Commonwealth Government did not consider that the interests of Australia were affected by, or that any complications involving Australia were likely to arise from, its not being consulted, it made no protest, particularly in view of subsequent assurances which it has received from the British Government of its desire for the closest consultation, showing that the course adopted on this occasion will not form a precedent for action in the future.

14TH FEBRUARY. Secret. My telegram 9th February.* Prime Minister has now written to Rakowski enclosing schedule of more important outstanding questions. These are as follows:—

I. Treaties.

(a) Treaties concluded by Russia before 1917, whether bilateral or multilateral, to which His Majesty's Government are parties.

(b) Treaties concluded by Great Britain and Russia respectively with other countries since 1917.

(c) Substitution of full Commercial Treaty or other arrangement for Trade Agreement, 1921.

II. Debts.

(a) Pre-War, falling under main heads of:—

(i) State loans.

(ii) Municipal loans.

(iii) Securities of Municipal credit societies, etc.

(iv) Guaranteed railway loans.

This category includes for convenience individual British holdings in State and railway loans floated during War, Treasury bills and bonds, and Holy Synod loan, 1916.

(b) War, i.e., advances by His Majesty's Government to Russian Government during War, including advances to firms working on account of Russian Government.

(c) Russian counter-claims advanced by Soviet Government on account of alleged intervention by His Majesty's Government in Russia during disturbances which followed revolution.

III. *Determination of means for restoration of Russia's credit in Great Britain.*IV. Claims of British subjects against Russian Government and Russian citizens against His Majesty's Government.

(a) Compensation for nationalized property of British subjects in Russia.

(i) Industrial and commercial property.

(ii) Other immovable property, e.g., agricultural land.

(iii) Miscellaneous, including trade and other private debts, bank balances, salaries, shares, etc.

(b) Compensation for damage to property of Russian citizens during military operations.

* No. 588.

Supplementary Questions.

(a) Claims of British subjects against Russian Government in respect of imprisonment and personal injury.

(b) Territorial waters.

(c) Duty of Russian Government to receive its own nationals and application of Soviet law of citizenship.

(d) Russian refugees.

Letter to Rakowski explains that schedule must not be read as complete expression of views of His Majesty's Government, but designed to serve as preliminary survey of ground to be covered and that inclusion of particular items, e.g., advances by His Majesty's Government to Russian Government and compensation for damage to property of Russian citizens must not be understood to commit His Majesty's Government or imply that Russian Government committed to any particular view on such items.

Prime Minister then states that he proposes that British side of negotiating Commission should consist of three or four officials working under his supervision or temporary supervision of some other Minister, his idea being that Commission should begin by setting up two Committees dealing respectively with political and economic questions. Representatives on Committees would be free to call in experts ad hoc where necessary.

If Russian Government agree, Prime Minister suggests that Political Committee should first review bilateral treaties in force 7th November, 1917, and frame for submission to main Commission broad recommendations as to which should be renewed, which abrogated, and what agreements, if any, substituted for those annulled. It should then do same for multilateral treaties and consider position arising out of post-war Treaties between lately Allied Governments and ex-enemy Powers and between Russia and other countries, and would finally draft terms of general treaty of commerce and amity to take place of Trade Agreement and dispose of supplementary questions at end of schedule.

Simultaneously Economic Committee would discuss claims and counter-claims under Head IV with a view to agreeing upon principles of settlement and making provision for machinery for assessment and liquidation of proved liabilities. It would also prepare statements of claim and counter-claim under Head II, and of measures which Russian Government contemplate that His Majesty's Government should take as regards Head III, terms of definite agreement under these two Heads being reserved for discussion in full Commission or between Prime Minister and head of Russian Delegation.

Letter concludes with assumption that Russian Government will not give to any other Government now negotiating settlement more advantageous terms than they can offer to His Majesty's Government and British subjects.

Copy of letter follows by mail.—THOMAS.

Meanwhile it would be convenient to His Majesty's Government to learn wishes of Canadian Government as to two particular questions:—

(1) Whether Notes of 1893—1894, in so far as these continue in force, and Convention, 1911, relating to seal fishery, should be maintained.

(2) Whether in event of Trade Agreement, 1921, being replaced as regards this country by new provisions on commercial matters, Canadian Government would desire Agreement to be maintained so far as Canada concerned.

19TH APRIL. Secret. My despatch 15th February, Secret.* General lines which it is considered advisable that British representatives should pursue in negotiations with Russian representatives have now been settled. As regards debts and claims endeavour will be made to secure acceptance of following principles:—

* No. 599. † No. 600.

(1) Claims in respect of advances made by His Majesty's Government to former Russian Government and Russian counter claim on account of alleged intervention by His Majesty's Government in Russia during disturbances which followed revolution to be reserved for later discussion.

(2) As regards Russian State and municipal bonds, Russia to acknowledge obligation to individuals, but it may be necessary to leave detailed settlement for eventual negotiation with bondholders. Actually great bulk of these obligations are foreign-owned, and Russian acceptance may be limited to British holders only.

(3) Russia to undertake to give compensation, whether in form of concessions of properties or otherwise, in respect of properties or concessions nationalized or cancelled, terms to be arranged by Russian Government with persons in question subject to reference to arbitration Tribunal in event of disagreement.

(4) As regards claims of individuals and companies not specified above, Russian Government to provide fixed sum for payment to claimants. Claims to be assessed, and any sum obtained to be distributed, as far as it will go, in accordance with decisions of Tribunal to be set up by us.

As regards credits, action on part of His Majesty's Government seems impracticable except that Russian applications for guarantees under Trade Facilities Act and Export Credits schemes might be admitted for consideration on same terms as applications from other quarters. It will be pointed out to Russian Government that satisfactory general agreement should materially assist them to obtain credits from private sources.

As regards treaties, little prospect that any action will be possible in case of multilateral treaties, since this would involve discussion with other Powers interested. Hoped to secure acceptance by Russia of principle that existing bilateral treaties are revived unless definitely abrogated. List of treaties of which abrogation seems desirable will be sent as soon as possible.

If general settlement reached, proposed that there should be provisions for future commercial relations. These would be on lines of ordinary commercial treaties with special provisions in view of position of Soviet Government in matters of trade and would include usual stipulations as to accession of Dominions.

Should your Ministers have any observations on any of above points His Majesty's Government would be glad to receive them as soon as possible.—THOMAS.

14TH JULY. Secret. My telegram of 19th April.† Protracted negotiations have taken place with Soviet Delegation for the conclusion of a Commercial Treaty to replace Trade Agreement 1921. Negotiations started from the basis of a British draft following usual lines of our Commercial Treaties, with certain modifications intended to meet the special conditions of Russia. Whilst final agreement has not yet been reached on all points, Treaty as provisionally settled provides for most-favoured-nation treatment in practically all matters of commerce, including Customs duties, right of entry, residence and exercise of trade, etc., in the Soviet Union; national and most-favoured-nation treatment in regard to taxation; national and most-favoured-nation treatment in matters of navigation. There are also provisions giving legal rights to individuals and companies; freedom from transit duties for goods; exemption from military service, compulsory labour, etc.; freedom to communicate by post and telegraph and to make use of telegraphic codes; national treatment in regard to the possession and disposal but not the acquisition of property; recognition of arbitration clauses in contracts; guarantee against unfair trade competition and a provision for the conclusion of a special Convention in regard to industrial, literary and artistic property. In general, most-favoured-nation treatment is subject to the right of the Soviet Union to give special favours to States which previously formed part of the Russian Empire and continental Border States in Asia. It should be noted that most-favoured-nation treatment as regards Customs duties was conceded by the Soviet Delegation with the greatest reluctance, and only when His Majesty's Government made it clear that a Treaty without it was impossible. Even now this concession is made dependent in form on the extension by His Majesty's Government of the Export Credits Scheme to the Soviet Union.

* No. 603. † No. 602.

Treaty is to continue in force for three years, and to be thereafter subject to a year's notice of termination.

On the following points it has not been possible to obtain an absolutely satisfactory agreement:—

(1) Taxation of companies. We asked for national and most-favoured-nation treatment, but the Soviet Government declined to treat British companies operating in Russia, which would be private companies, as favourably in regard to taxation as Russian state-owned organizations or organizations in which Soviet State is interested.

(2) Although the Treaty secures national and most-favoured-nation treatment in regard to the carriage of passengers, the Soviet Delegation made it clear that the emigrant and pilgrim traffic is a State monopoly and is therefore outside the ordinary provisions of the Treaty. They have undertaken, however, that they will not discriminate against British vessels on the basis of their flag in this traffic. This, of course, does not preclude them from favouring national vessels.

It was felt to be impossible to press them further on these points, and Treaty as it now stands is about as satisfactory a document as it is possible to expect in relation to a State where the State controls practically everything and ordinary rights of property are subject to a special concession in almost all cases. Value of the provisions will necessarily depend largely on attitude of the Soviet Government in regard to foreign trade in general and British trade in particular.

When usual clauses providing for accession on behalf of Dominions, etc., came to be discussed Soviet Delegation raised difficulties. They had no objection to these clauses so far as Colonies and Protectorates were concerned, but intimated that, in case of self-governing Dominions, particularly Canada and Australia, they might wish to make special agreements either generally as regards trade relations or particularly as regards Customs duties. Hence Article which provided that Dominions might accede by means of a declaration in which Soviet Government had no option but to agree was very unacceptable, as also clause which provided that most-favoured-nation treatment must be given to Dominion goods so long as Dominions gave similar treatment to goods from Soviet Union.

His Majesty's Government undertook to consult Dominion Governments on matter, and following clause has been prepared which it is understood would meet points raised by Soviet Delegation:

Begins: Stipulations of the present Treaty shall not apply to any of His Britannic Majesty's self-governing Dominions, but, subject to any modifications mutually agreed, may be extended thereto by an exchange of notes to be effected between the Government of the Union and the Government of the Dominion concerned.

In the event of the Treaty not being extended to any particular Dominion, goods produced or manufactured in such Dominion shall enjoy in the territories of the Union complete and unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment so long as goods manufactured or produced in the territories of the Union are accorded in such Dominion treatment as favourable as that accorded to goods manufactured or produced in any other foreign country, but liberty is reserved by the Government of the Union to denounce this paragraph at any time in respect of any particular Dominion. Ends.

Please telegraph as soon as possible whether your Ministers would see any objection to insertion in Treaty of clause on above lines.—THOMAS.

SECRET. 24th July. Commercial Treaty with Russia. New Zealand Government has no objection to offer to the clause framed in the form set forth at the end of your telegram of 14th July* except that it considers that any note for the purpose should be conducted so far as a Dominion is concerned through His Majesty's Government and not directly with Russia. New Zealand Government considers that there is a special danger in apparently authorizing direct communication of the kind between a Dominion Government and the Government of Russia.

My Government desire to be understood as expressing merely its views upon the specific clause relating to the self-governing Dominions and not as expressing concurrence in the general policy of the proposed Commercial Treaty with the Government of Russia.—JELICOE.

(PART I.) Secret. 1st August. As a result of prolonged discussions at Anglo-Soviet Conference two draft treaties between Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Soviet Union have now been prepared and approved by Cabinet. Drafts have been communicated to Soviet Government with a view to signature early next week if approved by them. First deals with general questions outstanding, second is Commercial Treaty. Following is summary of first Treaty:—

Begins: (1) Treaty replaces as between Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Soviet Union Trade Agreement 16th March, 1921.

(2) Certain specified treaties recognized as having lost force. These comprise treaties enumerated in paragraph 3 report, enclosed my despatch 22nd May, Dominions 231, Confidential,† and Agreement August, 1896, relating to Zanzibar.

(3) Certain treaties regarded as still in force, but agreed that in existing circumstances they require modification, and negotiations for this purpose will be undertaken on coming into force of present Treaty. Pending completion of negotiations provisions of these treaties will be applied so far as existing circumstances permit. These treaties comprise first three and fifth mentioned in paragraph 5 report enclosed my despatch 22nd May.

(4) Certain multilateral treaties to be applied in future as between contracting parties. These include Telegraph Convention 1875 and Regulations, 1908, Submarine Cables Convention, 14th March, 1884, Declaration 1st December, 1886, and Protocol, 7th July, 1887, and Convention relating to Fur Seals, North Pacific, 1911. Additions to list may be made by mutual accord.

(5) Fishery in waters contiguous to North Russian coast to be regulated by provisions in Annex, which are based on those in North Sea Fisheries Convention, 1882, and give Soviet citizens exclusive rights of fishing within three miles of coast and in White Sea waters south of parallel of 67 degrees north. This provision is to be deemed not to prejudice views of either party as to limits of territorial waters.

(6) Disputes between His Majesty's Government and Soviet Government as to interpretation of a treaty, as to questions of international law, as to existence of any fact which if established would constitute breach of an international obligation, or as to extent and nature of reparation to be made for any such breach arising out of incidents occurring after signature of Treaty to be referred to arbitration or judicial settlement.

(7) Soviet Government recognize that British holdings in loans issued or taken over or guaranteed by former Russian Governments or by municipalities in territory now included in Union constitute obligations binding on them. His Majesty's Government recognize that existing financial and economic position of Union renders impracticable at present full resumption of service of such British holdings. Soviet Government will on coming into force of Treaty initiate negotiations with British holders with a view to arranging acceptable terms for resumption of service of these loans and agree to resume service in respect of holdings by British subjects or companies (other than those acquired by purchase since 16th March, 1921, and proved to have been in other than British ownership on that date) in accordance with terms arranged as result of such negotiations, provided that terms have been accepted by holders of not less than one-half capital values of such British holdings.

(8) All questions connected with claims of Soviet Government against His Majesty's Government or of His Majesty's Government against Soviet Government arising out of events between 4th August, 1914, and 1st February, 1924, and questions connected with claims by nationals of either party in respect of loss or damage suffered in territory, whose national claimant is, and resulting from warlike operations or hostile measures during above period are reserved for later discussion.

(Part II.) (9) Claims by nationals, including juridical persons, of one party against other in respect of loss or injury due to events since 1st August, 1914, other than claims covered by other Articles of Treaty or claims arising since 1st April, 1918, out of trading relations between any Government exercising authority in territories of Union or its agent and British nationals or between His Majesty's Government and Soviet citizens, to be finally settled by payment of lump sum by Soviet Government to His Majesty's Government to be distributed by latter. Claims to be examined by board of six persons, three appointed by each party, which is to report amount at which they consider lump sum should be fixed.

(10) Board of experts to be appointed to investigate losses suffered by British nationals, including juridical persons, in respect of industrial businesses or concessions nationalized or cancelled by Soviet Government.

(11) Terms agreed with bondholders in accordance with (7) and amount and method of compensation to be paid under (9) and (10) to form subject of further treaty on signature of which His Majesty's Government will recommend to Parliament to guarantee interest and sinking fund of loan to be issued by Soviet Government. Pending conclusion of this Treaty Article 10 of Trade Agreement maintained provisionally.

(12) Documents, papers and securities belonging to British subjects on 1st November, 1917, which were then in Soviet territories to be returned if not already returned, and if still in existence and under control of Soviet Government or public institutions.

(13) Suitable provision to be made in separate Conventions for restoration and protection of industrial property rights affected by exceptional war legislation or administrative action.

(14) Soviet Government will not institute or cause institution of proceedings to question transactions entered into in British territory before coming into force of Treaty on ground that transactions invalid by reason of act of nationalization by Soviet Government.

(15) Soviet Government to discharge from assets of nationalized businesses of persons or corporations in Great Britain or Northern Ireland liabilities of business to persons resident or carrying on business in Great Britain or Northern Ireland.

(16) Questions as to contracts entered into before 7th November, 1917, between (a) persons resident in Great Britain or Northern Ireland and persons resident in Soviet territories, (b) His Majesty's Government and persons resident in Soviet territories, (c) Soviet Government and persons resident in Great Britain or Northern Ireland, to be dealt with in Treaty referred to under (11).

(17) Soviet Government will extend to His Majesty's Government and to British nationals, in regard to matters dealt with in present Treaty, exemptions and rights granted to any third State or its nationals.

(18) Contracting parties affirm desire and intention to live in peace and amity, to respect right of State to order its own life, and to restrain all persons and organizations under their direct or indirect control, including organizations in receipt of any financial assistance, from acts liable to endanger tranquillity or prosperity of any part of territory of British Empire or Soviet Union or to affect unfavourably relations of British Empire or Soviet Union with third parties. Ends.

Commercial Treaty follows lines described in my telegram 14th July. Secret.* Article relating to Dominions now begins "Stipulations of present Treaty may, subject to any modifications mutually agreed upon, be extended to any of His Britannic Majesty's self-governing Dominions or India by an exchange of notes," etc.—THOMAS.

SIR,

Downing Street, 1st August, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a telegram* to the other Dominions summarizing the provisions of draft treaties between Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics which have been communicated to the Soviet Government.

2. As it is desired that these treaties, if approved by the Soviet Government, should be signed early next week, His Majesty's Government would be grateful for your Ministers' observations, at the earliest possible moment, on the Article in the proposed Commercial Treaty dealing with the extension of the Treaty to the self-governing Dominions referred to in my Secret despatch of the 17th July.†

3. It will be observed from the enclosed telegram that the main Treaty with the Soviet Government replaces, as between Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Soviet Union, the Trade Agreement of the 16th March, 1921 (Cmd. 1207, a copy of which is enclosed for convenience of reference). It would appear to follow that the Trade Agreement would be regarded as remaining in force as between the Irish Free State and the Soviet Union. In the case of Canada, to which the Trade Agreement was extended, it is intended to provide by an exchange of notes that the operation of the Agreement, as between Canada and the Soviet Union, will not be affected by the conclusion of the present Treaty. If your Ministers should desire any statement to be made as to the position of the Irish Free State in relation to the Trade Agreement of 1921, His Majesty's Government would be glad to be advised at once.

4TH AUGUST. Following from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your telegram 1st August.* Treaties with the Soviet Union. Provision regarding the North Pacific Fur Seal(ing) Convention contained in your telegram 21st July* quite acceptable. Assume that if subsequent negotiations necessary on this point Canadian representative(s) will participate. Provision in the Commercial Treaty regarding extension to the Dominions contained in your telegram 14th July† and your telegram 1st August‡ satisfactory, provided that liberty of denunciation of most-favoured-nation customs treatment is made reciprocal and open to Dominions as well as to the Union. Desirable also, though not so essential, to provide twelve or six months' notice of such denunciation. Provision in your telegram 1st August§ for maintenance of trade agreement between Canada and the Soviet Union to be inserted in exchange of notes satisfactory. Canadian Government understands that this agreement ensures most-favoured-nation customs treatment so long as in force. Canada now accords Union such treatment.

As both Treaties are stated to be drawn between Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Union, presume they apply only to Great Britain and require ratification only by the British Government or Parliament. In the General Treaty, however, some paragraphs appear from the cable summary cover all Empire subjects, for example, paragraphs 7 and 9 regarding loans and claims. Please advise intended scope this respect, also whether said loans include loans issued by the Russian Government during war time and subscribed privately. Ends.

As regards Commercial Treaty, provision referred to leaves non-acceding Dominions liberty to withdraw most-favoured-nation treatment from Soviet goods at any time.

Obligations under both Treaties confined on British side to Great Britain and North Ireland, but it is established practice His Majesty's Government to interpret provisions of Commercial Treaties conferring rights on British subjects generally as applying to all British subjects. Similarly, they regard benefits conferred by General Treaty on British nationals in matter of claims, etc., as extending to all British subjects irrespective of part of Empire with which connected.

SECRET. With reference to my telegram† of to-day. The question of the interpretation of Article 1 of the Russian Trade Agreement, 1921, has apparently never arisen in practice. Had the question arisen, His Majesty's Government would have interpreted the provision prohibiting discrimination against trade between Soviet Union and this country as compared with that carried on with any other foreign country in sense of ensuring unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment in customs matters, but that this would have been the view of the Soviet Government is, in view of discussions at the Commercial Treaty Committee of Anglo-Soviet Conference (see my telegram 14th July‡), by no means certain:—SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES.

His Majesty's Government recognize that full satisfaction of these claims impracticable. My Ministers represent that inquiries made in the Provinces of British Columbia and Quebec, in which the late Russian Government had Consulates at Vancouver and at Montreal, have resulted in the following information being obtained:—

British Columbia: Constantine Ragasin was Russian Consul up to the year 1920. He resided at No. 719, Jervis Street, Vancouver, in 1918, then changed his residence to No. 1240, Haro Street. Consular Office was apparently directed from his private house. Mr. Ragasin was not the registered owner nor did the Russian Government appear to have any interest in either of these properties, and it would therefore appear that he was only the tenant. Registrar of Titles at Vancouver states that his indices have been searched and that he cannot find that Mr. Ragasin or the Russian Government have any registered interest in land in the district.

Quebec: Upon investigation, conclusion has been reached that the late Russian Government did not possess any personal property or real estate in the Province of Quebec when the Consular representative of that country left his office in Montreal in June, 1922. Ends.—BYNG.

In Rakovsky's reply above letter was declared to be gross forgery. As soon as present Government took office Cabinet Committee was appointed which after exhaustive investigation has come to conclusion that there can be no possible doubt as to authenticity of letter. Rakovsky will be informed that this is view of His Majesty's Government and that they are not prepared to discuss matter. Reply points out that activities of which His Majesty's Government complained in note of 24th October are not confined to one particular letter but extend to whole body of revolutionary propaganda of which Zinovieff's letter is fair specimen, and that pronouncements of Zinovieff which have been broadcast throughout world are in themselves sufficient evidence of a propaganda in which Third International, with knowledge and consent of Soviet Government, perpetually indulges, and it is this system which, in view of His Majesty's Government, is inconsistent with solemn undertakings given by Soviet Government. Finally Soviet Government are invited to reflect on necessary consequences of continued neglect of late Prime Minister's warning on this subject.

His Majesty's Government have further decided to inform the Soviet Government that they are unable to proceed with the treaties negotiated by the late Government.

Date of despatch of these notes is not yet determined; no publication is possible till after note is actually in Soviet representatives' hands. Meanwhile, I request that strictest secrecy may be observed. Ends.

SIR, 128, New Bond Street, London, 28th November, 1924.
I RECEIVED and acquainted my Government with your Note of the 21st November, in which the British Government notifies its refusal to advise the ratification of the General and Commercial Treaties of the 8th August, signed by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the British Prime Minister and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and by Mr. Arthur Ponsonby, the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

The Soviet Government expresses its regret at the rejection of these Treaties, the conclusion of which constituted an important step towards securing general peace and in particular towards the strengthening of friendly relations between the peoples of Great Britain and of the Soviet Republic.

I am directed by my Government to state that, on its part, it has displayed the maximum of goodwill and of concessions in connexion with the working out of a basis of agreement on questions of particular interest to the British Government, to the working class and to other sections of the British population. Therefore, my Government cannot take any of the responsibility for the feeling of discontent which the decision of the British Government will cause in both countries.

Enclosure in No. 646.

MEMORANDUM ON THE JURISDICTION OVER BRITISH SUBJECTS IN SIAM.

THE jurisdiction over British subjects in Siam is regulated by Article 8 of the Treaty of the 3rd September, 1883, and by the Treaty of the 10th March, 1909, and the jurisdiction Protocol annexed to it.

For purposes of jurisdiction, British subjects in Siam are divided into two classes: the first consisting of those registered at the British Consulate before the 10th March, 1909, called "pre-registrants," and the second of the rest, called "post registrants." Pre-registrants are subject to the jurisdiction of the Siamese International Courts, which were established under the 1883 Treaty. The judges of these Courts are appointed by the King of Siam and administer Siamese law. The Consul, however, has the right of "evocation," i.e., he can, in any case in which both parties are British subjects or in which the accused or defendant is a British subject, signify his desire that the case should be transferred for adjudication to the British Consular Court, and the case is thereupon transferred accordingly. The right of evocation disappears, as regards matters coming within the scope of codes or laws regularly promulgated, when the text of such codes or laws is communicated to the British Legation, and the jurisdiction of the international Courts will be transferred to the ordinary Siamese Courts after certain Siamese

* 18365/23: not printed; it enclosed copies of enclosures in No. 647. † Not printed here.

Codes, namely, the Penal Code, the Civil and Commercial Codes, the Codes of Procedure and the Code for the Organization of Courts, have been promulgated and come into force—an event which so far has not happened.

Owing to an oversight in the Treaty, non-contentious probate matters in connexion with the estates of deceased pre-registrants are dealt with by British Consular authorities.

All other British subjects in Siam are subject to the jurisdiction of the ordinary Siamese Courts, but the Treaty provides that in all cases, whether in the International Courts or in the ordinary Siamese Courts, in which a British subject is defendant or accused, a European legal adviser shall sit in the Court of First Instance; and in all cases in which a British born or naturalized subject, not of Asiatic descent, is a party, a European adviser shall sit as a judge in the Court of First Instance, and where such British subject is defendant or accused, the opinion of the adviser shall prevail. Appeals against the decisions of the International Courts of First Instance lie to the Siamese Courts of Appeal at Bangkok; the British Consul has the right to give a written opinion upon the case to be annexed to the record. Judgments on appeal from either the International Courts or the ordinary Siamese Courts shall bear the signature of two European judges.

The effect of these provisions is that, as regards post registrants, British extra-territorial jurisdiction has completely disappeared, since the provisions as to the presence of European judges in certain cases do not amount to extra-territorial privileges; the judges are servants of the Siamese Government and apply Siamese law. In the case of pre-registrants a rather shadowy fragment of extra-territoriality remains:—

1. By reason of the right of evocation, which, however, will come to an end when the Siamese Codes have been promulgated;

2. In consequence of the fact that non-contentious probate business is dealt with by the British Consuls, which is due to an oversight and will probably vanish with the right of evocation.

2. Enclosure 2 in No. 647.

MY LORD,

British Embassy, Paris, 26th February, 1923.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to Your Lordship, herewith, copy of the reply of the French Government to my note, dated the 29th ultimo, in which, in accordance with the instructions contained in your despatch No. 313 of the 25th ultimo, I informed Monsieur Poincaré that His Majesty's Government were prepared to co-operate with the French Government in negotiating new Treaties with Siam, and requested that I might be informed of any proposals which they had formulated in the matter.

Your Lordship will observe that Monsieur Poincaré expresses his complete agreement with your suggestion that the two Governments should keep each other informed of their negotiations with the Siamese Government. He adds, however, that the negotiations between the French and Siamese Governments have not yet reached a sufficiently advanced stage to enable the French Government to draw up as concrete a proposal as that contained in the memorandum enclosed in your despatch under reference, of which I forwarded a copy to him for his consideration.

As regards the question of jurisdiction, Monsieur Poincaré states that the French Government have not yet drawn up counter-proposals to take the place of those communicated to His Majesty's Government in January, 1920, and to which the Siamese Government have raised serious objections.

No definite proposals have yet been drawn up as regards the commercial clauses of a future agreement. Monsieur Poincaré states, however, that the proposals will contain certain clauses analogous to those contained in the memorandum enclosed in your despatch and, in particular, that it will authorise the Siamese Government to raise their Customs Tariff on condition that other Powers consent to the same concession.

Monsieur Poincaré concludes his note with the request that Your Lordship may inform him as to the result of the negotiations between His Majesty's Government and the Siamese Government, and undertakes on his side to furnish information as to the course of the Franco-Siamese negotiations.

REPUBLIQUE FRANCAISE.

Ministère des Affaires Etrangères, Direction Politique,

Paris, le 24 février, 1923.

MONSIEUR L'AMBASSADEUR,
PAR une lettre du 29 janvier dernier, Votre Excellence a bien voulu m'informer de l'intention du Gouvernement de Sa Majesté de soumettre au Gouvernement siamois un projet de révision des traités anglo-siamois, dont la préparation se poursuit actuellement, et m'a marqué l'intérêt qui s'attacherait, dans la conduite des négociations à intervenir avec le Gouvernement siamois, à ce que le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté pût s'assurer des vues du Gouvernement français en ce qui concerne la révision des traités entre la France et le Siam.

J'ai l'honneur d'accuser réception de cette communication, dont je remercie Votre Excellence. Le Gouvernement de la République ne peut que se féliciter de tout ce qui doit tendre, de part et d'autre, à faciliter le règlement d'une question intéressant également la Grande-Bretagne et la France, et j'estime, comme le Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, que des vues pourront être échangées utilement, entre les Gouvernements britannique et français, sur la conduite et les résultats de leurs négociations respectives.

Les pourparlers entamés entre le Gouvernement français et le Gouvernement siamois, pour la révision des accords franco-siamois, n'ont pu aboutir encore à l'établissement d'un projet aussi avancé que le projet britannique.

Dans l'ordre juridictionnel, le Gouvernement français n'a pas encore arrêté le texte des nouvelles contre-propositions destinées à remplacer celles qui ont été communiquées, à titre d'information, au Gouvernement britannique, en janvier 1920 et qui, depuis lors, ont fait l'objet, de la part du Gouvernement siamois, de sérieuses objections.

En matière commerciale, le projet français n'est pas encore complet. Mais il résulte des maintenant des travaux préparatoires en cours que ce projet contiendra certaines dispositions semblables à celles indiquées dans le mémorandum anglais, et qu'il autorisera notamment le Gouvernement siamois à élever son tarif douanier à condition que cette concession lui soit faite par toutes les autres Puissances. D'autres clauses assureront la protection des articles importés contre la concurrence déloyale.

Je serai reconnaissant à Votre Excellence des informations qu'elle voudra bien me faire parvenir sur les résultats de la négociation anglo-siamoise et je ne manquerai pas, moi-même, de compléter, lorsque je serai en mesure de la faire, les indications relatives à la révision des accords franco-siamois.

Veuillez agréer, &c.,
POINCARÉ.

Enclosure 3 in No. 647.

MY LORD, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 21st March, 1923.

I HAVE received Your Excellency's despatch No. 498 (C) of the 26th February, in which is enclosed Monsieur Poincaré's reply to your note informing him that His Majesty's Government were prepared to co-operate with the French Government in negotiating new treaties with Siam.

2. It appears from paragraph 3 of Monsieur Poincaré's note that the French Government may be under the impression that His Majesty's Government have already started negotiations with the Siamese Government. This is not the case. The memorandum enclosed in my despatch No. 313 of the 25th of January set forth the more important points in a draft Treaty, which is being drawn up in consultation with the departments concerned in readiness when required to serve as a basis for negotiation. No negotiations have as yet been carried on between His Majesty's Government and the Siamese Government, nor do His Majesty's Government at the present moment intend to initiate negotiations or to enter upon them, unless pressed to do so by the Siamese Government, as they think it may be desirable to proceed as slowly as possible until the first effects of the American concessions have disappeared.

3. I shall be glad if you will make this point clear to the French Government, in order to avoid any possible misunderstanding which may exist.

I am, &c.,

VICTOR WELLESLEY.

WITH reference to my Confidential despatch of the 30th of August Dominions No. 421* and previous correspondence on the subject of the proposed treaty negotiations with Siam, I have the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a despatch* from His Majesty's Minister at Bangkok. In reply to this despatch His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires is being informed that there seems no reason why His Majesty's Government should not adhere to their previous decision that negotiations should be conducted at Bangkok, and he is being instructed to make this clear to the Siamese Government should they again raise the matter.

* 38390/24: not printed; it enclosed copies of correspondence as to the Franco-Siamese negotiations.

2. A draft Treaty, of which a copy was enclosed in [Not to Irish Free State: my predecessor's Confidential despatch of the 10th of March, 1923, Dominions No. 80†,] [To Irish Free State: my Confidential despatch of the 9th July,‡] has already been prepared to serve as a basis for a new Commercial Treaty. As regards the attitude to be adopted towards a new Jurisdictional Treaty, it is proposed to adopt the policy recommended by Mr. Greg in paragraph 10 of his despatch of 7th April, a copy of which was enclosed in my Confidential despatch of the 9th of July, Dominions No. 308,§ viz., that His Majesty's Government should not agree to the immediate revision of the jurisdictional clauses of the present treaties, but that they should give an undertaking to accept arrangements similar to those in the recent Siamese Treaty with the United States of America, if, at the end of a stated period, such as five years, after the publication of the Siamese Codes and of the date of the termination of the right of evocation enjoyed by the United States Government under that Treaty, they are satisfied that the situation permits such action, using the arguments for delay advanced by Mr. Greg in the passage in question.

3. The difference between the system at present in force as regards British subjects and that established for United States citizens by the recent Siamese-American Treaty is described in paragraphs 2-7 of the despatch to Mr. Greg No. 14 of 22nd January, as modified by paragraphs 2-4 of Mr. Greg's above-mentioned despatch of 7th April, copies of which were enclosed in my despatch of the 9th of July.

4. It would appear that the only really valuable safeguard for British subjects is the continued presence of a European, and preferably a British, element in the Siamese Courts; and that, if His Majesty's Government can be satisfied as to this, there would be no grave objection to accepting a system similar to that now in force for United States citizens. If it should prove that the new Franco-Siamese Treaty now in course of negotiation accords more favourable treatment to French citizens than that now enjoyed by United States citizens, it will no doubt be desirable to press for a similar minimum for British subjects, but this would not appear to be essential, should the Siamese Government set great store by the acceptance of the American system.

5. The adoption of this attitude as regards the jurisdictional question will, however, make it the more difficult, in view of the promise given by His Majesty's Government to consider revision, and of the attitude of the other Governments concerned, to delay negotiations for a new Commercial Treaty; and it is therefore proposed to agree in principle to the initiation of commercial negotiations at Bangkok after the signature and the publication of the new Franco-Siamese Treaty, the terms of which will presumably show the extent of the commercial concessions for which the Siamese Government will press.

I have, &c.,

ARNOLD.

SIR, The British Legation, Bangkok, 14th July, 1924.
As I am leaving Bangkok this week I called last Friday at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs to say good-bye to the Minister, Friday being the day on which His Highness is at home to the foreign Diplomatic Representatives. As Prince Traidos had already intimated to me that he had something which he wished to speak to me about, I was all the more desirous of seeing him some little time before my actual departure. I assumed that he would probably raise the question of Treaty negotiations and I was not mistaken.

2. Prince Traidos opened the conversation by stating that, as the Franco-Siamese Treaty would be signed in the early autumn, it was the desire of the Siamese Government to commence negotiations with His Majesty's Government both for a new Commercial Treaty and for the revision of the Jurisdictional Clauses of the 1909 Treaty. He said that as Dr. Sayre, Adviser in the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, was leaving for Europe next September in connexion with diplomatic business at various European capitals, it was his wish that he, Dr. Sayre, and the Siamese Minister in London should conduct these negotiations at home. I said that as I had received no instructions from you on the subject I would communicate the proposal to you by telegraph but that I thought, were His Majesty's Government prepared to entertain the suggestion in principle, that it was more probable that they would wish the actual negotiations to take place in Bangkok following the precedent of the 1909 Treaty. I thought it better not to inform His Highness that your predecessor had given me definite instructions in this sense in his despatch No. 94 of 21st June last year, as I felt that any such admission would be tantamount to committing His Majesty's Government to negotiate, and would thus somewhat exceed the instructions which I had received last year to the effect that any such proposals should emanate from the Siamese Government and not from His Majesty's Government.

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 16th January, 1924.

WITH reference to my telegram of the 15th January,§ I have the honour to transmit to Your Excellency, to be laid before your Ministers, copies of correspondence between His Majesty's Ambassador at Madrid and the Spanish Government on the subject of commercial relations between Canada and Spain. The Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy has received direct from the Canadian Department of Customs a copy of the Canadian Customs Tariff with the latest Amendments and Appendices, indicating that Canada has ceased to grant most-favoured-nation treatment to Spanish goods.

2. Sir E. Howard has further reported that on the 4th January the Commercial Secretary had an interview with Senor Castedo, one of the Members of the Spanish Tariff Commission, as to the duties on Canadian goods. Senor Castedo made it quite clear that the reason why the Spanish Government had decided to subject Canadian goods to First Column rates of duty was that they had been informed by the Spanish Consul at Montreal that Spain was not included amongst the countries which were receiving the benefits of the Franco-Canadian Convention. He went on to say that the Treaties Commission, which was in process of reorganization, but of which he was still a member, was of the opinion that it would not be possible for Spain to negotiate a separate Treaty with Canada, as its interpretation of the Anglo-Spanish Commercial Treaty of 1922 was that the Dominions, Colonies, etc., must either adhere to the Treaty or, in return for most-favoured-nation treatment to Spain, receive the second column rates of the Spanish Tariff. Sir E. Howard points out that this interpretation cannot be regarded as well-founded, since there is no clause in the Treaty to prevent the Dominions or India from making separate Trade Agreements if they wish to do so.

3. It was as a result of this conversation that Sir E. Howard expressed the opinion referred to in my telegram, that there is little likelihood of the Spanish Government immediately negotiating a separate Treaty with Canada, and that (on the assumption that adherence to the 1922 Treaty is not contemplated) the only means whereby Canadian goods on importation into Spain can secure Second Column rates appears to be for the Canadian Government to grant most-favoured-nation treatment to Spain with retrospective effect from the date when such treatment ceased to be given.

4. Sir E. Howard has added that the imposition of First Column rates on Canadian goods as a result of the alteration in the treatment of Spanish goods imported into Canada involves serious financial loss to several firms importing Canadian goods, who have suddenly become liable to pay very large sums in Customs duties.

MEMORANDUM.

His Britannic Majesty's Embassy refers, in a Memorandum addressed to this Department on the 13th instant, to the fact that the Customs House at Cadiz wished recently to assess under the First Column of the Customs Tariff certain goods proceeding from Canada, and in this connexion the Embassy expressed the opinion that "although the note published in the Gazette of the 9th March, 1923 (page 856)* was annulled by the note published in the Gazette of 14th August (page 705),† the fact that the former note states that the treatment shall continue to be in force thenceforward and until six months after it has been denounced, would appear to indicate that Canadian products should continue to pay duty under the Second Column of the Tariff until the 14th February, 1924."

In reply to the above-quoted statement the Ministry of State has to say that His Majesty's Government having based the concession of the second column of the Tariff to the countries specially cited in the notice published in the Gazette of the 14th August last on the circumstance that the countries in question concede most-favoured-nation treatment to Spanish products, bearing in mind in this connexion the provisions of heading five of the Customs Law of the 20th March, 1906, and as Canada does not figure amongst the said countries since in that country Spanish imports are assessed under the general tariff and not that of the most-favoured-nation, it is evident that in no case, not even, therefore, on the supposition that the notice of the 14th August did not cancel that of the 9th March preceding, have Canadian goods a right to enjoy the Second Column of the Tariff, but should be assessed under the First Column, since Canada has not deemed it fitting to adhere to the Anglo-Spanish Treaty of Commerce of the 31st October, 1922.

The Ministry of State wishes at the same time to point out to His Britannic Majesty's Embassy, with reference to the last paragraph of the above-quoted Memorandum, that it has not been possible up to the present time for His Majesty's Government to proceed to the negotiation of a Commercial Agreement between Spain and Canada, as the Government of the latter country proposed, in the first place owing to special circumstances connected with the appointment of the Spanish representative on the corresponding Commission, and, secondly, because the Government subsequently agreed to suspend or postpone the negotiation of commercial agreements in general until the future constitution and working of the organisms which have, or will have, to deal with this class of work have been decided upon.

As the said reorganization will take place shortly, His Majesty's Government hopes that the negotiation of the Commercial Agreement between Spain and Canada will be able to commence at an early date.

† Enclosure in No. 364 in Dominions No. 88.

Enclosure 2 in No. 652.

(No. 4.)
(9.2.)

3rd January, 1924.

His Britannic Majesty's Embassy acknowledges the receipt of Memorandum No. 299 of 24th December last, received from the Spanish Ministry of State, regarding the question of the duties payable on goods imported from Canada.

In the second paragraph of this Memorandum His Catholic Majesty's Government state that, as Canada did not figure amongst the countries specially cited in the notice published in the Gazette of 14th August last, Canadian goods have no right to enjoy the Second Column of the Tariff. His Britannic Majesty's Embassy desires to call the attention of the Spanish Ministry of State to the last sentence of the notice published on 9th March, which reads as follows:—

"Aquel régimen . . . regirá por un primer período de seis meses, a contar de la entrada en vigor de dicho Tratado, y continuará rigiendo luego hasta seis meses después de que el régimen en cuestión fuese denunciado."

In view of this notice, His Britannic Majesty's Embassy confirms the opinion expressed in its Memorandum dated 13th December last, that, as the notice of 14th August is considered by His Catholic Majesty's Government as cancelling the notice of 9th March, the period of six months under the Agreement of 9th March must commence from 14th August, and consequently does not expire until 14th February.

The fact that Canada does not adhere to the Anglo-Spanish Commercial Treaty does not, in the opinion of His Britannic Majesty's Embassy, entitle His Catholic Majesty's Government to place Canadian goods on the First Column rates of the Tariff on their importation into this country, without at least six months' notice. This or similar notice is always customary in international agreements of this nature, and His Britannic Majesty's Embassy trusts that His Catholic Majesty's Government will re-consider the position in this light, and ventures to request that a reply be furnished with the least possible delay.

Madrid, 3rd January, 1924.

His Excellency

The President of the Military Directorate,

IRISH FREE STATE.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 28th January, 1924.)

[Answered by No. 654.]

(No. 30.)

SIR,

Vice Regal Lodge, Dublin, 25th January, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to refer to the Duke of Devonshire's despatch No. 619 of the 24th October last,* regarding the arrangements for the treatment of goods exchanged between the Irish Free State and Spain.

2. My Ministers are prepared to give an assurance on behalf of the Irish Free State that Spanish products will receive treatment as favourable as that which the Irish Free State may have conceded, or may in the future concede, to any other country. In giving this assurance my Ministers contemplate that it will not involve the extension to Spain of any system of preference granted to Empire products.

3. My Ministers will feel obliged if you will cause the necessary steps to be taken to have the foregoing assurance communicated to the Spanish Government.

I have, &c.,

SIR, Downing Street, 18th February, 1924.
 WITH reference to Your Excellency's despatch No. 30 of the 25th January,* I have the honour to transmit to you, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a despatch to His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Madrid regarding the assurance to be conveyed to the Spanish Government, on behalf of the Government of the Irish Free State, relative to the treatment to be accorded to Spanish goods on importation into the Irish Free State.

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 11th February, 1924.
 WITH reference to Sir E. Howard's despatch No. 458 of the 16th August last, I transmit herewith a copy of a letter from the Colonial Office regarding the treatment to be accorded to Spanish goods on importation into the Irish Free State.

2. I request that you will convey to the Spanish Government an assurance, on behalf of the Irish Free State, that Spanish products will receive, on importation into the Free State, treatment as favourable as that which the Free State may have conceded or may in the future concede to any foreign country. The expression "any other country" should not be used as it might conceivably be claimed to cover other self-governing units of the British Empire.

3. It has invariably been held by His Majesty's Government, and it was made clear during the negotiations for the Anglo-Spanish Commercial Treaty, that the grant of most-favoured-nation treatment to a foreign country does not involve the extension to such country of any preference granted to any part of the Empire. If necessary, you may explain this to the Spanish Government orally, but as such an explanation might form an inconvenient precedent, and was not offered when assurances were given of most-favoured-nation treatment of Spanish products in other self-governing dominions, it should not be given unless it appears necessary.

I am, &c.,
 R. H. CAMPBELL.

YOUR EXCELLENCY,

In his Note No. 214 of the 8th August last,* His Excellency Monsieur Alba was so good as to inform His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires as to the conditions on which the Spanish Government were prepared to grant to goods produced or manufactured in the Irish Free State, on importation into Spain, the rates of duties specified in the Second Column of the Spanish Customs Tariff.

I am now instructed by His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to convey to Your Excellency, in reply to this Note, an assurance on behalf of the Irish Free State that Spanish products will receive, on importation into the Free State, treatment as favourable as that which the Free State may have conceded or may in the future concede to any foreign country.

I assume that this arrangement, which is to remain in force for an indefinite period subject to six months' notice of its termination on either side, may be regarded as concluded by the present Note and the above-mentioned Note from Monsieur Alba.

SIR,

Government House, Ottawa, 18th July, 1924.

WITH reference to my telegram of the 17th May, 1923, § on the subject of the Anglo-Spanish Commercial Treaty of the 31st October, 1922, I have the honour to transmit herewith copies of an approved Minute of the Privy Council to the effect that the Government of Canada, while unable to accept either the Treaty or the Second Column tariff, is willing to proceed with the negotiation of a commercial agreement between Canada and Spain.

Enclosure in No. 659.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 12TH JULY, 1924.

(P.C. 1208.)

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a Report, dated 10th July, 1924, from the Secretary of State for External Affairs, submitting that Article 24 of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation concluded between the United Kingdom and Spain on the 31st October, 1922, provides:

"The stipulations of the present Treaty shall not be applicable to any part of His Britannic Majesty's territories outside the United Kingdom unless notice is given by His Britannic Majesty's representative at Madrid of the desire of the Government of such part of His Britannic Majesty's territories that the said stipulations shall be so applicable.

"As regards the parts of His Britannic Majesty's territories to which the stipulations of the present Treaty shall have been made applicable under this Article, either of the Contracting Parties shall have the right to terminate it separately any time on giving six months' notice to that effect."

The Minister states that the opinion was expressed by Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, to the Spanish Ambassador that the terms of the Treaty with the United Kingdom were not adapted to Canadian conditions.

The following is an extract from a letter, dated 19th February, 1923,* sent to His Excellency Sir Esmé Howard, British Ambassador at Madrid, by the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs:

"I have the honour to inform you that His Majesty's Government, in their desire to meet the wishes of the Government of His Britannic Majesty, agree to extend to six months the term that must elapse between the denunciation and the date of termination of the Agreement which both Governments have arrived at, and in virtue of which the products of India and of the British Colonies and Dominions will be dutiable in Spain, until such time as they adhere to the above-mentioned Treaty, at the rates of the Second Column of the Customs Tariff, in exchange for the concession by these countries of most-favoured-nation treatment to Spanish products."

The Minister is of opinion that the benefits of the rates of the Second Column of the Spanish Customs Tariff would not be suitable to Canadian conditions, as these rates would leave the products of Canada at a disadvantage when imported into Spain in comparison with importations of like goods from other countries, and especially from the United States, which is our principal competitor.

The Committee concur in the foregoing, and on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for External Affairs, with the concurrence of the Acting Minister of Finance, advise that Your Excellency may be pleased to forward a copy hereof to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, for communication of its purport to the Spanish Ambassador in London, with a request that he would be good enough to inform the Government of Spain that the Government of Canada, while unable to accept either the Treaty or the Second Column tariff, are willing to proceed with the negotiation of a commercial agreement between the two countries.

All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

E. J. LEMAIRE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

from those parts of the British Empire to which the provisions of the Anglo-Spanish Commercial Treaty have not been made applicable, I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that the attention of the Spanish Government was drawn to the fact that the list of Mandated Territories in the Madrid Gazette notice of the 14th of August, 1923, did not include South-West Africa. SIR, British Embassy, Madrid, 13th November, 1924.

WITH reference to my telegram No. 115 of 11th November,‡ regarding the question of the negotiation of a Commercial Agreement between the Canadian Government and Spain, I have the honour to report that I understand that the negotiations which were commenced by the Spanish Government in the early part of the year with Sweden, Denmark and Austria, and which were suspended during the summer months, are shortly to be resumed, although the representatives of these countries have informed me that they are meeting with great difficulty in obtaining the re-opening of these negotiations.

2. The Treaty Commission, which now forms part of the Council of National Economy, have published a statement that at a meeting held on the 13th October the question of future negotiations with Czecho-Slovakia, Canada, Poland and Persia was discussed, but there is no evidence that any decision was arrived at. They have called on their technical advisers to furnish them immediately with information concerning the commercial exchange between Spain and Finland, Latvia, Lithuania, and Poland, countries with which they intend to commence negotiations at an early date.

3. I have thought it advisable to inform your Department of this, as it would appear improbable that the Spanish Government can commence negotiations with Canada until those referred to above are out of the way.

4. Finally, I have the honour to add that my Commercial Secretary has been informed that the Spanish Government have denounced the Belgian modus vivendi which, if no Agreement is arrived at, will cease to be effective as from the 11th December next. This action on the part of the Spanish Government is no doubt due to the introduction of the new Belgian Tariff, under which certain Spanish goods are heavily taxed.

The position regarding Tangier was referred to at the Imperial Conference but, in view of the nature of the Convention, it would appear to be in accordance with the Resolution of the Conference on the subject of the Negotiation, Signature and Ratification of Treaties that its ratification should be effected at the instance of His Majesty's Government, and accordingly His Majesty's Government are advising His Majesty to ratify it. The deposit of His Majesty's ratification is expected to take place next week.

WITH reference to my despatch [Not to Irish Free State: Dominions No. 238 Confidential of the 3rd July,*] [To Irish Free State: Confidential despatch of the 23rd July,†] I have the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of the Report‡ of the Inter-Departmental Committee on the limits of territorial waters in the form in which it was circulated to the members of the Imperial Conference.

2. The Report was referred to a Committee of the Conference, and I enclose a copy of the conclusions of the Committee, which were approved by the full Conference at its fourteenth meeting on the 31st October. It will also be observed that on page 12 of the Summary of Proceedings of the Conference (Cmd. 1987), in connexion with the question of the regulation of the liquor traffic off the American coasts, reference is made to the view of the Conference that the principle of the three-mile limit should be affirmed and safeguarded as a cardinal feature of British policy.

3. His Majesty's Government are prepared to accept the Resolutions set out in the Conclusions of the Imperial Conference Committee, as interpreted in the Report and Memorandum of the Inter-Departmental Committee, and steps are being taken to draw up, so far as this country and the Colonies and Protectorates are concerned, schedules of "territorial inlets" such as are referred to in Resolution 3 and in paragraph 17 of the Inter-Departmental Committee's Memorandum.

4. His Majesty's Government will be glad to learn whether your Ministers also are prepared to accept the Resolutions and, in that event, to receive in due course particulars of any waters which your Ministers would desire to be regarded as "territorial inlets" for the purpose of Resolution 3.

CONCLUSIONS.

THE Committee endorsed the following Resolutions of the Inter-Departmental Committee on the limits of territorial waters, as interpreted in the Report and Memorandum of that Committee (E/64 Revised), and recommends them for acceptance by the Governments of the British Empire so that, in negotiations with foreign Governments or at any International Conference where the question of territorial waters is discussed, they may be put forward as embodying the policy of the Empire:—

Resolution 1.—It is essential that the general limit of territorial waters should be fixed at a distance of three miles from low-water mark.

Resolution 2.—The limit of territorial waters should be the same for the purposes of belligerency, neutrality, customs, fisheries, control of vessels, and all other purposes.

Resolution 3.—The limit of territorial waters should, in the case of bays whose width at the entrance does not exceed six miles, be three miles to seaward of a straight line drawn across the entrance.

* 31347/23: not printed; it enclosed copies of the Committee's Report in its original form.

† 34769/23: not printed; it enclosed copies of the Committee's Report in its original form. ‡ Not reprinted (E/64. Revised).

Similar territorial rights may, in addition, be admitted in respect of a certain number of larger bays or inlets, to be known as territorial inlets, which should be specifically enumerated and geographically defined.

Resolution 4.—The coast-line from the low-water mark of which the three miles limit of territorial waters should be measured is that of the mainland and also that of all islands. The word "island" covers all portions of territory permanently above high water in normal circumstances and capable of use or habitation."

It was understood that the application of Resolution 3 would be subject to the provisions of any existing International Agreements and to the considerations in regard to fisheries set out in paragraphs 19 and 20 of the Inter-Departmental Committee's Memorandum.

It was further understood that the Governments represented at the Conference would be asked to draw up schedules of territorial inlets referred to in paragraph 17 of the Inter-Departmental Committee's Memorandum; these could be considered at the next Imperial Conference, or, in the event of an International Conference on territorial waters being held before the next Imperial Conference meets, by the representatives of the various parts of the Empire at that Conference.

In view of the principles laid down in the memorandum regarding a common policy for the British Empire on the question of the limits of Territorial Waters, embodied in the Imperial Conference, 1923, Secret Paper E.64, the Union Government does not wish to press for the recognition of territorial rights beyond the 3-mile limit, in respect of certain of the larger bays or inlets on the South African coast, in view of the fact that the width at the entrance of such bays considerably exceeds the limit of six miles.

MY LORD, Downing Street, 6th November, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch Confidential (2) of the 29th May,* regarding the limits of territorial waters, and to transmit to you, to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a memorandum prepared in the Admiralty as to the waters which the New Zealand Government would desire to be regarded as "territorial inlets" for the purpose stated in Resolution 3 of the Inter-Departmental Committee on the limits of Territorial Waters which was endorsed by the Imperial Conference of 1923.

2. As your Ministers are aware, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty are, on strategic grounds, strongly opposed to any departure from the general principle stated in Resolution 1 of the Inter-Departmental Committee that the limit of territorial waters should be fixed at a distance of three miles from low-water mark, except where such a departure is absolutely necessary. The conception of "territorial inlets" was accepted as providing a means of dealing with certain specific claims in special localities which would fall outside the scope of Resolution 1, but Their Lordships are particularly desirous that the claims put forward on behalf of the British Empire in respect of "territorial inlets" should be restricted as much as possible, as this will afford the best method of resisting successfully unreasonable demands by foreign countries at any International Conference on the subject.

3. In the circumstances, Their Lordships hope that the New Zealand Government will not press a claim in respect of all the waters enumerated in your despatch, and they would suggest that, for the purpose of examination of the question of "territorial inlets" at the next Imperial Conference, as contemplated by the Imperial Conference of 1923, it would be convenient if a brief statement could be prepared showing the grounds for claiming exclusive jurisdiction over each of the inlets in respect of which it is desired that a claim should be put forward. The various grounds on which such claims have been based in the past are enumerated in paragraph 16 of the Memorandum of the Inter-Departmental Committee (see page 4 of Paper E.64, Revised, of which a copy was enclosed in my predecessor's Confidential despatch Dominions No. 13 of the 10th January†).

4. It is not at present contemplated that any claim will be put forward for any of the waters adjoining the coasts of England and Wales to be regarded as "territorial inlets" except as regards a portion of the Bristol Channel. I enclose copies of despatches‡ from the Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, from which it will be seen that the Union Government do not desire to press for any of the waters adjoining the Union to be recognized as "territorial inlets."

I have, &c.,

NOTES ON THE LIST OF "TERRITORIAL INLETS" PREPARED BY THE NEW ZEALAND GOVERNMENT.

N.B.—In the particulars of these inlets given in the following notes, the term "ingress" is used to denote the approximate extension, into the general line of the coast, of the inlet in question, measuring from the centre of a straight line drawn across the entrance and following the main direction of that extension.

Reference No. 1.	Chart B.	Name: Toitoti Bay.
Approximate breadth at entrance	14.1 miles
Approximate ingress	4.3 miles

Remarks.

The memorandum E.64 did not contemplate bays of this configuration being regarded as "territorial inlets." Besides this, the extra amount of territorial waters thus gained would be comparatively trifling.

* No. 680. † No. 677. ‡ Nos. 678 and 681.

Reference No. 2.	Chart B.	Name: Howell Road
Approximate breadth at entrance	10.7 miles
Approximate ingress	4.5 miles

Remarks.

As for No. 1.

Reference No. 3.	Chart B.	Name: Taewaewae Bay.
Approximate breadth at entrance	15 miles
Approximate ingress	7.7 miles

Remarks.

The configuration of this bay is not of so shallow a type as that of Nos. 1 and 2, and the extra area obtainable by regarding it as a "territorial inlet" is accordingly greater in proportion. But its configuration does not appear to warrant its being so regarded.

Reference No. 4.	Chart C.	Name: Pegasus Bay.
Approximate breadth at entrance	38.8 miles
Approximate ingress	17 miles

Remarks.

As for No. 3.

Reference No. 5.	Chart D.	Name: Queen Charlotte Sd.
Approximate breadth at entrance	6.4 miles
Approximate ingress	2.5 miles

Remarks.

Considered in the light of its configuration, this Sound would have an excellent claim to be considered a "territorial inlet." But such a claim is superfluous, since it lies wholly within New Zealand territorial waters, as appears from the position of the 3-mile limit on the chart.

The apparent paradox of a gulf with an entrance more than 6 miles in width lying entirely within the 3-mile limit is explained by the configuration of the coastline, and the fact that the line of the entrance lies obliquely across the mouth of the gulf.

Reference No. 6.	Chart E.	Name: Tasman Bay and Golden Bay.
Tasman Bay—

Approximate breadth at entrance	36.4 miles
Approximate ingress	2.9 miles

Golden Bay—

Approximate breadth at entrance	10.4 miles
Approximate ingress	17.5 miles

Remarks.

It is doubtful whether the New Zealand Government desire these two bays to be considered separately, or as one "inlet," whose entrance would, in the latter case, presumably run from the east extremity of Farewell Spit to Nile Head, this distance being practically equal to the "entrance" of Tasman Bay. Considering the bays separately, there is a far better case (from the point of view of configuration) for regarding Golden Bay as a "territorial inlet" than Tasman Bay, but neither is very strong.

Reference No. 7.	Chart F.	Name: Rangaunu Bay.
Approximate breadth at entrance	12.2 miles
Approximate ingress	6.6 miles

Remarks.

As for No. 3.

Reference No. 8.	Chart F.	Name: Bay of Islands.
Approximate breadth at entrance	12.4 miles
Approximate ingress	1.3 miles

Remarks.

As for No. 1. Practically the whole extent of this bay is already covered by the application of the 3-mile limit.

Reference No. 9. Chart G. Name: Hauraki Gulf, north entrance.
Reference No. 10. Chart G. Name: Hauraki Gulf, south entrance.

Remarks.

The configuration of this "gulf" is peculiar, and can only be discussed with the assistance of the Chart G. The eastern shore, northward of C. Colville, consists of a number of off-lying islands, widely separated. In view of this multiplicity of entrances, the width of the channels, and the discontinuity of the coast enclosing them are claimed as a "territorial inlet," it is suggested that, while some sort of case could, undoubtedly, be made out in support of the claim, its endorsement would very seriously weaken the opposition which could be made to extravagant claims by other Powers.

Reference No. 11. Chart H. Name: Hawkes Bay.
Approximate breadth at entrance ... 40.4 miles
Approximate ingress ... 25.0 miles

Remarks.

As for No. 3.

Reference No. 12. Chart D. Name: Palliser Bay.
Approximate breadth at entrance ... 13.7 miles
Approximate ingress ... 6.3 miles

Remarks.

As for No. 3.

Reference No. 13. Chart I. Name: Petrie Bay (a).

Reference No. 14. Chart I. Name: Hanson Bay (b).
Approximate breadth at entrance ... (a) 13.1 (b) 16.25 miles
Approximate ingress ... (a) 10 (b) 5.5 miles

Remarks.

The configuration of Petrie Bay is considerably deeper in ingress than that of Hanson Bay, but neither seems to justify treatment as a territorial inlet.

Ross Dependency.

In the absence of large-scale charts of the Ross sea coast it is impracticable to give very precise dimensions of the entrances and ingress of these bays, although sufficient general information is available on Charts J and K. The following points may be noted.

All these bays are far remote from ordinary trade routes, and, save by an occasional whaler, are unvisited. Their only value, as far as can be seen at present, is for fishery purposes, for which a licence is required. During winter they are unnavigable and unapproachable. With the exception of Robertson Bay, their configuration is shallow and open. Finally, in the case of Discovery Inlet and the Bay of Whales it should be noted that these bays have no land coasts whatever, consisting merely of semi-permanent indentations (of constantly changing outline, and liable to disappear altogether) in the barrier ice.

SUMMARY.

The 22 inlets recommended by the New Zealand Government for adoption as "Territorial Inlets" may be classified, in the light of the foregoing remarks, as follows:—

Already covered by 3-mile limit:—1 (No. 5)
Almost covered by 3-mile limit:—3 (Nos. 1, 2 and 8)
Not justified by their configuration:—8 (Nos. 3, 4, 6 (part), 7, 11, 12, 13, 14)
Not justified by their configuration and on other strong grounds:—8 (Nos. 15-22)

WITH reference to the Circular despatch of 27th November last, from Marquess Curzon of Kedleston, relative to the conclusions of a Committee on the question of territorial waters appointed by the Imperial Conference of 1923, I have the honour to report that an inquiry was recently made in the First Chamber of the Netherlands States General, in connexion with the estimates of expenditure for the year 1924 of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, as to whether the limits of territorial waters should not be extended in view of the increase in the range of gun-fire.

In a written reply the Minister for Foreign Affairs stated that, so far as could be judged from recent official utterances by representatives of the principal maritime Powers, these Powers would not be likely to agree to an extension of territorial waters, and that such an extension would be harmful to the Netherlands, as the maintenance of neutrality in the event of warfare would be thereby rendered even more difficult than at present.

I have, &c.,
J. H. THOMAS.

Enclosure 1 in No. 685.

(No. 15.)

My LORD,

British Legation, Christiania, 15th January, 1924.

ON receipt of Your Lordship's telegram No. 1 of the 5th instant, I addressed a Note to the Minister for Foreign Affairs, protesting against the arrest of the trawler "Kanuck," copy of which I have the honour to transmit herewith. In the course of conversation with Mr. Michelet to-day, I reverted again to this subject, and said that His Majesty's Government took a serious view of the continual interference with British trawlers on what they considered to be the high seas. I expressed the hope that instructions would be renewed to the Norwegian guardships to abstain from interfering with British trawlers outside the three-mile limit and to proceed with the greatest consideration against any captains who might reasonably be considered to believe themselves outside territorial waters. Mr. Michelet stated that the captains of the guardships had been repeatedly instructed to act in a most conciliatory manner, and that these instructions would be renewed, and asked me to discuss the whole question with Mr. Esmarch, Secretary-General of the Ministry, who had all the details at his fingers' ends.

I repeated to Mr. Esmarch what I had said to the Minister, and he expressed the opinion that the "Kanuck" had been, as a matter of fact, within the three-mile limit. I contested this allegation, and Mr. Esmarch suggested that we should look at the map, which he knew was in the department concerned and which showed the exact positions where English trawlers had been arrested. After some delay the map was produced, and I at once noticed that the only limit marked seawards was one of three miles. There was no four-mile limit marked at all. I did not make any observation on this fact to Mr. Esmarch, but I think we can safely draw from it the conclusion that the instructions given to the Norwegian guardships are not to interfere with British trawlers outside the three-mile limit. It is obvious that the Norwegian Government would be unwilling to admit officially that such instructions had been given, and I did not think it advisable to raise the point. The nature of the map used is, however, of considerable interest as showing the conciliatory attitude adopted by the Norwegian Authorities, and it may well explain my failure to obtain from the Norwegians (as requested privately by Mr. Ovey) a copy of any map showing the official claims of the Norwegian Government touching the territorial limits of Norwegian waters.

As regards the exact position of the British trawlers arrested, these were all shown on the map as within the three-mile limit. The difficulties which have arisen are due to the fact that this limit is measured from a line drawn between any headlands which are not more than ten miles apart, whereas His Majesty's Government consider that headlands must be not more than six miles apart if a line is to be drawn between them, from which the limit is to be measured. I pointed this out to Mr. Esmarch, who at once admitted that the Norwegian claim had always been one of ten miles as between headlands.

I am most grateful to Your Lordship for having accepted the views expressed in my recent despatches and telegrams on this subject and for authorizing me not to demand from the Norwegian Government the repayment of fines recently inflicted on British trawlers. I feel sure that the course taken is the right one in the circumstances, but the fact remains that these disputes are bound to recur periodically unless an agreement of some kind is reached. There appear to be three courses open to us. The first is to continue as at present and trust to conciliation on both sides averting an acute situation. The second alternative is to have recourse to arbitration. In 1912, when the question was considered with some care, the best opinion was that an arbitration on this point would not go in our favour. The Norwegian claims are of very old standing, and it was thought that they would probably, but not certainly, prevail over those of His Majesty's Government. In any case, I submit that it would be better to refer the matter willingly to arbitration than to be forced into it by presenting demands which no Norwegian Government could, in the present state of public opinion, accept. The third course is to attempt to come to an agreement with the Norwegian Government, under which the latter would recognize the three-mile limit for general purposes and His Majesty's Government would in return undertake to respect certain fishing areas as closed to their vessels. I have already had the honour to recommend this course to Your Lordship.

I have, &c.,
F. O. LINDLEY.

MONSIEUR LE MINISTRE,

IT may be within the knowledge of Your Excellency that the Norwegian Court at Vardo inflicted a fine of Kr. 3,000, together with a further payment of Kr. 6,600, on the Master of the British trawler "Kanuck" in October last on account of his having fished within waters claimed by the Norwegian Government as territorial.

I am instructed by His Britannic Majesty's Government to protest against this sentence, since the trawler does not appear to have been fishing within a limit of three miles from Norwegian territory, which is the limit recognized by His Britannic Majesty's Government as bounding Norwegian territorial waters. I have the honour, further, to reserve the right of His Majesty's Government to make further representations in this and any other similar case.

Enclosure 2 in No. 685.

(No. 79.)

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 20th March, 1924.

YOUR despatch No. 15 of 15th January with regard to the attitude of the Norwegian Government in respect of the question of territorial waters has been read with interest and satisfaction. I enclose a copy of a memorandum prepared in this department which reflects the considered views of the several interested departments of His Majesty's Government on this question. It is my object in this despatch to define in the form of instructions the procedure best adapted to enable you to negotiate an arrangement with the Norwegian Government. These instructions will be on the lines of the third proposal submitted by yourself in your despatch under reference.

2. You should, in the first place, convey to the Norwegian Minister for Foreign Affairs the sincere appreciation of His Majesty's Government of the conciliatory and sympathetic manner in which his Government is attempting to deal with the situation arising out of the existing conflicting claims.

3. You should then inform the Norwegian Government that, in view of the understanding reached between His Majesty's Government and the Soviet Government in the course of the correspondence exchanged between them in the early summer of last year (see White Books attached), it will presumably be neither possible nor desirable indefinitely to postpone the convening of an international conference with regard to the whole question of territorial waters. In any such conference the views of the British and Norwegian Governments will, as regards Russia in particular, be identical in so far as both governments combat the Russian claim to a twelve-mile limit. His Majesty's Government have, as the Norwegian Government are probably aware, established a modus vivendi with the Soviet Government whereby British vessels fish unmolested up to the three-mile limit, but a final settlement of this difficult question is postponed for decision by the international conference.

4. It is understood that the Norwegians, who have not established such a modus vivendi, are even more interested in a satisfactory settlement of this question than His Majesty's Government. It has, therefore, occurred to His Majesty's Government that, apart from the advantages which would necessarily accrue from an early settlement of the question at issue between the Norwegian and British Governments, it would be desirable that both Governments should, if possible, come to an understanding in advance of the international conference, so as to ensure that their views and objects shall be entirely identical.

5. With this object in view, His Majesty's Government propose that a mutual understanding should be arrived at on the basis that the Norwegian Government will not claim a wider belt than three miles for its territorial waters, and that certain large inlets, notably the Vest Fiord and the Varanger Fiord, should be recognized as part of Norway. In that event no attempt would henceforward be made, for example, to interfere with fishing vessels outside a three-mile limit, and foreign vessels would not be allowed to fish within the two fiords mentioned.

6. The Norwegian Government are no doubt aware that His Majesty's Government have found it necessary to close certain areas round the Scottish coast to trawlers flying the British flag. His Majesty's Government trust that, in view of the very large concession made to the Norwegian Government by the suggestion contained in paragraph 5 above, the Norwegian Government will also be willing to enter into a special agreement with His Majesty's Government subjecting trawlers flying the Norwegian flag to the same restrictions in the area referred to as those imposed on British trawlers.

7. This is the essence of the arrangement proposed. It is left to your discretion to find the way of ascertaining to what extent the Norwegian Government would be prepared to meet His Majesty's Government in regard thereto. It is not the intention of His Majesty's Government to suggest any formal convention, but rather an informal arrangement. Should the Norwegian Government not be prepared to go even to this length, it would perhaps be possible, subject to similar reservations on the part of His Majesty's Government in regard to their proposed concession, to obtain some form of extension of the instructions at present issued by the Norwegian Government to their guardships, accompanied, however, by a promise that, at the time of the international conference, the Norwegian Government would be prepared to support, as part of a comprehensive agreement, the general acceptance of the three-mile limit, subject to the recognition of the sanctity of the waters which form the subject of well-founded historical claims on the part of various governments.

8. These instructions might be criticized as being of a rather vague and elastic character. It is essential, however, in the first place to ascertain whether the Norwegian Government would or would not be prepared to accept in principle an arrangement on the lines proposed. Should they be so prepared, there are other points of considerable interest which would yet require to be settled. For instance, there is a marked divergence of opinion between His Majesty's Government and the Norwegian Government on two points, namely:

(i) With regard to the method of calculating the limits of territorial waters outside the smaller inlets on the coast. In the case of bays with headlands not more than ten miles apart, the Norwegian Government make the measurement from a line joining the headlands. It will be seen from the conclusions of the committee of the Imperial Conference on the question of territorial waters, copy of which is also enclosed for convenience of reference,* that His Majesty's Government consider that this should only be done in the case of bays whose width at the entrance does not exceed six miles. It was, however, realized at the conference that, in the event of agreement with other Powers not being found possible on any other basis, His Majesty's Government might be induced to accept special arrangements adopting a wider limit for fishery purposes.

(ii) The starting point from which, off such portions of the coast line as do not come under the designation of bays, the limit of territorial waters should be measured. His Majesty's Government, and it is presumed the Norwegian Government, are prepared to agree to the low water mark as the point of departure. It is more than possible, however, that in regard to the question from what portion of the land low water should be reckoned, the interpretation of the word "island" will be a source of disagreement. The interpretation of His Majesty's Government is that the word "island" covers all portions of territory permanently above high water in normal circumstances and capable of use or habitation. In view of the large number of small islands and rocks off the Norwegian coast, considerable discussion of this point is to be foreseen.

9. It is not desired that you should at this stage embark on a discussion with the Norwegian Government of these points—except perhaps, at your discretion, that of the six-mile line—or attempt to arrive at any definite decision. Some sort of decision will have to be reached eventually, but at present it would be sufficient if His Majesty's Government and the Norwegian Government could come together on the question of principle, as above proposed, and to agree to deal with any actual cases of reported violation of the three-mile limit from low water mark in which these possible divergencies of opinion might be of importance, as and when they arise, on the same basis of friendly and informal co-operation as now obtains in respect of the disputed area between the three and four-mile limit.

MEMORANDUM.

NORWEGIAN TERRITORIAL WATERS.

THE policy of His Majesty's Government in regard to the Norwegian claim to four miles of territorial waters has hitherto consisted in maintaining a formal protest against any expansion of the three-mile limit while endeavouring to avoid alienating the sympathies of the Norwegian fisher-folk by requesting our fishermen to abstain from fishing within four miles of the Norwegian coast.

Recently there have been several complaints of infringement by our people, sometimes within the four and sometimes within the three-mile limit.

The Committee on Territorial Waters of the Imperial Conference has brought out the under-mentioned resolutions:—

(1) It is essential that the general limit of territorial waters should be fixed at a distance of three miles from low water mark.

(2) The limit of territorial waters should be the same for the purposes of belligerency, neutrality, customs, fisheries, control of vessels, and all other purposes.

(3) The limit of territorial waters should, in the case of bays whose width at the entrance does not exceed six miles, be three miles to seaward of a straight line drawn across the entrance.

Similar territorial rights may, in addition, be admitted in respect of a certain number of larger bays or inlets, to be known as territorial inlets, which should be specifically enumerated and geographically defined.

(4) The coast line from the low water mark of which the three-mile limit of territorial waters should be measured is that of the mainland and also that of all islands. The word "island" covers all portions of territory permanently above high water in normal circumstances and capable of use or habitation.

It was understood that the application of resolution 3 would be subject to the provisions of any existing international agreements and the considerations in regard to fisheries set out in paragraphs 19 and 20 of the memorandum by the interdepartmental committee which prepared this subject for the Imperial Conference. Those paragraphs read as follows:—

"19. It has been proposed that the 'ten-mile bay rule' should be put forward as a general international rule applicable to fisheries only. In other words, that the 'exclusive fishery limits' in bays should be generally recognized as including in all cases the waters within a distance of three miles measured from a straight line drawn across the bay in the part nearest the entrance at the first point where the width does not exceed ten miles. This rule would be strictly limited to fishery purposes, and would not affect general territorial rights in bays.

"20. It is, however, considered that while no strong objection can be taken to the ten-mile rule for bays being generally adopted for fishery purposes only, if agreement to this effect can be negotiated with the other countries concerned, it is undesirable that the British Empire should take the initiative in any such negotiations."

These conclusions were endorsed by the Imperial Conference on 31st October, 1923; and the governments of the Dominions have been asked whether they will accept them.

Thus we have something to serve as a general guide in our negotiations with foreign powers.

With regard to Russia, we are more or less committed some time or other to ascertain the views of the other Powers with regard to the necessity of holding a general conference for the settlement of questions relating to territorial waters. Such a conference is not likely to be held in the immediate future, and the object of this minute is to suggest a form of procedure which will enable us to reach a modus vivendi with Norway in the interval before the international conference and take into consideration the general views which will guide us when and if that conference takes place.

Our present unofficial arrangement with the Norwegian Government is liable to break down at any moment. In fact, unless we can prove that the steam trawler "Kanuck" was outside the four-mile limit, an awkward situation might arise, as it would be necessary for us, in order to maintain our attitude with regard to the four-mile limit, to inform the Norwegian Government that we must hold them responsible for any loss incurred as a result of confiscation or fine by the British owners of the "Kanuck" while fishing admittedly outside the three-mile limit.

The view I wish to submit is that the present arrangement by which we warn our fishermen not to fish between the three and four-mile line is too one-sided. If it is to continue, it should be intimated to the Norwegians that, in return for the warning we give our men, they themselves should, in cases where in spite of the warning our fishermen pass over the four-mile limit, abstain from prosecuting. The first step would, however, be to ask Mr. Lindley unofficially to approach the Norwegian Government in this sense and to point out how awkward a situation would arise should their courts in the case of the "Kanuck," or in any other similar case, find the British fishermen guilty.

In view of our excellent relations with Norway and the necessity of close co-operation with them, when and if the general conference is summoned, Mr. Lindley might be further instructed to draw the attention of the Norwegian Government to the general line of the committee's resolution. The reason for suggesting this is that, while in this resolution we are to insist absolutely on the three-mile limit, we are prepared, in the interests of our Dominions, Canada in particular, to agree to the closing of certain bays of a larger breadth of opening than six miles. The Norwegians have long had a special claim to the whole of the Vest Fiord and the Varanger Fiord. It should surely not be impossible, when the general question comes up, for England and Norway to come to some agreement by which Norway would finally accept the three-mile limit and Great Britain admit the enclosing in Norwegian territorial waters of these two fiords. An arrangement of this kind would, of course, have a certain repercussion on the question of the White Sea. I understand that it is felt generally that we cannot ultimately uphold our objection to the major portion of this Sea being included in Russian territorial waters. It is not, however, likely that the Russians would at once be prepared to give up their much larger claim to twelve miles territorial waters. If they did agree to three miles, we should have to include the White Sea in their jurisdiction. Should they, however, not agree to the three-mile limit, we should not have quoted against us the proposed Anglo-Norwegian precedent as regards large bays, which would be dependent on the acquiescence of both parties to the three-mile territorial limit.

It is, therefore, suggested that we

(1) Request Mr. Lindley to obtain, as suggested, a chart showing the lines joining headlands from which the Norwegian Government at present reckon their limit.

(2) And that, subject to the views of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, we instruct Mr. Lindley at the same time unofficially to ask the Norwegian Government, in view of our very generous attitude, "to tip the wink" to the authorities not to prosecute such British vessels as may cross the four-mile limit.

(3) That we discuss at an informal meeting of the departments represented on the interdepartmental committee whether it would not be advisable to issue instructions, and, if so, in what form, to Mr. Lindley to take the opportunity of discussing informally "as coming from himself" the possibility of the British and Norwegian Government eventually coming to the above-mentioned arrangement by which they would accept the three-mile limit, and we in our turn admit their claim to the large bays. This third proposal is not of an urgent nature, but a frank interchange of unofficial views on the subject could not but be beneficial.

26TH MARCH. No. 13 (R). Your despatch No. 79†. Before approaching Norwegian Government I should like to be clear on one point. Am I right in presuming that concession foreshadowed in paragraph 5 that we should recognize certain fjords as "part of Norway" means that we will recognize these as territory for all purposes? I ask because concluding sentence of paragraph 1 seems to indicate that as a rule exclusive fishing rights only will be recognized in any concession we may make.

I shall be grateful for reply by telegraph as I am anxious to begin negotiations before Easter holidays.

SIR, British Legation, Christiania, 29th March, 1924.

ON receipt of your telegram No. 6 of the 28th instant I drew up a Note to the Norwegian Government on the line laid down in your despatch No. 79 of the 20th instant, dealing with the subject of territorial waters. It will be seen from the copy of the Note enclosed herewith that I have omitted to make any mention of paragraph (2) of that despatch expressing the appreciation of His Majesty's Government at the conciliatory attitude of the Norwegian Government in dealing with the existing conflicting claims. I made this omission deliberately, because I do not consider that in the last few months the Norwegian authorities have been as conciliatory as they ought to have been in dealing with British trawlers and an expression of opinion in the contrary sense might, I fear, produce a false impression and weaken subsequent representations.

In handing the Note to Monsieur Michelet this morning, I explained that it was intended to form the basis of a discussion and not to be a hard and fast offer on the part of my Government. I added that there were minor points which would undoubtedly arise in the course of the discussion and which I hoped would not form an obstacle to an arrangement. The first thing to know was whether the Norwegian Government were prepared to attempt to come to a working agreement with His Majesty's Government on this thorny question. His Excellency read the Note carefully and said he would confer at once with his colleagues. The subject was of the greatest interest to the Norwegian Government and had been the object of discussion last summer. He would let me know as soon as possible the views of his Government and he hoped that it might be possible for the desired discussions to take place between myself and some high official well versed in the question.

Before writing my despatch No. 15 of the 15th January,* I had, of course, sounded various persons in authority in an entirely private manner as to the possibility of coming to some arrangement with the Norwegian Government, and it was due to the very encouraging attitude of those persons that I ventured to recommend the course which you have been good enough to approve. At the same time, I will not conceal from you that I have grave doubts whether the proposal made in my Note will, as it stands, be sufficiently attractive to the Norwegian Government to induce them to give up their century-old claim to the four-mile limit. It will have been observed from my telegram No. 13 of the 26th instant, that the proposal does not in fact follow the lines which I recommended, that is to say, the recognition of certain areas off the Norwegian coast as territorial for the purposes of fishing only, in exchange for which recognition the Norwegian Government would accept the three-mile limit as a general rule. The proposal, as it stands, is, on the other hand, an offer to recognize certain bays as territorial for all purposes and no mention is made of any waters outside those bays or of the fishing interests of the Norwegian population. But the crux of the matter lies in these fishing interests and I very much doubt whether any Norwegian Government will be able to make concessions regarding the waters between the three and four-mile limit in those localities where these waters cover valuable fishing banks. Moreover, I am doubtful whether the Norwegian Government will see their way to apply to bays on the Norwegian coasts a régime more restrictive of their rights than that laid down in the North Sea Convention. In short, I doubt whether a satisfactory arrangement will be possible unless we are prepared to recognize as territorial for fishing purposes certain waters outside the three-mile limit and also those waters within a limit of three miles of a line drawn between all headlands not more than ten miles apart. These observations are not intended in any way as a criticism of my instructions, which I hope are sufficient to initiate conversations and to discover exactly what is in the minds of the Norwegian Government. It will be time enough to deal with the points which I have mentioned, should the Norwegian Government raise them, when the air has been cleared by the consideration of my Note.

I have, &c.,

(No. 28.)

MONSIEUR LE MINISTRE, British Legation, Christiania, 29th March, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to inform Your Excellency that His Majesty's Government have been considering for some time the conflicting claims respecting the proper extent of territorial waters which exist at present between that Government and the Royal Norwegian Government.

2. In view of the understanding reached between His Majesty's Government and the Soviet Government in the course of the correspondence exchanged between them in the early summer of last year, it will presumably be neither possible nor desirable indefinitely to postpone the convening of an International Conference with regard to the whole question of territorial waters. In any such conference the views of the British and Norwegian Governments will, as regards Russia in particular, be identical in so far as both Governments combat the Russian claim to a twelve-mile limit. His Majesty's Government have, as Your Excellency is probably aware, established a modus vivendi with the Soviet Government whereby British vessels fish unmolested up to the three-mile limit, but a final settlement of this difficult question is postponed for decision by the International Conference.

3. It is understood that the Norwegians, who have not established such a modus vivendi, are even more interested in a satisfactory settlement of this question than His Majesty's Government. It has, therefore, occurred to His Majesty's Government that, apart from the advantages which would necessarily accrue from an early settlement of the question at issue between the Norwegian and British Governments, it would be desirable that both Governments should, if possible, come to an understanding in advance of the International Conference, so as to ensure that their views and objects shall be entirely identical.

4. With this object in view, His Majesty's Government propose that a mutual understanding should be arrived at on the basis that the Norwegian Government will not claim a wider belt than three miles for its territorial waters and that certain large inlets, notably the Vest Fjord and the Varangerfjord, should be recognized as part of Norway. In that event no attempt would henceforward be made, for example, to interfere with fishing vessels outside a three-mile limit, and foreign vessels would not be allowed to fish within the two fjords mentioned.

5. The Norwegian Government are no doubt aware that His Majesty's Government have found it necessary to close certain areas round the Scottish coast to trawlers flying the British flag. His Majesty's Government trust that, in view of the very large concession made to the Norwegian Government by the suggestion contained in paragraph 4 above, the Norwegian Government will also be willing to enter into a special agreement with His Majesty's Government subjecting trawlers flying the Norwegian flag to the same restrictions in the area referred to as those imposed on British trawlers.

6. I have the honour to add that it is not the intention of His Majesty's Government to suggest any formal convention but rather an informal arrangement based on the above proposals, which I am authorized to discuss with Your Excellency, should the Norwegian Government be inclined to enter into such a discussion.

SIR, British Legation, Christiania, 6th April, 1924.
WITH reference to my despatch No. 92 of the 12th ultimo, I have the honour to transmit, herewith, translation of a Note Verbale from the Ministry for Foreign Affairs regarding the arrest of the three British trawlers "James Long," "Salmonby" and "Ninus."

It will be observed that the Norwegian Ministry for Foreign Affairs maintain that all these vessels were arrested within the three-mile limit; but it will also be seen that in the case of the "James Long" and the "Ninus" this limit is measured from a line drawn between headlands further apart than the six miles recognized by His Majesty's Government as the extreme legitimate length of such a line.

I have, &c.,
F. O. LINDLEY.

TRANSLATION.

THE Ministry for Foreign Affairs have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the Note Verbale which His Britannic Majesty's Minister addressed to them on the 4th ultimo, regarding the arrest of the British trawlers "James Long," "Salmonby" and "Ninus." In that Note the right was reserved to put forward a claim for damages resulting from the arrests, as the ships were stated to have been arrested just within the four-mile limit which is not recognized by the British Government.

With reference to the Note Verbale above referred to, the Ministry for Foreign Affairs have the honour to state that they will send a further communication on the subject at a later date. The Ministry would like, however, to make the following observations.

It appears from reports which have been received from the competent authorities that the three ships were arrested within the three-mile limit recognized by the British Government, at the following positions:—

(1) "James Long." North Latitude $71^{\circ} 8' 7''$ East Longitude from Greenwich $28^{\circ} 28'$. This point lies 25 nautical miles from a base line drawn from rocks west of Hollanderviken on Sletnes to Avlsning on Nordkyn. This line is ten nautical miles long.

(2) "Salmonby," 23 nautical miles from the N.E. point of Harbakken.

(3) "Ninus" four cable lengths within a point which lies 29 nautical miles outside the base line Harbakken-Korsnes.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 123 of the 8th April last, I have the honour to transmit, herewith, translation of a further Note Verbale from the Ministry for Foreign Affairs regarding the arrest of the three British trawlers "James Long," "Ninus" and "Salmonby."

This Note appears to contain nothing new of importance. If the positions of the vessels are correctly given, as is probably the case, the first two were arrested in waters which are outside the three-mile limit as we measure it, but within or on the limit reckoned from a base line drawn between headlands not more than ten miles apart. The "Salmonby" appears to have been well within three miles from the nearest land.

It will be observed that the concluding paragraph of the Note states that all three trawlers were arrested within the three-mile limit as recognized by the British Government. This is only the case as regards the "Salmonby" and I have, therefore, addressed to the Ministry a Note Verbale pointing out the error contained in the above-mentioned paragraph.

TRANSLATION.

WITH reference to the Department's Note Verbale of the 5th April, concerning the arrest of the British trawlers "James Long," "Ninus" and "Salmonby," the Minister for Foreign Affairs has the honour to state that, in the light of the information now before it, the individual arrests took place at the following points:

1. "James Long."—According to the bearings taken by the guardship, which must be presumed to be correct, this trawler was arrested at

Latitude $71^{\circ} 8' 7''$,
Longitude $28^{\circ} 27'$,

or 25 nautical miles from the base line from the rock west of Hollaenderviken on Sletnes to Avlōisa on Nordkyn and 35 nautical miles from the nearest land (Bispen).

This base line is 9.9 nautical miles long.

2. "Ninus."—According to the report of the guardship, this trawler was hailed at

Latitude $70^{\circ} 37' 6''$,
Longitude $30^{\circ} 33' 6''$,

The trawler, however, did not obey the order of the guardship to stop but proceeded on its course and was arrested at

Latitude $70^{\circ} 37' 7''$,
Longitude $30^{\circ} 32' 7''$,

Both spots lie three nautical miles from the base line Harbaken—Syltefjordsklubben and 23 nautical miles from the base line Harbaken—Korsnes. The former base line is 7.1 nautical miles and the latter is 11.6 nautical miles.

3. "Salmonby."—This trawler was arrested at

Latitude $70^{\circ} 35' 2''$,
Longitude $30^{\circ} 40' 4''$,

or 23 nautical miles from the base line Harbaken—Syltefjordsklubben and 24 nautical miles from the nearest land (Harbaken).

From this it is clear that all three trawlers were not only arrested in Norwegian territorial waters, but even within the three-mile limit recognized by the British Government. The Ministry for Foreign Affairs cannot, therefore, recognize that there exists in the above-mentioned cases sufficient warrant for an eventual demand for compensation.

Christiania,
24th May, 1924.

Enclosure 3 in No. 687.

(No. 258.)

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 12th September, 1924.
WITH reference to your despatches No. 123 of the 8th April and No. 192 of the 30th May last, I transmit to you, herewith, a copy of a letter from the Admiralty regarding the Norwegian method of measuring the limit of Norwegian territorial waters.

2. The conclusion of an interdepartmental conference at which this question was considered is to the effect that there are strong objections to measuring the territorial limit from general enclosing lines drawn between headlands without regard to the configuration of the enclosed waters; and I shall be glad if you will bear this in mind in any negotiations which may take place with the Norwegian Government in regard to the arrest of British trawlers or the extent of Norwegian territorial waters. It might be pointed out that no such claim has been advanced by any other Power except Russia, in modern times. His Majesty's Government hold that the limit of territorial waters should, in the case of bays whose width at the entrance does not exceed six miles, be three miles to seaward of a straight line drawn across the entrance; and that similar territorial rights may, in addition, be admitted in respect of a certain number of larger bays or inlets which should be specifically enumerated and geographically defined. This is a very different matter from taking each headland along the Norwegian coast and measuring a series of lines from point to point, so that the waters within those lines are considered by the Norwegian Government to be the national waters of Norway and the territorial limit is measured by the Norwegian authorities from those lines. If this is a correct statement of the Norwegian Government's view, it is one which His Majesty's Government cannot accept.

3. His Majesty's Government do not regard as a "bay" any indentation of the coast, but only such as have a configuration which can properly be so described; in this connexion I may refer to paragraph 8 (1) of my despatch No. 79 of 20th March.* I am advised that the governing decision of an International Court on this subject is the award of the North Atlantic Coast Fisheries Arbitration at The Hague of 7th September, 1910, which contains in the answer to question V, paragraph 6 (f), the statement that in its geographical sense "a bay is to be considered as an indentation of the coast, bearing a configuration of a particular character, easy to determine specifically, but difficult to describe generally" (State Papers, Volume C 111, 1909-1910, page 117). The award of the tribunal in the case of bays was that "the three marine miles are to be measured from a straight line drawn across the body of water at the place where it ceases to have the configuration and characteristics of a bay. At all other places the three marine miles are to be measured following the sinuosities of the coast."

4. In the event of this question being discussed at an International Conference there is no doubt that the award of the North Atlantic Arbitration Tribunal would be a governing factor in any general decision which might be arrived at as to the interpretation of the word "bays" for this purpose. Until such general international agreement is reached, it will therefore be necessary for you to insist on the policy of His Majesty's Government in this matter, as defined in the conclusions of the recent Imperial Conference, keeping in mind the point that the decision of the North Atlantic Coast Fisheries Arbitration Tribunal is an authoritative guide as to the meaning of the term "bay" for this purpose and that His Majesty's Government are not likely to admit any other interpretation. Any larger Norwegian inlets which His Majesty's Government might admit in the course of the present informal negotiations with the Norwegian Government to be the national waters of Norway would have to be specifically enumerated and geographically defined before they could be treated as exceptional cases in accordance with the resolutions of the Imperial Conference.

* Enclosure 2 in No. 685.

Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to acquaint you, for the information of the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that in the case of the "Ninus," as in that of the "James Long," already referred to in Admiralty letter of 21st March last, they do not consider that the line taken by the Norwegian authorities from which to measure the territorial limit marks the boundary of a "bay" and, therefore, see no reason for utilizing it for this purpose whatever its length.

My Lords are of opinion that there are great objections to measuring the territorial limit from general enclosing lines drawn between headlands without regard to the configuration of the enclosed waters and that any such claims should be strongly opposed.

WITH reference to my Confidential despatch Dominions No. 471 of the 25th September,* on the subject of the limits of Norwegian territorial waters, I have the honour to request [Your Excellency,] [you,] to inform your Ministers that the question has been raised whether the inclusion in the second sentence of paragraph 2 of the despatch† to His Majesty's Representative at Christiania, a copy of which was enclosed in my despatch, of the words "except Russia" was correct.

2. As a result of further examination of the point it does not appear that the Russian Government have at any time laid down any particular principle in defining the limits of the waters of the inlets which they desired to be recognized as territorial. They have usually merely intimated that the waters of certain specified inlets were considered by them as Russian territorial waters.

3. His Majesty's Representative at Christiania has been informed accordingly.

MR. LINDLEY TO MR. MACDONALD.

(Received 23rd September.)

(No. 336.)

SIR,

Christiania, 19th September, 1924.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 279 of the 29th July, I have the honour to report that the Minister for Foreign Affairs informed me on the 16th instant that he had discussed the question of territorial waters with Dr. Hjort, and that the latter, who had just returned from his scientific cruise, was willing to take it up.

Dr. Hjort called on me accordingly yesterday morning and we had a long, friendly conversation. He began by saying that the present Norwegian Government considered that my note of the 29th March last, copy of which was enclosed in my despatch No. 110 of the same date,* should have been answered before. They proposed to reply to it without further delay in the sense that the Norwegian Government were prepared to appoint a small committee of experts to examine the proposals made in the note and to discuss them, should His Majesty's Government be so inclined, with a similar British committee. I told Dr. Hjort that I did not know whether my Government would wish to appoint a committee, but that I would discuss the matter when I went on leave and that I hoped it might be possible to come to some arrangement. I pointed out that there were several questions, apart from the 4-mile limit, upon which our two Governments did not see eye to eye. There was the definition of what constituted an island, and there was the length of the line between headlands, which could properly be taken as the base for calculating the extent of territorial waters seaward of that line. The Norwegian Government claimed that such a line might be 10 miles long. His Majesty's Government maintained, on the other hand, that it could be only 6 miles.

I then informed Dr. Hjort that I had made several attempts to obtain from the Norwegian Government, officially or unofficially, a definite statement of what they claimed as Norwegian territorial waters. We were aware, of course, of the general nature of their claims, but, in order to avoid unpleasant incidents, it was important for us to know the exact line laid down on a chart of such waters. As Dr. Hjort was probably aware, the British authorities had, in order to show their friendly disposition towards Norway, and in return for the considerate behaviour shown in the past by the Norwegian authorities, advised British trawlers not to fish within the Norwegian 4-mile limit. This action of the British authorities in no way entailed any recognition of the Norwegian claims, but it had prevented many disputes during the trawling season. It would be very advantageous if, instead of giving this vague warning to our trawlers, the British authorities were in a position to show them on a chart exactly where the Norwegian line ran, and I had never been able to understand the reluctance of the Norwegian authorities to communicate to us this information. I asked Dr. Hjort whether he could obtain for me this chart, or at any rate one of the coast of Finnmarken, which seemed to be the only part of Norwegian territory visited by our trawlers.

Dr. Hjort said that he entirely agreed with my view, and that he had for fifteen years been pressing various Norwegian Governments to make known the exact extent of their claims to territorial waters. He had not succeeded in his object, but the present Prime Minister, who was also his brother-in-law, took a more sensible view of the matter than his predecessors, and he would ask him at once whether the chart I wished for could not be communicated to this Legation, on the understanding that such communication in no way prejudiced the claims of either country. Dr. Hjort telephoned to me this morning to say that the chart of Finnmarken, which is the only part of the coast of real interest to our trawlers, would be communicated to the Legation as soon as it has been prepared. I should mention, in this connexion, that, during the discussion regarding the communication of this chart, Dr. Hjort said that his Government thought that, in return for it, we should undertake to observe it during the progress of negotiations, without prejudice to our claims. I replied that I could not recommend this course to His Majesty's Government, nor did I think that they would accept it if I did. The possession of the chart was merely a question of convenience and could not be considered as conferring any advantage on us, for which a concession such as he mentioned should be made in return. We already knew generally the Norwegian claims and we did not accept them; the fact that the chart would show in a definite and convenient form the exact nature of these claims did not in any way alter the situation. The chart would simply be useful in enabling our trawlers to know precisely whether they were within those waters claimed by the Norwegian Government as territorial. After arguing the point for some time, Dr. Hjort said that he would recommend that the chart should be communicated to us without conditions, and this recommendation has been accepted by M. Mowinkel, as stated above.

As I have frequently pointed out, the question of the limits of territorial waters in Norway is essentially a fishing question. The population of the north-west coast is dependent for its livelihood entirely on the sea, and it is inconceivable that any Norwegian Government should recognize willingly the right of foreigners to trawl on those banks within 4 miles of the shore, which have been considered from time immemorial as exclusively reserved for the coast population. It is, therefore, natural that the Norwegian Government should have placed the discussion of this question in the hands of their first expert in fishery matters, who is, moreover, a European authority in marine biology. From our point of view, this gentleman is a happy choice, since he not only knows personally the leading fishery experts in England and Scotland, but he has always been a keen advocate of Anglo-Norwegian friendship. In the course of our conversation, he expressed the opinion, which I have always held, that the areas outside the 3-mile limit, which are vital to the Norwegian fishermen, are not extensive, and that it would be in the best interests, both of the fishing population and of the country as a whole, to accept the principle of the 3-mile limit in exchange for the acknowledgment by Great Britain of the exclusive right to fish in certain definite and inextensive areas. This goes somewhat further than the proposals contained in your despatch No. 79 of the 20th March* last, but it is idle to suppose that any amicable arrangement can be come to with Norway on any other basis, and I strongly recommend that the present opportunity be taken to settle once and for all a question which, so long as it remains open, constitutes a potential menace to the extremely friendly relations which have so long subsisted between Norway and Great Britain.

I have, &c.,

F. O. LINDLEY.

SIR,

Christiania, 20th September, 1924.

WITH reference to Mr. Lindley's despatch No. 336 of yesterday's date, I have the honour to transmit herewith a translation of a letter from the Norwegian Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which M. Mowinkel promises to forward to this Legation a chart indicating the limits of what the Norwegians claim to be their territorial waters on the coast of East Finnmark, on the assumption that the transmission of this chart does not in any respect prejudice the point of view of either His Majesty's Government or the Norwegian Government regarding the extent of these waters.

M. Mowinkel's letter arrived just as His Majesty's Minister was leaving Christiania for England. Mr. Lindley, however, was able to take a copy of the original with him and informed me that he intended to discuss the question verbally with you. I presume I shall in due course receive instructions, after you have discussed the matter with Mr. Lindley, as to the reply I am to return to the last paragraph of M. Mowinkel's letter under reference.

I have, &c.,

MY DEAR MINISTER,

Christiania, 19th September, 1924.

To revert to our conversation of the other day. I would confirm the readiness of the Norwegian Government to appoint a committee of two or three persons to discuss the question raised in your note of the 29th March* with a corresponding British committee.

Professor John Hjort has communicated to me the gist of the conversation he had with you on the 18th instant, and as agreed therein a chart will eventually be sent you of East Finmark indicating the limits of Norwegian territorial waters according to Norwegian views.

In transmitting this chart it is assumed that it will in no respect prejudice the point of view of either Norway or Great Britain regarding the extent of the territorial waters. The sole aim of this information is to contribute towards preventing British trawlers from trespassing upon Norwegian territorial waters owing to their ignorance of the limits and from being arrested by Norwegian guardships.

Before replying officially to your note of the 29th March,* I should be glad to hear from you whether your Government is prepared to approach the matter on the lines indicated above.

I remain, &c.,
J. MOWINCKEL.

TELEGRAM TO MR. INGRAM (CHRISTIANIA) FROM THE FOREIGN OFFICE.

(Sent 7.30 p.m., 28th October, 1924.)

(No. 16 (R).)

YOUR despatch No. 343 of 20th September, Norwegian territorial waters.

Question was discussed at inter-departmental meeting which Mr. Lindley attended to-day, and it was decided to appoint a small committee of experts to meet similar Norwegian committee in Christiania with as little delay as possible.

Meeting were unanimous in attaching importance to examining chart promised by Minister for Foreign Affairs in his note of 19th September before they leave for Norway. Such an examination would save time by enabling departments not represented at Christiania meeting to be consulted here before experts leave.

Please inform Minister for Foreign Affairs of above and try to obtain chart and despatch it as soon as possible.

If chart is not yet available, please impress on Minister for Foreign Affairs necessity of having it ready for first meeting of committee, who propose tentatively to arrive at Christiania 17th November.

Please reply by telegraph.

SIR,

Foreign Office, S.W.1, 28th November, 1924.

WITH reference to Mr. Ingram's despatch No. 389 of the 7th instant, and subsequent telegraphic correspondence with your Legation regarding the question of Norwegian territorial waters, I have to inform you that this question has been under discussion between the departments of His Majesty's Government concerned.

2. His Majesty's Government consider that the question of the Moray Firth should not be raised by the British experts at the forthcoming discussion with Norwegian experts at Christiania, but should be reserved for discussion at the meeting of an international scientific Conference. In these circumstances they do not desire to maintain the proposal contained in paragraph 5 of your note to Monsieur Michelet of the 29th March last,† that there should be a special agreement between the British and Norwegian Governments subjecting Norwegian trawlers to the same restrictions as those imposed on British trawlers in certain areas round the Scottish coast. It should, therefore, be made clear to the Norwegian experts that the question of the Moray Firth is reserved for subsequent discussion by the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea.

REGULATIONS REGARDING THE FRONTIER DEFENCE OF THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS.

II. Relating to the Frontier Zone and Frontier Defence.

Article 8.—With a view to facilitating the suppression of contraband and the inviolability of the frontier, special frontier zones having a limit of: 4 metres, 500 metres, 7½, 16 and 22 kilometres from the frontier line are established on land, and one with a 12-mile limit at sea. Within these zones the "Pogranichnaya Okhrana" (Frontier branches of the State Political Department with frontier troops attached) is granted special powers, while the rights of the population and of the crews on ships are somewhat restricted, in accordance with the present Regulations.

Note 1.—On sections of the frontier on which cordons are not stationed on the actual frontier line, the frontier zones are to be reckoned from the line occupied by the cordons and not from the actual frontier line.

Note 2.—The territorial waters on the coasts of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (mainland and islands), will, except in cases enumerated in international agreements, be reckoned as a distance of 12 sea miles from low water mark.

Note 3.—The frontier zones are defined in the following manner: the 4 metre frontier zone—by a special system of signs. The 500 metre, the 7½, 16 and 22 kilometre and the 12 mile limit at sea are to be laid down on large scale maps—by the Headquarters Authorities of the frontier regions, acting in agreement with the local Government Executive Committee.

B. Defence of the Maritime Frontier.

Article 25.—All Russian and foreign vessels, merchant and private, on all inland waters of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and within the 12-mile limit of the seas bordering on the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics are controlled by the coastal flotillas and troops of the coastal defence of the State Political Department.

Note 1.—In the waters of the Gulf of Finland, which are an exception, the activities of the coastal flotilla temporarily extend only over the territorial waters, agreed upon in the Peace Treaty between the R.S.F.S.R. and Finland.

* Extracts only printed.

Note 2.—In the present Regulations, the term "vessel" is understood to refer to all steamships, sailing vessels and rowing boats. As far as possible regulations applied to vessels apply likewise to hydroplanes.

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 10th October, 1924.
On 14th February last, Monsieur Rakovski was good enough to transmit to me, under cover of his memorandum No. C.R./1178, a copy of regulations regarding the frontier defence of the Union of the Soviet Socialist Republics dated 7th September, 1923.
2. Having taken these regulations into careful consideration, I have the honour to request you to inform your Government that His Majesty's Government consider that three miles measured from low water mark constitute the proper limits of territorial waters, and that they can, therefore, only recognize Article 8 and the notes thereto, or indeed any part of these regulations, in so far as they do not infringe the rights of His Majesty's Government in international law.

I HAVE the honour to transmit, herewith, a translation made at this Legation of a Regulation* which has been issued governing the visits of foreign warships to the maritime territorial waters and ports of the Serb-Croat-Slovene Kingdom.

2. This Regulation was published in the Official Gazette of 27th September, and will, therefore, enter into force on 27th October, as provided for in its paragraph 14.

REGULATION ON THE ACCESS OF FOREIGN SHIPS-OF-WAR TO THE MARITIME TERRITORIAL WATERS AND PORTS OF S.C.S. KINGDOM AND ON THEIR STAY IN THESE WATERS AND PORTS.

3. In principle, foreign warships are permitted under normal conditions to visit the maritime ports and territorial waters of the S.C.S. Kingdom and to anchor within the zone, six miles broad, which runs along the coast and islands, the distance reckoned from the low water mark. This holds good with the limitation that not more than three warships belonging to one State can remain at the same time in the above-mentioned waters on the Adriatic coast.

Every such visit must be announced through diplomatic channels so that our Government may receive the announcement at least seven days before the arrival of the warships in question.

These warships cannot stay in our waters and ports longer than eight days. But if the competent authorities demand it, these warships must leave our ports and territorial waters within six hours whether they have been there eight days or not.

Enclosure 2 in No. 693.

(No. 486.)

SIR, Foreign Office, 11th November, 1924.
I HAVE been in consultation with the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty with reference to the Regulation regarding the visit of foreign vessels of war to the maritime territorial waters and ports of the Serb-Croat-Slovene Kingdom, a translation of which accompanied your despatch No. 380 of the 8th ultimo.

2. Their Lordships draw attention to the fact that in paragraph 3 of the Regulation reference is made to a limit of six miles running along the coast and islands. As you are aware His Majesty's Government only recognize a three-mile limit; and you should therefore make a formal protest to the Serb-Croat-Slovene Government intimating that His Majesty's Government can only recognize a three-mile limit for territorial waters.

3. It would also appear from the same paragraph of the Regulation that its provisions are not intended to apply to the Danube as the word "maritime" is employed throughout. I observe that this is also your opinion. The Serb-Croat-Slovene Government have, however, up to the present maintained that maritime usage as regards giving notice of, and obtaining permission for, visits of foreign warships should apply to the Danube, and it is, therefore, considered advisable that no possibility of misunderstanding should be permitted to subsist. I request, therefore, that you will inform the Serb-Croat-Slovene Government, in such manner as you consider suitable and least likely to raise afresh the controversy of the past year, that His Majesty's Government understand that the present Regulation does not apply to the Danube, and will establish that this view is correct. In this connexion I should be glad to learn whether the Serb-Croat-Slovene Government have returned any reply to the note which you were instructed in my predecessor's despatch No. 33 of 21st January last, to address to them on the subject of the right of passage of foreign warships through the Serb-Croat-Slovene portion of the Danube. In the event, however, of no reply having been received, I do not desire that you should call for one, as the silence of the Serb-Croat-Slovene Government on this question may be taken to signify their consent to the doctrine that free right of passage in the international channel is enjoyed by all foreign warships without notice.

British Embassy, Madrid, 2nd February, 1923.

REFERRING to our conversation on 29th January, I have the honour now to transmit to Your Excellency a copy of the protest* addressed by the Master of the British felucca "Mensajero" to the British Vice-Consul at Palma (Mallorca) against the arrest of his vessel by a launch of the Compañía Arrendataria de Tabaco on 18th January.

As Your Excellency will observe, the Master claims that the arrest was effected outside the limits of Spanish territorial waters. Unless the competent Spanish authorities are able to prove the Master's statements to be incorrect, I must enter a formal protest on behalf of my Government against the action of the Compañía Arrendataria, and request Your Excellency to cause the "Mensajero" to be released at as early a date as may be possible. In the meantime, I should be most grateful if Your Excellency would kindly use your good offices with a view, to this case being investigated without delay.

No. 695.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL to THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 4th July, 1924.)

[Answered by No. 696.]

(Confidential.)

SIR,

Government House, Ottawa, 23rd June, 1924.

WITH reference to your Confidential despatch of the 5th October, 1923,* regarding the claim by the United States to jurisdiction over the whole of the waters of Cook Inlet, I have the honour to enclose, herewith, copies of an approved Minute of the Privy Council for Canada setting forth the views of the Government of Canada on the subject.

I have, &c.,

BYNG OF VIMY.

Enclosure in No. 695.

(P.C. 988.)

THE FOLLOWING IS A TRUE COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 14TH JUNE, 1924.

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report dated 11th June, 1924, from the Secretary of State for External Affairs, with reference to a Confidential despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated the 5th October, 1923, inviting the observations of Your Excellency's advisers upon a question raised regarding the interpretation of Articles 1 (b) and 7 of the Regulations for the Administration of the South-Western Alaska Fisheries Reservation, promulgated by the United States Secretary of Commerce under date of 16th December, 1922, as intended to assert a claim to jurisdiction by the United States over the whole of the waters of Cook Inlet.

The Minister submits that the question having been considered in the Department of Marine and Fisheries, the conclusion has been reached, that, notwithstanding the opinion given by Mr. Kingsbury, one of the legal advisers to His Majesty's Embassy at Washington (copy of which is enclosed in the Colonial Office despatch) it is very doubtful whether the Presidential Order of the 3rd November, 1922, under authority of which the Regulations referred to were promulgated, and such Regulations could be held to assert a claim to territoriality over Cook Inlet.

The Presidential Order above cited is as follows:

"Now, therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the power in me vested by the laws of the United States, do hereby set apart as a preserve to more effectively insure the protection of the fisheries, and for their encouragement and development, in addition to the above reservations, a reserve of land and waters, which said reservation shall be known as the South-Western Alaska Fisheries Reservation, which shall include all territorial waters and the lands within one-half mile of the shores thereof, within the lines defined as follows:

From the north-easterly point of the Alaska Peninsula Fisheries Reservation at Cape Menshikof, Bristol Bay, north-westerly to a point in latitude 58 degrees 32 minutes north, longitude 162 degrees 12 minutes west, off Cape Newenham; thence to a point in latitude 59 degrees 15 minutes north, longitude 162 degrees, 0 minutes west; thence eastward along parallel of latitude 59 degrees 15 minutes north, to longitude 155 degrees west; thence to a point in latitude 61 degrees 20 minutes north, longitude 151 degrees 20 minutes west; thence to a point in latitude 61 degrees 20 minutes north, longitude 150 degrees 10 minutes west; thence to a point in latitude 61 degrees 35 minutes north, longitude 149 degrees 40 minutes west; thence to a point in latitude 61 degrees 35 minutes north, longitude 149 degrees 0 minutes west; thence to a point in latitude 60 degrees 40 minutes north, longitude 149 degrees 0 minutes west; thence to a point in latitude 60 degrees 40 minutes north, longitude 151 degrees 0 minutes; thence to a point in latitude 57 degrees 30 minutes north, longitude 151 degrees west; thence to a point in latitude 55 degrees 0 minutes north, longitude 157 degrees 0 minutes west; thence to low-water mark at the eastern extremity of Foggy Cape on Sutwik Island; thence to point of beginning.

Fishery operations within the said South-western Alaska Fisheries Reservation shall be subject to such regulations and restrictions as shall be issued by the Secretary of Commerce, in addition to the general fisheries laws and regulations of the United States as administered by the Secretary of Commerce.

The reservation hereby established shall not interfere with the use of the waters, islands, or other lands embraced therein for any purpose not inconsistent therewith, nor with the operation therein of the laws now or hereafter applicable to the public lands in Alaska, nor with the respective jurisdictions of the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior thereover.

Warning is hereby expressly given to all unauthorized persons not to fish in or use any of the waters herein described or mentioned."

The Minister observes that as this Order specifically states that it includes all territorial waters it does not seem to contemplate any claim to other waters within the area described, as being territorial. If this is so, it should follow that the regulations made under the authority of this Order could not extend beyond its scope, and that, therefore, Regulation 1 (b) should be held as covering only the territorial waters in the areas it defines. It is further observed that Regulation 1 (c) covers Shelikof Strait, which could not be regarded as territorial. Hence the same remarks apply to it.

For many years Alaska has, for the purposes of the salmon fishing and canning industries, been divided into four geographic sections, viz.:—

1. South-east Alaska—embracing all that narrow strip of mainland and the numerous islands and waters adjacent thereto from Portland Canal north-westward to and including Yajutat Bay;
2. Central Alaska—embracing the region on the Pacific or south side from Yajutat Bay westward, including the Aleutian Chain;
3. Western Alaska—embracing the shores of Bering Sea and the islands in this Sea;
4. Arctic Alaska—embracing the area from Bering Sea around to the Canadian border.

These divisions, it is understood, were adopted entirely for convenience in administering the industry and do not contemplate any claim to territoriality over waters not ordinarily regarded in International law as being territorial.

The Minister submits, on the other hand, if there is any possibility of it being held that notwithstanding the wording of the Presidential Order under which the regulations of the 16th December, 1922, were adopted, these regulations contemplate a claim to territoriality over the whole of Cook Inlet and Shelikof Strait, that the matter should be brought to the attention of the United States Government.

It further appears, as indicated by Mr. Kingsbury, that Section 5 of the Act of 1906 does, by its wording in excepting Cook Inlet, the delta of Copper River and Bering Sea from the weekly close time provided by the section, infer that these areas are territorial waters of the United States. This section reads as follows:—

"Section 5.—That it shall be unlawful to fish for, take or kill any salmon of any species in any manner, or by any means except by rod, spear or gaff, in any of the waters of Alaska over which the United States has jurisdiction, except Cook Inlet, the Delta of Copper River, Bering Sea, and the waters tributary thereto, from six o'clock post meridian of Saturday of each week until six o'clock ante meridian of the Monday following, or to fish for, or catch, or kill in any manner or by an appliance except by rod, spear, or gaff, any salmon in any stream of less than one hundred yards in width in Alaska between the hours of six o'clock in the evening and six o'clock in the morning of the following day of each and every day of the week. Throughout the weekly close season herein prescribed the gate, mouth, or tunnel of all stationary and floating traps shall be closed, and twenty-five feet of the webbing or net of the 'heart' of such traps on each side next to the 'pot' shall be lifted or lowered in such manner as to permit the free passage of salmon and other fishes."

In this connexion the Minister points out—

1. That there is no geographic reason why Cook Inlet should be regarded as territorial that does not apply with equal force to such an area as the Bay of Fundy, which up to the moment has not been held to be territorial. Also there is no historic reason known to the Department of Marine and Fisheries for claiming territoriality over Cook Inlet, while there is such reason so far as the Bay of Fundy is concerned;
2. There is no geographic reason for regarding Shelikof Strait, which is about thirty miles wide at its northern entrance, about twenty-five miles at the centre and over seventy miles at its southern entrance, as being territorial that would not apply with even greater force to such an area as the Strait of Northumberland, which up to the moment has not been held as territorial, or to Dickson Entrance and Hecate Strait. Indeed as was pointed out in a Minute of Council, approved the 4th day of May, 1914 (P.C. 1147), there are very strong reasons why following the wording of the Alaska Boundary in the Alaska Boundary Award both these latter areas should be held to be territorial for similar reasons to those which are recognized as between Canada and the United States at least for regarding Juan de Fuca Strait as being territorial.
3. Any claim to the territoriality of Bering Sea is set at rest by the Bering Sea Arbitration Award in the Pelagic Sealing controversy.

It may also be explained that it is known to the Department of Marine and Fisheries that halibut frequent Cook Inlet and Shelikof Strait as well as Bering Sea, and that at least one United States halibut fishing vessel, which, however, operates from a British Columbia port, has fished in Cook Inlet. It is quite probable that Canadian halibut fishing vessels have also done so, and no doubt they will desire to fish there in the future.

In the light of the above it is the opinion of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in which the Secretary of State for External Affairs concurs, that the attention of the United States Government should be called to the above Act and regulations, with an intimation that His Majesty's Government cannot admit the application of any such Act or regulation to British vessels in waters outside the limits generally accepted in International Law for territorial waters.

The Committee, concurring, advise that Your Excellency may be pleased to communicate the views herein expressed to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

E. J. LEMAIRE,

Clerk of the Privy Council.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

MY LORD,

Downing Street, 30th September, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's Confidential despatch of the 23rd of June* regarding the extent of the jurisdiction of the United States over the waters of Cook Inlet, and to request you to inform your Ministers that the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs feels that it would be preferable not to approach the United States Government immediately in the sense indicated in the minute of the Privy Council for Canada enclosed in your despatch, and that the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty concur in this view.

2 It is suggested, for your Ministers' consideration, that representations to the United States Government on the subject of this particular inlet might prejudice the chances of the eventual establishment of the territoriality of waters which the Canadian Government may wish on their part to have recognized as "territorial inlets," and that, in the circumstances, it would be better to defer action until it is possible to consider the question of territorial inlets on a comprehensive basis. In this connexion, His Majesty's Government would be glad to receive at an early date the information requested in paragraph 4 of my predecessor's Confidential despatch Dominions No. 13 of the 10th January,† as to waters which the Canadian Government would desire to be regarded as "territorial inlets."

3. There would, in any case, as pointed out in the Minute of Council, appear to be some doubt whether the United States Regulations relating to Cook Inlet, now under discussion, do in fact amount to a claim to jurisdiction over all the waters of the Inlet. It is noted that your Ministers think that the terms of Section 5 of the United States Act of 1906 may be regarded as asserting such a claim, but it is observed that the Section uses identical language in regard to both Cook Inlet and Bering Sea; and it is felt, in view of the Bering Sea Arbitration Award, that the United States Government could hardly intend to claim jurisdiction over the whole of the Bering Sea.

I have, &c.,

WITH reference to my predecessor's despatch [Not to Irish Free State: Dominions No. 297 of the 9th August‡] [To Irish Free State: No. 525 of the 31st August,§] I have the honour to request [Your Excellency] [you] to lay before your Ministers the following observations as to the effect of the Instruments negotiated at the Lausanne Conference upon the Treaty of Sèvres and certain other Treaties relating to the Near East which were signed on the 10th August, 1920.

2. In addition to the Treaty of Sèvres itself (Treaty Series No. 11 of 1920), the Tripartite Agreement between the British Empire, France and Italy respecting Anatolia (Treaty Series No. 12 of 1920) and the Treaty relating to Armenia (State Papers, Volume 113, page 458), signed on the 10th August, 1920 [Not to Irish Free State: copies of which were enclosed in Viscount Milner's despatches Dominions No. 465 of the 17th November, 1920, and Dominions No. 394 of the 11th September, 1920*] have been superseded by the Instruments signed at Lausanne and it is not proposed to take any further action in regard to these three Instruments.

3. In accordance with the Protocol signed at Lausanne on the 24th July, 1923 (pp. 225-227 of Treaty Series No. 16 of 1923), the ratifications of the Treaty concluded at Sèvres between the Principal Allied Powers and Greece on the 10th August, 1920, concerning the protection of minorities in Greece (Treaty Series No. 13 of 1920) and the Treaty concluded on the same day between the same Powers relating to Thrace (Treaty Series No. 13 of 1921) [Not to Irish Free State: copies of which were enclosed in Viscount Milner's despatches Dominions No. 395 and Dominions No. 393 of the 11th September, 1920,†] are to be deposited at the same time as the ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey signed at Lausanne. TREATY OF LAUSANNE (STRAITS CONVENTION).

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SIR E. GRIGG asked the Prime Minister whether he can give the House any information upon the attitude of the Dominion Governments towards the obligations to be undertaken under the Straits Convention annexed to the Treaty of Lausanne; whether the Treaty of Lausanne, with the Straits Convention, is to be submitted for ratification in the Dominion Parliaments; and whether, in view of the grave questions of policy raised by the Straits Convention, which are distinct in many ways from those raised by the Treaty itself, he will undertake to give the House an opportunity of discussing the Straits Convention separately before it is ratified?

MR. PONSONBY: His Majesty's Government are still in communication with the Dominion Governments regarding the ratification of the various instruments signed at Lausanne which together form the peace settlement with Turkey, and which include both the Treaty of Peace and the Straits Convention. As was explained in the published summary of the proceedings of the Imperial Conference of 1923, it is for each Government to decide whether Parliamentary approval or legislation is required. The various instruments of the peace settlement are mutually interdependent, and it would not be practicable, even if Parliamentary time were available, to give a separate day for the discussion of any single one of them.

THE PRIME MINISTER: In reply to the first part of the question, I will remind the honourable and gallant Member that it was decided at the Imperial Conference that no particulars of its proceedings should be made public without the consent of the Conference as a whole. I regret that I can, therefore, give him no information beyond what is contained in the published proceedings. SIR E. GRIGG: Are we to understand that the House is to have no information whatever about the attitude of the Dominions towards the Straits Convention when it is discussed in this House?

THE PRIME MINISTER: The question was as regards the giving of information. TELEGRAM.

1ST APRIL. Your telegram of 21st March,§ Peace Treaty with Turkey. Union Government concurs in ratification of Peace Treaty and Convention relating to regime of the Straits and Thrace frontiers and will be glad if His Majesty's Government will ratify the Peace Settlement with Turkey on behalf of the Union Government.

Ministers would be glad if you would arrange for a declaration on their behalf that provisions of the Convention respecting Conditions of Business and Commercial Convention do not apply to the Union of South Africa and mandated territory of South-West Africa.—GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

Note.—In the debate in the House of Commons on the 1st April on the Second Reading of the Bill, Sir Edward Grigg moved an amendment that the House declined to proceed with the Second Reading until it had received a definite statement from His Majesty's Government as to whether the Dominions and India had been fully informed of the liabilities in which the Empire must be involved by the guarantee of the demilitarized zones on both sides of the Straits contained in Article 18 of the Straits Convention annexed to the Treaty and as to whether the Dominions and India were prepared to ratify the Treaty with the Straits Convention. His speech on the amendment appears in the Official Report, columns 2027-2042. The Prime Minister's reply dealt with the position of the Dominions in columns 2070-2072. The debate was adjourned until the 9th April.

Mr. Mackenzie King made a statement as to the position of Canada in the Canadian House of Commons on the 2nd April (see Official Report, Vol. LIX, No. 23, pages 987-990) and a supplementary statement on the 3rd April (see Official Report, Vol. LIX, No. 24, page 1015).

[Answered by Nos. 715, 716 and 724.]

3RD APRIL. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Treaty with Turkey. You are reported by telegraph as having referred as follows in the House of Commons, 1st April, to the attitude of Canada with respect to the Lausanne Conference and the ratification:—

"Before Lord Curzon, as Foreign Secretary, was appointed as our representative at Lausanne with Sir H. Rumbold, steps were taken to communicate with the Dominions and to inform them as to their intentions, and to ask them whether they agreed that Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold should be their representatives as Imperial representatives as well as British representatives. They agreed."

If this is accurate statement of your remarks, clearly you could not have had placed before you, or rightly interpreted, purport of our despatches in this matter. Canada, so far as we are aware, was never asked whether she would agree that Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold should be her representatives or should act as Imperial representatives as well as British representatives and never so agreed. Our first intimation respecting the Lausanne Conference was contained in despatch [telegram] of 27th October, 1922,* from Devonshire to me stating "yesterday invitations were sent by Governments of Great Britain, France and Italy to Japan, etc.," and that "according to arrangements agreed upon with the French and Italian Governments each Government would be represented at Lausanne by two Plenipotentiaries. Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs will personally act as Chief British Plenipotentiary, and it is proposed that he should be accompanied by British High Commissioner at Constantinople." Only Government under British Crown to which reference is made in this despatch as being represented at Lausanne is the Government of Great Britain. Only reference to Dominion Governments in this despatch will be found in the next sentence as follows: "Dominion Governments will be kept informed from time to time of the general lines of policy on which the British Plenipotentiaries propose to proceed and of the course of negotiations, and in case of other Treaties arising out of the Peace, will, of course, be invited to sign the new Treaty and any separate instruments regulating the status of the Straits. His Majesty's Government trust that this procedure will be in accordance with the wishes of your Government." "Plenipotentiaries are fully acquainted with Imperial aspects of the problem" and with the keen interest taken by the Dominion Governments in its solution. Similar telegrams sent to the other Prime Ministers." Secret despatch* of the same date gave confidential information as to why the Dominions were not to be represented. Please note the words of the third sentence thereof. "You should know that in the course of discussions Monsieur Poincaré informed Lord Curzon privately that, if the Dominions and India were represented at the Conference, the French Government would demand that Tunis and Morocco should equally be represented." Position of our Government was made quite clear in our despatches [telegrams] of 31st October, 1922, 25th November, 1922, 31st December, 1922.†

* No. 355 in Dominions No. 87.

We have from the beginning taken the position that, not having been invited to the Lausanne Conference and not having participated therein by any representatives authorized to act on behalf of Canada, procedure adopted by the British Government at Lausanne was not and could not be regarded as similar to that governing the Conferences at Versailles and Washington. We at no time authorized any British Plenipotentiary to represent us nor did we understand that they were representing any Government other than the one which had extended invitation to this Conference, and which was the only one under the British Crown referred to in the despatch informing us of what had taken place. We made it plain that while we were ready to receive any reports of the proceedings with which the British Government might wish us to be supplied, mere receipt of such information or failure to comment on the same was not to be regarded as in any way implying acquiescence on our part, in either the proceedings or their outcome. We have never regarded that Canada was participating either directly or indirectly in the Conference. We took no exception to the course adopted by the British Government in not inviting us to be represented or to the circumstances which occasioned our not being invited, as we assumed that it was regarded that we had no immediate or direct interest in the proceedings, which in fact was our own view. See my telegrams of 31st October, 1922, 25th November, 1922, and 31st December, 1922, already referred to.

Our position with respect to ratification is identical with our position with respect to participation in the Conference and the signing of the Treaty. Hansard reports of your words and debate thereto as sent me by cable is as follows:—

"As a matter of fact India and New Zealand agreed very early as to the ratification. Canada replied that she would agree to what His Majesty's Government did. She raised one or two constitutional points which I do not think in this respect were really meant by Canada to have much substance, but were sort of safeguard and a certain expression of reticence and reserve regarding possible extension of principle granted in relation to specific points without warning being given us that Canada would require to maintain for herself certain rights of decision over the above Imperial right of decision.

SIR E. GRIGG: Are we to understand that Canada has ever intimated its readiness to accept this obligation as binding upon Canada?

PRIME MINISTER: Canadian Government have said with full knowledge of the Treaty that she would be perfectly willing to accept the decision of the Government and would take no exception to what His Majesty's Government did; something like that, I have not got the exact words.

SIR E. GRIGG: Does Canada accept the obligation herself?

PRIME MINISTER: Canada, I am perfectly certain, accepts the obligation, having been represented by Lord Curzon at Lausanne with his full knowledge and consent."

If you are correctly reported it is clearly our position is not at all understood. Our despatches were intended to make it plain that Canada, not having been represented at Lausanne, not having signed the Treaty, was unwilling to be a party to it or to assume any obligation under it. We do not intend, however, to take exception to, or raise any question concerning, the Treaty being ratified by the Government of Great Britain. All references in our despatches to the signing of the Treaty by the Plenipotentiaries who negotiated it must be construed as having been made under the assumption and understanding that Plenipotentiaries were representatives of the Government of Great Britain as mentioned in the first despatch of 27th October, 1922, but were in no sense representatives of Canada. We neither had knowledge that they were professing so to act on our behalf nor did we at any time consent to their so doing. Ends.

Begins: My colleagues and I would welcome having placed before Parliament here as well as in Great Britain communications between British Government and our own respecting the Treaty of Lausanne. Indeed we would have urged for permission to place all the correspondence before Parliament, but did not wish to embarrass your Government by pressing request unduly. Any return would, of course, omit most essential of all parts of correspondence were despatches which relate to the representation of the Dominion(s) at the Lausanne Conference not included. In this connexion we would not expect Secretary of State for the Colonies' telegram of 27th October, 1922,|| marked Personal and Secret to be brought down, and any references thereto in my telegram of 3rd April¶ might be deleted. If, however, this course were adopted, we would expect frank statement by your Government to the effect that, for reasons which to Government of Great Britain at the time seemed paramount, Canada was not invited to be represented at the Conference and, in fact, was not represented by anyone so authorized by our Government. This, we think you will agree, is essential to the understanding of our whole position with regard to both signature and ratification of the Treaty and any obligations arising thereunder. Ends.

If such communication were written in view of possible publication, there would be an end of the possibility of clear and frank information of the position to the Dominions. 10TH APRIL. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Representation of Canada at Lausanne. My telegram 7th April.* In view of cabled despatches yesterday's debates House of Commons, would ask you kindly to look at stenographer's notes of fourth meeting Imperial Conference, Monday, 8th October, 1923, at page 16 of which I am reported, speaking for Canada, as having said in the presence of Mr. Baldwin, Lord Curzon and other members of the British Government, as well as the Prime Ministers of other Dominions, "At Genoa and at The Hague we were represented. We had been invited to be present at these Conferences, and considering their nature we felt that it would perhaps be not only of interest and benefit to ourselves, but also to the others if we were represented there. At Lausanne we were not represented; we were not invited. We took and we take no exception to not being invited. We felt that the matters that were being discussed there were not of the same immediate and direct interest to ourselves as they were to those who were represented at the Conference, and we have no exception to take to the course that was adopted." I think it owing to the Dominion of Canada and to our Government that our position in this particular should be made known to the Members of the British Parliament and the British public before this subject is disposed of. I much hope you will find it possible to make clear our position in this particular before the subject is further discussed in our Parliament here. Otherwise I shall be obliged to restate our position, and again request permission to bring down all correspondence between the Government of Great Britain and the Canadian Government in reference to this matter. Kindly advise me if I may count upon your making statement and, if so, at what probable time. Ends.

12TH APRIL. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your telegram 3rd April.† I am sorry if anything which I said in course of debate on ratification of Treaty of Peace with Turkey

should have given impression that Canada had been asked formally to concur in arrangement for negotiations at Lausanne being entrusted to Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold. I agree that this would not have been correct description of position as set out in Secretary of State's telegram 27th October, 1922.* But as regards the general Imperial nature of their mission I would observe that, apart from special mention made in this telegram of the fact that the British Plenipotentiaries were fully acquainted with the Imperial aspect of the problem and with the keen interest taken by Dominion Governments in its solution, it was explained in Secretary of State's Personal and Secret telegram same day† that "arrangements outlined in my code telegram of to-day for representation of British Empire by Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs follow those adopted in connexion with Treaty of Sèvres." There had been specific reminder from the Canadian Government when the negotiations with Turkey were proceeding in 1920 that the Treaty when made would be made by His Majesty on behalf of whole British Empire (see Minute of Privy Council P.C. 439, 29th March, 1920‡) and the correspondence ensuing on Secretary of State's telegrams 27th October, 1922, was, I am informed, not interpreted as indicating any desire on part of Canadian Government to be regarded as entirely dissociated from negotiations. Your telegram 31st December, 1922,§ did not question view of the position set out in Secretary of State's telegram 8th December, 1922,|| in following words: "Any Treaty resulting from Lausanne Conference will, of course, replace Treaty of Sèvres, and until it comes into force a state of war between the British Empire and Turkey will technically continue. The Treaty when ratified must therefore be binding on the whole Empire," and was consequently read here as referring solely to procedure in respect of signature of Treaty.

Having regard to all the circumstances, when I received assurance conveyed in Governor-General's telegram 24th March¶ that Canadian Government would not take exception to such course as His Majesty's Government might deem it advisable to recommend, I thought that I could safely assume that Canadian Government would have no objection to ratification by His Majesty of Treaties constituting Peace Settlement with Turkey on behalf of whole Empire, and would be ready to accept any obligations which such ratification would involve. As effect of peace settlement will be to put end to state of war which still exists technically between British Empire and Turkey, I confess that I do not see how it would be possible to exclude from ratification any part of Empire, and result will be that Treaties when ratified by His Majesty must be regarded as binding on whole Empire except in so far as obligations under them are expressly limited to this country. In case of two Conventions, viz., that relating to Conditions of Business and Commercial Convention, there is express provision by which declaration may be made excluding any of Dominions, and I presume that in case of these Conventions you would wish such declaration made in respect of Canada.

I hope that in the circumstances Canadian Government will take no objection to ratification of various instruments forming Peace Settlement on above understanding.

As you know, we have found here that legislation would be required to give effect to certain provisions of Treaty, notably in relation to matters dealt with in Economic Clauses. I imagine that these provisions will not in practice require to be executed in Canada, though I notice that legislation was passed by Canadian Parliament in 1922 with a view to giving effect to Treaty signed at Sèvres.

I hope that you will be in a position to send a very early reply, since in view of the situation in Turkey I regard it as essential that steps should be taken as soon as possible for preparation of His Majesty's ratification now that our Bill has passed both Houses. Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand and Union of South Africa have expressed concurrence in ratification.

I have received your further telegram 10th April.* On question of publication of correspondence His Majesty's Government have informed Parliament† that they do not propose to lay papers, having regard to objection to publication by some of Dominions and fact that whole series would have to be laid if position were to be made clear. This has been accepted by House of Commons as satisfactory, and I feel that it would be undesirable to reopen matter. Ramsay MacDonald. Ends.

23RD APRIL. Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your telegram of 12th April,‡ Lausanne Treaty. Despatch (Telegram) of Governor-General 24th March§ contains carefully considered statement of Canadian position and views of our Government with respect to negotiations for signature and ratification of Lausanne Treaty. I do not feel that there is anything I can add to what is there set forth pending further statement to Canadian Parliament as referred to in my telegram of 10th April.*

Having regard to mention in your telegram that you consider it essential in view of the situation in Turkey that steps should be taken as soon as possible for the preparation of His Majesty's ratification, I think I should let you know at once that the Debate on the Budget now in progress in our Parliament may continue for a fortnight, if not longer, and that opportunity for discussion of the Lausanne Treaty will not be possible until the Budget Debate is disposed of. That this circumstance, or any other which may arise out of the discussion, may not be permitted to embarrass your Government in any particular, I wish to repeat, as mentioned in His Excellency's despatch of 24th March,§ that, with respect to His Majesty's ratification, our Government will not take exception to such course as His Majesty's Government may deem it advisable to recommend. With respect to the Conventions referred to in your telegram we would, of course, wish that the declaration made excludes Canada.

In view of the impression which has been given, to the effect that the present Canadian position with regard to representation at Lausanne, and with respect to concurrence in the ratification was not made known at the Imperial Conference, in addition to the reference already made to page 16 of the stenographer's notes of the Fourth Meeting of the Imperial Conference proceedings held 8th October in which I am quoted as having said that Canada was not invited and was not represented at the Lausanne Conference, I should mention this was restated by me at meeting of the Committee on signature of Treaties held in the Foreign Office 25th October, at which Lord Curzon presided and should appear in the shorthand records of that Meeting, which I understand were kept. Also I would direct your attention to the Minutes of the meeting of the Committee on the publication of correspondence and status of the High Commissioners held in the room of the Secretary of State, Colonial Office, Friday, 2nd November, at which several British Ministers and Officials of the Foreign and Colonial Office, as well as the Dominion Prime Ministers, were present, and where the subject of the ratification of the Treaty of Lausanne was specifically discussed, which records of the proceedings conclude with the following words: "Prime Minister of Canada intimated, however, that it might not be possible for the Canadian Government to express formal concurrence in the ratification." Office, 5th November, 1923. I am still hoping you may find it possible to make statement in the British Parliament which will serve to remove the erroneous impression your previous statements have made with respect to any authorized representation of Canada at Lausanne and deductions drawn therefrom. Failing such statement on your part, I hope you will assent to submission to the Parliament here of such parts of the correspondence as will make the facts clear or that you will permit me to say that I have your authority to state that, if anything you said in the course of the debate on the ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey should have given the impression that Canada had been asked formally to concur in arrangements for negotiations at Lausanne being entrusted to Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold, that this would not have been correct description of the position. Ends.

"MR. JOSEPH T. SHAW, EAST CALGARY: I would like to ask the Prime Minister if there has been any change in the position in regard to the Lausanne controversy since his last statement to the House.

RIGHT HONOURABLE W. L. MACKENZIE KING, PRIME MINISTER: I do not know that I quite understand the significance of my honourable friend's question.

MR. SHAW: I will put it in more detail. Has the matter been the subject of consultation(s) between the British Government and the Canadian Government, and, if so, has the Prime Minister any statement to make at this stage with regard to the present standing of the matter?

MR. MACKENZIE KING: I have been communicating with the Prime Minister of Great Britain with reference to the statement which was made by him in the House of Commons during the course of the debate, and which it did not seem to me represented accurately the position which he was referring to. TREATY OF LAUSANNE (ATTITUDE OF DOMINIONS).

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SIR EDWARD GRIGG (by Private Notice) asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies what steps have been taken by His Majesty's Government to secure the consent of the Dominions to the publication of papers regarding their acceptance of the obligations contained in the Treaty of Lausanne; whether consent was asked for by cable, and on what dates; what replies, if any, have been received; and, in view of Mr. Mackenzie King's statement in the Canadian House of Commons yesterday that he would welcome publication, can His Majesty's Government now undertake to lay the papers concerned?

* No. 725. † 10851/24: not printed; it enclosed the House of Lords Official Report of the 28th February containing the debate on the Second Reading of the Bill.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES (MR. J. H. THOMAS): When the Prime Minister was pressed for the laying of all papers in connexion with the Treaty of Lausanne, he took steps to communicate with the whole of the Dominions concerned. I am pleased to say replies have been received from them all and, having regard to the objection to publication by some of the Dominions and to the fact that the whole series would have to be laid if the position were to be made clear, His Majesty's Government are unable to lay the papers.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

(5th May, 1924.)

LAUSANNE CONFERENCE (CANADA).

41. LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SIR E. GRIGG asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies whether he is aware that on 2nd April the Prime Minister of Canada stated to the Canadian House of Commons that Canada had not been invited to send representatives to the Lausanne Conference; that in the same statement Mr. Mackenzie King contrasted the procedure adopted at the Lausanne Conference with that previously adopted at the Paris and Washington Conferences; and that the Canadian Government informed the British Government in a despatch, dated 31st December, 1922, that in view of this difference of procedure Canada could not be expected to append her signature to any instruments negotiated at Lausanne; and whether, in view of Mr. King's further statement that Canada would make no objection to the publication of the correspondence, he will undertake to lay it upon the Table of this House?

MR. THOMAS: I have read the statement made by the Prime Minister of Canada in the Canadian House of Commons on 2nd April. I understand that, on 24th April, he stated in answer to a question that he thought that he would be in a position later on to make a further statement. As regards the publication of papers, I cannot add anything to the answer which I gave to the honourable and gallant Member on 9th April.*

SIR E. GRIGG: In view of the difficulty which there is in reconciling statements in this House and those in the Canadian House of Commons, does the right honourable Gentleman not think that in the interests of the British public and of the British Government papers should be laid?

MR. THOMAS: As I have explained to the honourable and gallant Gentleman, this Government have no objection to laying the papers, but, as he is aware, by agreement made at the Imperial Conference, the authority of all the Dominions must be obtained. The authority in this case having been refused, the Government have no alternative.

SIR E. GRIGG: Does that apply to correspondence solely between the Canadian Government and this Government, the Canadian Government having stated that they are willing to publish papers?

MR. THOMAS: No one knows better than the honourable and gallant Gentleman that the Resolution I have referred to enables any one Dominion to object.

MR. PRINGLE: In view of the fact that this is a correspondence solely between Great Britain and Canada, can there be any objection to publication, seeing that the Dominion Government are anxious for publication?

MR. THOMAS: As a matter of fact, it is not correspondence solely between Canada and this country. The whole correspondence is with a number of Dominions, and not with Canada alone.

SIR E. GRIGG: Can the right honourable Gentleman undertake to lay papers containing solely the correspondence between the British Government and the Canadian Government?

MR. THOMAS: I will undertake to submit the proposal.

7TH MAY. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Lausanne Treaty. Your messages of 23rd and 25th April† received, and I have also now seen your statements in Canadian Parliament 2nd and 3rd April.

I am grateful for your readiness to help us, and I understand the position now to be that, as indicated in Governor-General's telegram of 24th March,‡ Canadian Government acquiesce in ratification by His Majesty of Peace Settlement with Turkey and that you will arrange to get any Parliamentary approval or legislation in Canada, which you may think necessary, as soon as time is available in the Canadian Parliament.

I have ascertained that no shorthand notes were kept of the Committee Meeting of the Imperial Conference held at the Foreign Office on 25th October. As regards Committee Meeting at Colonial Office on 2nd November, I gather that your statement was regarded here as meaning that, whilst you might not be in a position to express on behalf of Canada formal concurrence in ratification, Canadian Government had no objection to ratification of Peace Settlement on behalf of whole Empire.

I would still deprecate laying papers for reasons given in my message of 12th April,§ but I am quite willing that you should make statement on lines suggested at end of your message of 23rd April.|| I feel, however, that in fairness to successive British Governments it would be advantage if you could include mention of following passages from Secretary of State's telegrams of 27th October, 1922, and 8th December, 1922,¶ which were referred to in my message of 12th April. viz.:—

(1) "British plenipotentiaries are fully acquainted with the Imperial aspect of the problem, and with the keen interest taken by the Dominion Governments in its solution" in telegram of 27th October.

(2) "Any Treaty which may result from Lausanne Conference will, of course, replace Treaty of Sèvres, and until it comes into force a state of war between the British Empire and Turkey will technically continue. The Treaty when ratified must, therefore, be binding on the whole Empire," in telegram of 8th December.

I notice that you did not make mention of either of these passages in your statement to Canadian Parliament on 2nd April.

Could you, if you concur, telegraph text of statement which you propose?

I hope that I shall now be able to arrange very shortly for ratification of various instruments forming Peace Settlement.

I note that you would wish Canada excluded from Conditions of Business and Commercial Conventions and will take action accordingly.

Ends.

9TH MAY. Following from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: Lausanne Treaty. London Press cable intimates that in reply to question by Sir Edward Grigg in the House of Commons on 7th May you had said that no official communication had been received from the Canadian Government asking approval of the other Dominions to the publication of correspondence. My telegram of 7th April* to the Prime Minister, stating that I would welcome having placed before Parliament here, as well as in Great Britain, the communications between the British Government and our own respecting the Treaty of Lausanne, was intended to imply that whatever steps were necessary to this end would also be welcomed. My telegram of 10th April† to the Prime Minister again requesting permission to bring down all correspondence between the British Government and the Canadian Government was meant as official request to the British Government to obtain, if need be, the necessary consent of the other Dominions also.

My telegram of 23rd April‡ to the Prime Minister requested assent to submission to the Parliament here of such parts of the correspondence as would make the facts clear.

Canadian Government still hopes that it may be possible to have publication of all correspondence between Great Britain and Canada respecting Lausanne Conference and invitation(s) thereto, and that the British Government will join with us in endeavouring to obtain the consent of the other Dominions to publication of such correspondence—this more especially in view of the Premier having said in his telegram dated 12th April§ that he had informed the British Parliament that the reason of the British Government for withholding publication was the objection to publication by some of the Dominions. 12TH MAY. Secret. Following for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Your message of 9th May.|| My reply to Grigg in House of Commons 7th May seems to have been reported incorrectly. First part of question was whether Canadian Government had telegraphed to other Dominions to inquire whether any of them objected to publication of correspondence between Great Britain and Canada regarding negotiation, etc., of Treaty of Lausanne. Answer to this was that I had seen press telegram to effect indicated, but no official communication had been received from Canadian Government.

Second part of question was whether His Majesty's Government had themselves telegraphed to other Dominions in support of Canada's view that correspondence between Great Britain and Canada should be published immediately. My answer was that I thought it would now be well to await result of inquiries which you were making.

* No. 719. † No. 723. ‡ No. 725. § No. 724. || No. 733.

On same day that this answer was given, viz., 7th May, Prime Minister's last message* was sent to you through Governor-General, and we had hoped that, if you were ready to make statement in Canadian Parliament on lines suggested in that message, this would dispose of whole matter, particularly in view of fact that your statement in Canadian House of Commons 2nd April had contained already gist of so much of correspondence between British and Canadian Governments.

I am very sorry that matter has caused you so much trouble. From our point of view position still is that publication of whole series of correspondence with Dominions seems impossible (see Prime Minister's messages of 7th April and 12th April†) and for this reason we are averse to publication of correspondence with Canada only.

Grigg has put down further question for Monday, 12th May, asking whether His Majesty's Government has now received any information as to action taken by Canadian Government to secure consent of other Dominions to publication of correspondence between Great Britain and Canada on Treaty of Lausanne, and whether I have informed Dominions that Great Britain would take no objection to publication.

I propose to reply that a communication on the matter has now been received from Canadian Government and is under consideration. Should further questions be asked I will give non-committal answers pending your reply to Prime Minister's message of 7th May.* Ends.

17TH MAY. Secret. My telegram of 12th May.‡ Following for your Prime Minister:—

Message begins: Grigg proposes to ask another question in House of Commons Wednesday, 21st May, and we should like, if possible, to give answer which would make position clear here and would help you in any further discussion in Canadian Parliament. Hence Prime Minister would be glad if possible to have reply not later than Monday to his message of 7th May.* Would it be possible to arrange for concurrent statement here and in Canadian Parliament? We feel sure that this would be best procedure. Statement which Prime Minister would like me to make here in the light of the recent correspondence would be as follows:—

Begins: If anything which was said in the course of the debate on ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey should have given the impression that Canada had been asked formally to concur in the arrangements for the negotiations at Lausanne being entrusted to Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold, this would not have been correct description of the position, and I am sorry if there has been any misunderstanding on the point either here or in Canada. The facts were that the intention to appoint Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold was intimated to the Dominion Governments, and the hope expressed that this procedure would be in accordance with their wishes. It was added that the British Plenipotentiaries were well acquainted with the Imperial aspect of the problem and with the keen interest taken by the Dominion Governments in its solution. His Majesty's Government had also understood from the correspondence which passed at the end of 1922 between their predecessors and the Canadian Government that it was not in question that any Treaty which might result from the Lausanne Conference would replace the Treaty of Sèvres: that until it came into force a state of war between the British Empire and Turkey would technically continue: and that the Treaty when ratified must, therefore, be binding on the whole Empire.

I am glad to say that the Canadian Government have now acquiesced in the ratification by His Majesty of the Peace Settlement with Turkey.

It has been agreed between His Majesty's Government and the Canadian Government that the text of the correspondence should not be laid. Ends.

Would you agree to my making above statement, and, if so, will you telegraph text of corresponding statement which you will make in Canadian Parliament? Message ends.

Begins: Your telegram of 12th May.* Your telegram of 17th May.† I have sent your Prime Minister to-day‡ reply to his message of the 7th May.§ Much as I should like to meet your wishes with respect to a concurrent statement you will see from perusal of what I have there said why it is not possible for me to hope to be able in this manner to limit discussion in our Parliament on the Lausanne Treaty. Moreover, statement along the lines of the one suggested in your message would only serve further to emphasize the false position in which in this matter Canada has already been placed before the British public and the other Dominions. It carries the inference that Canada was consulted with reference to the procedure respecting the Lausanne Conference and the appointment of Lord Curzon, whereas the fact is, we knew nothing of the procedure or appointment of Lord Curzon in any capacity till informed of what had been settled and also of the reason why Canada could not be represented. Our whole position is bound to be misunderstood until the facts are given to the public in their true light.

Already in the Press of Great Britain and elsewhere throughout the Empire we are being condemned for the attitude which we have never assumed and on premises which are entirely misleading and false. No Government can afford to have its own and its country's position so grievously misrepresented.

I hope I have made clear what appears to be the misunderstanding of our position as to any exception being taken by us to the view that the Treaty when ratified must be binding on the whole Empire. We have never raised a question as to that. It is imperative, however, as to the obligations which may devolve upon Canada from this fact that our position with regard to the absence of any representation at Lausanne, as we have from the outset so regarded it, should be made known.

19TH MAY. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: Lausanne Treaty. Your telegram of 7th May.* I cannot give clearer statement of Canada's attitude with respect to the Lausanne Treaty than that contained in letter to the Editor of the London Times signed A. Berriedale Keith, University of Edinburgh, which appears in issue of 26th April.† Had Canada been represented at the Lausanne Conference, our position with respect to the Straits Convention would have been stated as therein set forth, namely, as controversy over Article X of League of Nations Covenant proves, Canadian opinion is united in the view that Canada should accept no obligation for action which would fetter decision of future Canadian Parliament. Our unwillingness to ask Canadian Parliament to approve the ratification of the Treaty is based on the certain knowledge that, Canada not having been represented at Lausanne or a signatory to the Treaty, our Parliament would not approve steps which would imply the undertaking of Canada of a definite and positive responsibility to render aid in case action became necessary under the Straits Convention. As to whether Treaty of Lausanne, if and when ratified simpliciter, will or will not be binding on Canada because it was not signed by Canadian representative(s) acting eo nomine for Canada, our Government have no desire to put forward at this time views suggested by opinion of Mr. Doherty, (Minister) Ministry of Justice in Administration of Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Meighen, and one of the signatories of the Treaty of Versailles, when in 1919, at the time the approval by Parliament of the Treaty of Versailles was being sought, he explained in our House of Commons the doctrine of the signature of Treaties and asserted that Canada could be bound only by Treaties concluded in this manner.

On the understanding that Canada's position as respects the future shall not be prejudiced in any way thereby, we are prepared as regards the Lausanne Treaty to forgo raising any constitutional issue at this time, and to recognize ratification without expressing that exclusion of Canada must bind Canada in International Law as much as it binds the rest of the Empire.

* No. 732.

† This letter read as follows:—

"Sir,—It is easy to understand Mr. Mackenzie King's reluctance to ask the Canadian Parliament to approve ratification of the Treaty of Lausanne, since such action would imply the undertaking by Canada of a definite and positive responsibility to render aid in case action became necessary under the Straits Convention, and, as the controversy over Article X of the League of Nations Covenant proves, Canadian opinion is united in the view that Canada should accept no obligation to action which would fetter the decision of future Canadian Parliaments.

But the Parliamentary discussions leave obscure the vital question whether Mr. King really holds that the Treaty of Lausanne, if and when ratified simpliciter, will not be binding upon her because it was not signed by Canadian representatives acting eo nomine for Canada. This, of course, is the view suggested by the opinion of Mr. Doherty in 1919, when he explained to the Canadian House of Commons the doctrine of signature of treaties, and asserted that Canada could be bound only by treaties concluded in this manner. But I am unable to find any doctrine of international law on which this view could be supported, and it appears clear that, unless and until international recognition is accorded to this new doctrine, a ratification without express exclusion of Canada must bind Canada in international law, as much as it binds the rest of the Empire. On this view, however, though ratification will bind Canada, it will remain open to Canada, as freely as in the past, to decide what steps she will take to assist actively in securing the observation of the Straits Convention, if the need should ever arise, and for all practical purposes this position should be satisfactory enough for Canada.

The alternative, the exclusion of Canada from ratification, would raise such grave issues that it may be assumed Mr. King does not contemplate asking for such action."

On this view, however, though ratification will bind Canada, it will remain open to Canada as freely as in the past to decide what steps she will take actively in securing observation of the Straits Convention if the need should ever arise. I should perhaps add that, this being our position as asserted from the outset, we have never suggested the alternative, namely, exclusion of Canada from ratification. The view that my statements at the Committee meeting at the Colonial Office 2nd November mean that, while we might not be in position to express on behalf of Canada formal concurrence in ratification, the Canadian Government had no objection to ratification of the Peace Settlement on behalf of the whole Empire is quite correct. This accords exactly with our position as set forth in Governor-General's telegram to the Secretary of State for the Colonies 24th March* as follows, "My Ministers do not feel that they are in a position to recommend to Parliament approval of Peace Treaty with Turkey and the Convention thereto. Without the approval of Parliament they feel that they are not warranted in signifying concurrence in ratification of the Treaty and Convention. With respect to ratification, however, they will not take exception to such course as His Majesty's Government may deem it advisable to recommend."

I thank you for your permission to state, as requested in my telegram to you 23rd April,† that if anything you said in the course of the debate on ratification of the Peace Treaty with Turkey should have given the impression that Canada had been asked formally to concur in arrangements for negotiations at Lausanne being entrusted to Lord Curzon and Sir H. Rumbold, this would not have been correct description of position. I shall be only too happy to include mention of passages from the Secretary of State for the Colonies' telegrams of the 27th October and 8th December, 1922, referred to in your telegram. My reason for not making mention of either of these passages in my statement to Parliament on 2nd April was that I was anxious to avoid adverse comment to which I felt they might give rise, as well as the raising of any issues apart from the one with respect to whether Canada had or had not been represented at Lausanne, which was the occasion of my statement to Parliament.

Did I feel that statement to Parliament, such as might be prepared in advance, would satisfy our House of Commons, I should be only too ready to prepare something of the kind and submit it for your consideration in advance. I am quite sure, however, that Members will wish to discuss this whole matter very fully and would resent any attempt on the part of the Government to avoid the question and reply. Moreover, I have told the House that the Government would welcome the fullest discussion, and that to permit of this I would bring up the subject when in Committee of Supply on Estimates of Department of External Affairs which I also promised would be immediately upon conclusion of the debate on budget. Debate you may have noticed terminated on Friday morning last. My intention has been to fix Tuesday for this purpose, and unless specially requested by you before the conclusion of to-morrow, Monday evening's Session to defer day longer, I shall follow this course. I shall, as respects representation at Lausanne, seek to confine my remarks to repeating what I have already said in the House with more explicit statement, however, as to why we had reason to feel that we were not represented, and, as respects ratification, to the statement of our position along the lines of this communication.

I have already informed Parliament that it was our desire that the correspondence should be brought down, and that I was asking permission of the other Dominions as well as of the British Government to have such of the correspondence as has passed between Great Britain and Canada brought down. I shall be expected to communicate to Parliament nature of replies received. Already questions (?have) been asked as to this.

General Smuts, South Africa, says: "I raise no objection to publication." Mr. Bruce, Australia, says: "Commonwealth Government has no objection to tabling the correspondence between Canada and Great Britain. Have, however, already advised the British Government that, so far as

* No. 709. † No. 725. ‡ Nos. 355 and 369 in Dominions No. 87.

Australia is concerned, prior to making any statement purporting to summarize the views of the Dominion on this question desirable that such statement be communicated to us prior to publicity."

Warren, Newfoundland, says: "Government of Newfoundland is agreeable to having tabled such correspondence between Canada and Great Britain as may be agreed upon by Britain and Canada respecting the Lausanne Conference and invitation thereto." Mr. Massey, New Zealand, says: "Understand that communications mentioned were not written with the view to publication, and if made public am afraid would interfere with clear and frank information being given to the Dominion to which they are undoubtedly entitled." Unless the reply of Mr. Massey is to be understood as objection, it would appear that all the Dominions are agreeable to publicity being given to the correspondence.

In the event of the permission of the British Government not being obtained to bring down the correspondence, and this I understand to be the way the matter now stands, in view of the false position in which our country and Government have been placed through the impression that we were represented at Lausanne with our knowledge and consent and that nothing to the contrary has been said by me at the Imperial Conference, and that as a consequence there has been shifting of our position with regard to ratification, you will appreciate, I am sure, wherein it will be necessary for me to make quite plain just what our understanding of the despatches respecting the Lausanne Conference was, and my position with respect thereto at the Imperial Conference. Ends.

SECRET. Your two telegrams of 19th May.* Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:

Begins: Your messages of 19th May* to Secretary of State for the Colonies and myself. Our only desire in proposing concurrent statement was to help in making matters clear, and in view of arrangements for Parliamentary discussion in Canada we would certainly not press our suggestion, nor would we ask you to defer debate in your Parliament.

We agree that under the Straits Convention it is open to Canada to decide what steps she would take if Article 18 came into operation. While Great Britain is bound in any case to carry out, in conjunction with France, Italy and Japan, a decision of the Council under that Article, Canada is not in the same position. She is only bound to the extent of any obligation which may arise under Article 10 of the Covenant, interpreted (as there can be little doubt it would be) by the resolution voted upon by the last Assembly.

As regards publication of correspondence, in view of replies from other Dominions and extent to which earlier correspondence has already been summarized by you in your statements of 2nd and 3rd April, I should not wish to raise any question as to your reading out text of following telegrams if you think this course necessary in order to remove misunderstanding.

Mr. Meighen, Leader of the Opposition, then asked if I could not give to the House replies received from the other Dominions respecting telegrams sent asking their permission to such correspondence being placed on the table both here and in Great Britain as might be agreed upon between the two Governments. 20TH MAY. Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: With further reference to your telegram of 19th May,* as mentioned in my telegram of same date† leader of the Opposition, Mr. Meighen, has asked that the discussion on Lausanne Treaty be not proceeded with until after such correspondence as permission may be given to make public is laid on the table of the House and the members afforded opportunity to consider. I am pleased to have your permission to read out the text of the telegrams enumerated in your telegram, but I am certain that the moment I do so the leader of the Opposition will ask that copies be tabled. Having regard to mention in Secretary of State for the Colonies' message of 17th May¶ that the answer to the question by Mr. Grigg is to be made to-morrow, might I suggest as means of clearing up the situation both at London and Ottawa, that agreement be reached between us to table simultaneously at the opening of the House to-morrow afternoon (Wednesday) telegrams herein enumerated. Ends.

We have no objection to including in papers read out and published Secretary of State's two telegrams* of 22nd February* (or later one only if so desired) and his telegram of 21st March and Governor-General's telegram of 24th March.†

Unless I hear to the contrary, I will arrange to have published on Monday telegrams enumerated in my message of 19th May‡ and four telegrams referred to above. I regard it as quite out of the question to publish Secretary of State's Secret telegram of 27th October, 1922.§

As Grigg is now asking private question to-morrow (Thursday) please be sure to let me have to-night information asked for at end of my message of 19th May† so that reply can be got ready to-morrow morning. Ends.

21ST MAY. Secret. Following from Prime Minister for your Prime Minister:—

Begins: My message 7th April.|| Publication of correspondence Treaty of Lausanne. In view of strong representations of Prime Minister of Canada and replies which he has received to his inquiries of other Dominion Prime Ministers, I have now agreed to his publishing main telegraphic correspondence between His Majesty's Government and Canadian Government. This includes Secretary of State's public telegram 27th October, 1922,¶ and telegrams of 22nd February and 21st March, 1924, to Governor-General of Canada which were also sent to Governors-General of other Dominions in identical terms. I am also arranging for publication here of correspondence with Canada in question Monday, 26th May. IRISH FREE STATE.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 309.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 21st May, 1924.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 141 of the 3rd March‡‡ and previous correspondence regarding the Peace Settlement with Turkey, I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that the attention of His Majesty's Government has been called to a speech made in Dail Eireann on 9th April by the Minister of External Affairs, in the course of which he stated that he did not consider that the Clauses of the Lausanne Treaty were in any way binding on the Irish Free State.§§

* Nos. 699 and 701. † Nos. 707 and 709. ‡ No. 738. § No. 356 in Dominions No. 87.
|| No. 715. ¶ No. 355 in Dominions No. 87.  Nos. 701 and 707. †† No. 356 in Dominions No. 87. ‡‡ No. 705. §§ See Annexure.

2. His Majesty's Government feel bound to point out that, while the primary object of the instruments signed at Lausanne is to bring to an end the state of war still technically existing between the British Empire and Turkey, in their view certain limited obligations may require to be carried out in the Irish Free State, as in the other self-governing Dominions, as soon as these instruments have been ratified by His Majesty the King. The nature of these obligations is indicated by the terms of the Act which has just been passed by Parliament here (of which a copy is enclosed*) and by Article 1 of the Order in Council* to be made under the Act, of which a draft is enclosed for your Ministers' information.

It is, of course, for your Ministers to decide whether the obligations upon the Irish Free State are such as to necessitate the introduction of legislation in the Oireachtas.

3. The Governments of the other Dominions have now expressed their readiness that the Treaty of Lausanne and the other connected instruments should be ratified by His Majesty, and it is considered essential that the instrument of ratification should be deposited at the earliest possible date, in any case not later than the end of May.

4. His Majesty's Government feel sure that the Irish Free State Government would not wish to delay the bringing into effect of the Peace Settlement. They hope, therefore, that they may assume that your Ministers acquiesce in the ratification of the instruments in question.

5. The question remains whether Declarations should be made under the Convention respecting Conditions of Residence, Business and Jurisdiction, and under the Commercial Convention (see paragraph 4 of my predecessor's despatch No. 525 of the 31st August, 1923†) to the effect that their provisions do not apply to the Irish Free State. In the absence of an intimation to the contrary, His Majesty's Government will presume that it is your Ministers' desire that such Declarations should be made in respect of the Irish Free State (as in the case of Canada).

I have, &c.,

J. H. THOMAS.

ANNEXURE.

EXTRACT FROM STATEMENT MADE BY MR. FITZGERALD ON THE 9TH APRIL, 1925.

WITH regard to the Lausanne Treaty, that Treaty was initiated, and to a large extent negotiated, before we came into our present position. That being so, we were not consulted or invited to be in its negotiation. We were not consulted as to whether or not we agreed with its signing, and for that reason I assert that the articles of its various clauses are in no wise binding on this country. Since we came into existence in our present form we were kept during the negotiation of that Treaty in close knowledge of its progress; but, inasmuch as we were not consulted as to its initiation, and as we had no opportunity of having a representative there, I do not consider that the clauses of that Treaty are in any way binding on this country.

Most of Deputy Johnson's statements as to the full equality of Ireland with Great Britain are, as I say, unquestionable and unquestioned. Since we came into existence, the only two Treaties, so far as I know, that have been under consideration, have been the Lausanne and the Liquor Treaty. With regard to both of them, we were more or less daily informed as to their progress. With regard to the statement that Deputy Johnson read out as having been made in the British House of Commons, I have no idea as to what that statement was intended to be. The Deputy asked if we had given consent to the ratification of the Lausanne Treaty. We have not given consent to the ratification of the Lausanne Treaty with regard to Ireland.

21ST MAY. Following for Prime Minister from my Prime Minister:—

Begins: I am arranging for the laying on table at opening of House Monday next, 26th May, correspondence enumerated in your telegram of 19th May* also to include in the same Secretary of State for the Colonies' telegram of 21st March, 1924, and Governor-General's telegram of 24th March,† requested in my telegram of yesterday, 20th May,‡ and assent to which request is given in your telegram of to-day.§ There is evidently some misunderstanding as to original telegram. In addition to two telegrams, Secretary of State's telegram 21st March and Governor-General's telegram 24th March referred to, I suggested telegram of Secretary of State for Colonies of 22nd February, 1924,|| should be included. Your reply states that you have no objection to including the Secretary of State for the Colonies' two telegrams of 18th May or the later one only if so desired but makes no reference to this telegram of 22nd February. We have not on our file any telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies dated 18th May either for this year or any other year. Was your telegram not intended to refer to the Secretary of State for the Colonies' public telegram of 22nd February, 1924, which was the telegram referred to in my telegram. My attention has been drawn to circumstance that the British Government Regulations require that telegrams sent in cypher should, if made public, be paraphrased and not given in exact words in which they are sent. Assuming the existence of any such regulation, you will I think agree that in this matter it is absolutely essential that the telegrams as laid on the table here should agree in every particular with the telegrams sent which you may table at Westminster. Should it appear later that their wording in any particular was different, a question would arise which might occasion endless embarrassment to both Governments. Under the circumstances I should like to have it agreed that the telegrams which we place on the table here, so far as their text is concerned, should be exact reprint of the messages which we have received and sent. Unless advised by you to the contrary I shall table the exact text, being careful, however, unless otherwise advised, not to indicate that the original message was sent or received in cypher.

Having received permission to table the correspondence, I have thought it inadvisable to say anything on the Lausanne Treaty this week or before Tuesday of next week, so that, as requested by the leader of the Opposition, Members of the House may have ample opportunity to read the correspondence themselves. Ends.

transposed with result that message as received by you contained reference to two telegrams of 18th May, 1924. Proper reference, as you indicate, was to the two telegrams of 22nd February, 1924,* from Secretary of State for Colonies. It was not quite clear from your message of 20th May† whether you wished to publish one only or both of these telegrams. Do I understand rightly from your message of 21st May‡ that you wish to publish later one only, i.e., that beginning "My telegram of to-day Treaty of Peace with Turkey." Please reply urgently. I agree that in this case exception seems inevitable to rule that paraphrases of cypher telegrams should be published instead of actual text, and arrangements are being made accordingly for publication of text of following telegrams in the series, Governor-General, 31st October, 1922; Secretary of State, 16th November; Governor-General, 25th November; Secretary of State, 8th December;§ Governor-General, 31st December.¶ We shall give no indication that above telegrams were in cypher. I am told that remainder of series to be published was not in cypher. Practice here is to omit prefix "secret" to telegrams in case of publication, and we shall follow it in this case. Ends.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL to THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 29th May, 1924.)

[Answered by No. 749.]

(No. 207.)

SIR,

Vice Regal Lodge, Dublin, 28th May, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to refer to your despatches Dominions No. 89 of the 29th February and No. 141 of the 3rd March, relating to the Treaty of Lausanne, and to inform you that, having studied the Treaty with attention, my Ministers have not found that any general or particular interests of the Irish Free State are affected by its terms. This is presumably the reason why my Ministers were not given an opportunity of participating in the negotiations.

2. My Ministers, while anxious that the state of war, in so far as it may be held to exist between the States of the Commonwealth and the Turkish people, should be brought to an end with the least possible delay, do not feel called upon to submit the Treaty itself to the Parliament of the Irish Free State with a view to ratification, more especially as the position of the Irish Free State as a party to the Treaty and in particular to Article 18 of the Straits Convention might involve her in action which would be inconsistent with Article 49 of the Constitution of the Irish Free State. In the circumstances, my Ministers do not wish the Treaty to be ratified on their behalf.

3. With regard to the Conventions annexed to the Treaty, my Ministers desire that the Irish Free State should be formally excluded from the Convention respecting Conditions of Residence and Business, and from the Commercial Convention.

4. Finally, my Ministers wish to call the attention of His Majesty's Government to the use of the expression "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland" in the preamble, and in this connexion to refer you to paragraph 2 of my despatch No. 136, dated 17th April,* relating to the Liquor Treaty.

No. 749.

IRISH FREE STATE.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE to THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

(No. 348.)

SIR,

Downing Street, 5th June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 207 of the 28th of May† relating to the Peace Settlement with Turkey.

2. His Majesty's Government desire to make it clear that the Treaty of Peace with Turkey must, when ratified, be binding on the whole Empire. The position was explained in my predecessor's message to the Prime Minister of Canada of 8th December, 1922,‡ which is included in the correspondence recently published in Cmd. 2146, of which copies have been sent to you. It would, however, not be in accordance with constitutional practice that the ratification of a Treaty of this kind should be effected until the Governments of all the self-governing Dominions had signified their assent to ratification.

3. I may also explain that, at the time when the negotiations at Lausanne commenced, the Irish Free State had not been formally established.

4. The procedure with regard to the negotiation, signature and ratification of future Treaties will be governed by the Resolution of the Imperial Conference, 1923 (see pages 13-15 of Cmd. 1987). Your Ministers will remember that Section I (b) of this Resolution is as follows:—

"Before negotiations are opened with the intention of concluding a Treaty, steps should be taken to ensure that any of the other Governments of the Empire likely to be interested are informed, so that, if any such Government considers that its interests would be affected, it may have an opportunity of expressing its views, or, when its interests are intimately involved, of participating in the negotiations."

5. In the circumstances His Majesty's Government would be glad if your Ministers would re-examine the position in the light of the following considerations.

6. The main clause of the Treaty of Peace which affects the Irish Free State is Article 1, providing that from the coming into force of the Treaty the state of peace will be definitely re-established between the British Empire and other States of the one part and Turkey of the other part.

7. The view of His Majesty's Government regarding Article 18 of the Straits Convention is that it would be open to the Irish Free State to decide for itself what steps it should take, should that Article come into operation. Whilst Great Britain is bound in any case to carry out in conjunction with France, Italy and Japan a decision of the Council of the League of Nations under Article 18, the Irish Free State is not in the same position. The Irish Free State is only bound to the extent of any obligation which may arise under Article 10 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, interpreted (as there can be little doubt it would be) by the Resolution voted upon by the Assembly of the League in 1923. For this reason the terms of Article 18 of the Straits Convention are regarded by His Majesty's Government as entirely consistent with Article 49 of the Constitution of the Irish Free State, to which, they note, reference was made in the letter of 3rd September, 1923, addressed by the Irish Free State Delegation to the Secretary-General of the League of Nations in connexion with the application of the Free State for membership of the League.

* No. 796. † No. 748. ‡ No. 369 in Dominions No. 87.

8. Your Ministers are aware that the economic clauses of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey contain certain provisions which necessitated legislation in this country to enable them to be carried out. So far as His Majesty's Government are in a position to form an opinion, it appears to them improbable that any occasion would arise for the application of these provisions in the Free State, and in any case it does not appear to them necessary that legislation of this nature should be passed by the Dail before the assent of your Ministers is given to the ratification of the Treaty.

9. His Majesty's Government hope that, in view of the above explanation, your Ministers will feel able to take such action as will enable His Majesty's ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Turkey and the other connected instruments to be deposited forthwith. As intimated in my despatch No. 309 of 21st May* the Governments of all the other Dominions have now expressed their readiness that these instruments should be ratified, and, inasmuch as the ratification of Turkey was completed last year and the ratifications of Japan and Italy have now been received, only the ratification of His Majesty is needed in order to bring the Peace Settlement into force under Article 143 of the Treaty of Peace, and consequently to restore the state of peace under Article 1 of that Treaty.

10. It is noted that your Ministers desire that declarations should be made to the effect that the provisions of the Convention respecting Conditions of Residence, Business and Jurisdiction and of the Commercial Convention do not apply to the Irish Free State, and action will be taken accordingly.

I have, &c.,
J. H. THOMAS.

Note.—The position of the Dominions in relation to the Lausanne Conference was raised in the House of Commons on the 6th June by Sir Edward Grigg on the motion for adjournment—see Official Report, columns 1619-1654 for the resulting Debate.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

(Received 24th June, 1924.)

(Confidential.)

SIR,

Government House, Ottawa, 12th June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to transmit, herewith, for your information, copies of the Hansard report,† of the debate in the House of Commons on the subject of the Lausanne Treaty. The question came up on the vote for salaries and contingencies of the Department of External Affairs.

I also enclose clippings‡ from the Press commenting thereon.

The Prime Minister spoke at some length as to the attitude adopted by the present Government towards the ratification of the Treaty, and, in enunciating his views as to Canada's position in relation to the rest of the Empire, said as follows:—

* No. 744. † Extracts only printed here. ‡ Not reprinted.

"Before I resume my seat, let me just say one word which I would like to say as to my own attitude in regard to the future of this country in its inter-Imperial and international relations. Honourable gentlemen opposite in their press and in their speeches never lose an opportunity to misconstrue and misinterpret my position on these questions, and I should like my position to be known in the clearest and most emphatic way from one part of this Dominion to the other. As I see it, looking to the future of Canada, and having regard to the kinds of discussion that have taken place, there are at least three possible avenues of constitutional development. One leading to complete independence, another leading to annexation with the United States, another leading to a more clearly recognized nationhood within the community of nations comprising the British Empire or the British Commonwealth, by whichever term you may wish to call it. I can conceive of only one other possible alternative, and that is the Dominion reverting back into its original parts and there then being two or more separate Colonies or Dominions, whichever you wish to call them, within what are now the confines of the one Dominion. That possibility, I think, is not to be considered for an instant. For my own part, I believe that the future of this Dominion will be happiest and best, most prosperous, and in every way most to the good, if its development is along the line on which it has been thus far, towards a fuller recognition of national status within the community of free nations which comprise the British Empire, and it is because I hold that view, it is because I believe in it so strongly, that, in this particular matter, I have been prepared to risk whatever in the way of misunderstanding and criticism and censure might come from those who have not had a full knowledge or appreciation of the significance of the facts. I have been taking my stand from the point of view of Canada, a nation within the British Empire, not Canada a Colony, not Canada in any inferior or subordinate position, but Canada a country which has gained and which merits equality of status with other Dominions, and with the Mother Country in these inter-Imperial relations.

Now in regard to the manner in which that community of nationhood may be best maintained, there have been some who have thought that that end would be best served by an Imperial Parliament meeting at Westminster. Others again have thought that that end would be best served by something in the nature of an Imperial Council sitting in London and issuing decrees which would bind all parts of the Empire. There is a third view which is that that end will be best obtained by the several Dominions having full recognition given to their status of self-governing Dominions, within the full meaning of these words, and in there being worked out in the best possible way as respects inter-Imperial affairs, effective means for consultation and co-operation between the Dominions and the Mother Country, as units possessing equality of status within the British Empire. Now I do not believe that an Imperial Parliament is a possible thing; I think an Imperial Council would be a thoroughly bad thing; I believe it would lead to the destruction of the British Empire, and not to the making of it. But I do believe that within the British Empire every step we take to make clearer to each other that we believe in our nationhood and realize to the full our rights of self-government, will make for that future development on safe and secure lines, and I believe, as against the rest of the world, it will make for the unity and strength of the Empire itself.

But what above all else is needed is a united Canada, a Canada that as a nation will stand as one, recognizing its responsibilities and its duties, as well as its rights, a Canada that will have one aim and one purpose, a Canada which is united within itself and finds its unity within the unity of the British Empire as well."

The Leader of the Opposition, the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen, adopted the obvious attitude towards the Prime Minister's line of action, as shown in the correspondence laid on the table of the House, and charged him with not acting in co-operation with the British Government. Mr. Meighen also said that the stand taken by the Canadian Government had "for the sake of a mere shadow" permitted misunderstanding and friction to arise and had abandoned "all that we had achieved over ten rather weary and bloody years."

The Honourable Robert Forke, the Leader of the Progressives, expressed himself as being uncertain as to the place that Canada really occupied within the Empire. He defined the position of the Dominion by declaring that "we are not a nation; we are not a Colony; we are something more than a Colony and little less than a nation."

I have, &c.,
BYNG OF VIMY.

Enclosure in No. 750.

EXTRACT FROM DEBATE OF THE CANADIAN HOUSE OF COMMONS, 9TH JUNE, 1924.

Lausanne Treaty.

MR. MACKENZIE KING:

I HOPE I have made it clear that the Government in its attitude on this matter has been trying to maintain logically and consistently the position which was fought for, gained and held by Canada's representatives at the Versailles Conference, which was followed in subsequent Treaties, which was followed in the International Conference that was held at Washington, on the question of armaments, and which was followed in the Conferences at Genoa and at the Hague. If we had departed from that procedure, we should in our opinion have been justly entitled to such measure of criticism and censure as this House might have seen fit to pass upon us. We were simply seeking to maintain that equality of status which had been gained, and which we have been in the habit of asserting as between the self-governing Dominions and the Mother Country in matters of a kind that are supposed to affect us all.

Now, not only is the position which this Government has taken with respect to this Treaty in accordance with precedent which we believe to have become well established, but it is also entirely in accord with the agreement which was reached at the Imperial Conference with respect to negotiation, signature and ratification of Treaties.

The Conference recognized it as an established practice that, if an International Conference related to a matter which immediately affected all parts of the Empire, the different Dominions should be individually represented at that Conference.

- (a) The Treaty of Peace with Turkey and such of the other instruments signed at Lausanne on the 24th July, 1923, as require ratification by His Majesty;
- (b) The Greek Minorities Treaty and the Treaty respecting Thrace, signed at Sèvres on the 10th August, 1920, the ratification of which is provided for by document No. XVI of the Final Act of the Lausanne Settlement ("Treaty Series," No. 16 (1923), p. 224); and

2. I request that you will deposit these ratifications with the French Government with as little delay as possible.

3. You should at the same time hand to the French Government the formal declarations regarding the exclusion of certain portions of the British Empire from the Commercial Convention and from the Convention respecting Conditions of Residence and Business and Jurisdiction, of which the texts† are enclosed in this despatch. These declarations have, under Articles 19 and 16 respectively of the two Conventions, to be made at the time of the coming into force of the Convention, and the French Government will no doubt arrange for them to be formally made at the time when the procès-verbal of the deposit of ratifications is drawn up in accordance with Article 143 of the Peace Treaty, and the fact that these declarations have been made will no doubt be stated in that procès-verbal.

4. The same procedure should be followed in regard to the British copy of the identic declaration excluding the condominium of the New Hebrides from the commercial and establishment conventions; but if the draft declaration is not ready when this despatch reaches you, the action indicated above need not be delayed on that account, although the declaration must be duly made at the time when the procès-verbal of deposit is drawn up.

[MY LORD,] [SIR,]

Downing Street, 9th September, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to request [Your Excellency] [you] to inform your Ministers that, in accordance with Article 4 of the Convention respecting Conditions of Residence and Business, signed at Lausanne on the 24th of July, 1923, it is the intention of His Majesty's Government to open negotiations with Turkey for a Convention regulating the admission of British subjects in Turkey and of Turkish citizens in this country to the various forms of commerce, professions and industries.

2. It is proposed to include in the Convention a clause enabling parts of the Empire other than this country, which may desire to become parties to the Convention, to do so. In view of the terms of Articles 1 and 19 of the Convention respecting Conditions of Residence and Business, and the declaration already made under the latter Article, the wording of any such clause will need special consideration. Meanwhile, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs would be glad to learn whether there is any prospect of your Ministers desiring eventually to consider the question of the Convention being extended to [Canada.] [the Commonwealth of Australia.] [New Zealand.] [the Union of South Africa.] [the Irish Free State.] [Newfoundland.] [Southern Rhodesia.] If so, it would be desirable that the British negotiators should be informed of any points which may be of special interest to your Government and furnished with particulars of any forms of activity, commercial, professional or industrial, from which foreigners, and especially Turkish citizens, may be excluded in [Canada.] [the Commonwealth.] [New Zealand.] [the Union.] [the Irish Free State.] [Newfoundland.] [Southern Rhodesia.]

3. I should be glad to receive an early reply to this despatch.

MINUTE No. 865.

WITH reference to His Excellency the Governor-General's Minute 62/2967 of 4th October, 1924, forwarding copy of despatch Dominions No. 447 of the 9th September, 1924, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Ministers have the honour to inform His Excellency the Governor-General that the admission of Turkish nationals to the Union, in common with that of all persons of whatever nationality, is governed by the provisions of the Immigrants Regulation Act No. 22 of 1913, and provided the requirements of that Act can be met by them no restriction is placed upon their admission. It must be noted, however, that coloured persons of whatever nationality, having no right of entry by birth or domicile, are not admitted in any circumstances (coloured persons are defined as those not of pure European descent). Once admission has been approved, no restrictions are placed upon actual residence in the Union of aliens of any description.

Ministers are, however, of opinion that it does not appear to be necessary or advisable for the Union to become a party to the proposed Convention with Turkey regulating the admission of British subjects in Turkey and of Turkish citizens in the Union of South Africa to the various forms of commerce, professions and industries.

WITH reference to my despatch Dominions No. 79 of the 27th February,† I have the honour to request Your Excellency to inform your Ministers that, in view of the difficult situation created by the seizures of British vessels by the United States authorities outside the three-mile limit and the danger of further seizures, it is considered most important that the Treaty with the United States of America on the subject of the Regulation of the Liquor Traffic should be ratified as soon as possible.

As regards rest of correspondence, it would in any case seem necessary to obtain consent of United States Government to publication of communications to or from them or accounts of conversations between United States Secretary of State and British Ambassador. Apart from this, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs feels that publication of papers showing details of negotiations with United States Government might afford material for unfavourable criticism in United States, and would, therefore, deprecate publication of this part of correspondence in interest of good relations with United States. In the circumstances, would it be possible to bring Treaty before Canadian Parliament without laying papers other than those referred to in earlier part of this telegram? Convention with United States in connexion with laws dealing with Alcoholic Beverages.

RIGHT HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister):
As I have intimated, the treaty was signed on 23rd January by the British Ambassador. In this connexion may I point out to the House that the practice followed with respect to the signature of this treaty is the one decided upon at the recent Imperial Conference and set out in the report of the Summary of Proceedings of the Imperial Conference to be found on pages 13, 14 and 15 in the part of the report relating to negotiation, signature and ratification of treaties. With reference to the signature of treaties there are the following provisions:

(a) Bilateral treaties imposing obligations on one part of the Empire only should be signed by the representative of the government of that part.

The Halibut treaty which has been the subject of discussion in this House is of that character. It is a bilateral treaty which imposed obligations only on Canada, not on other parts of the British Empire, and as such, according to the procedure which the Imperial Conference has thought proper in this matter, it should be signed by a representative of the Government of Canada. Now I continue to quote from the report of the proceedings:—

"The full power issued to such representatives should indicate the part of the Empire in respect of which the obligations are to be undertaken, and the preamble and text of the treaty should be so worded as to make its scope clear.

(b) Where the bilateral treaty imposes obligations on more than one part of the Empire the treaty should be signed by one or more plenipotentiaries on behalf of all the Governments concerned."

This treaty between His Majesty and the President of the United States is a bilateral treaty which imposes obligations on more than one part of the Empire. It imposes obligations on all parts, and therefore it is, in the language of the procedure set forth by the Conference, to be signed by one or more plenipotentiaries on behalf of the Governments concerned. It would seem quite sufficient that the British Ambassador should be sole plenipotentiary for this purpose. I might say I am informed that the Governments of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland, and the Irish Free State have all approved of the terms of the treaty, and have all expressed their acquiescence in having the British Ambassador sign the treaty in so far as their interests in the matter are concerned. The act of ratification is an act of the Sovereign. The treaty while it has been ratified by the United States has not yet been ratified by His Majesty the King. That ratification awaits, as I have already intimated, the concurrence of the Governments of the several parts of the Empire before that step is taken.

In regard to the ratification of a treaty, the Imperial Conference has the following to say with respect to procedure:—

"Ratification of treaties imposing obligations on more than one part of the Empire is effected after consultation between the Governments of those parts of the Empire concerned. It is for each Government to decide whether parliamentary approval or legislation is required before a desire for or a concurrence in ratification is intimated by the Government."

It will be seen by the statement I have just read that it is not essential to ratification that Parliament should approve treaties. Ratification being an executive act may be taken by the executive independent of Parliament altogether, should the executive of the country, in other words the Government concerned, so desire. We have felt that in these important matters of treaty the Parliament should be asked to approve before the Government would concur in the ratification. It is with a view of obtaining the approval of the Parliament of Canada that to-day we are asking this House to pass the resolution which I have just presented. . . .

RIGHT HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): Before the Prime Minister closes, I would like to ask first this question: Does the treaty entirely fail of effect if it should be that the Parliament of any single one of the Dominions fails to ratify it?

MR. MACKENZIE KING: I assume that the British Government would reconsider the present wording of the treaty if any of the parliaments of the British Empire should refuse to approve it, possibly exempting the particular country concerned from the provisions of the treaty; but I should expect that in this case a question of that kind would not be apt to arise.

MR. MEIGHEN: There are two other questions on another point which the Prime Minister referred to, namely, the point of the formality of the execution. First, how is it determined whether a treaty is bilateral, affecting one part or dominion alone? What precautions are taken to make sure of that? Second, in the event of its being found to be a bilateral treaty affecting one part alone, upon whose recommendation does His Majesty act in authorizing the execution by the appropriate dominion representative?

MR. MACKENZIE KING: With regard to the first question which my right hon. friend has asked: How is it ascertained that a bilateral treaty applies to one particular part of the Empire or more than one, I would answer that that fact would be ascertained by the terms of the treaty itself, its subject matter and conference between the different parts of the Empire. The paragraph in the report of the Imperial Conference which deals with the subject of negotiation of treaties contains, I think, what will answer my right hon. friend's question. The paragraph reads:

"(a) It is desirable that no treaty should be negotiated by any of the governments of the Empire without due consideration of its possible effect on other parts of the Empire, or, if circumstances so demand, on the Empire as a whole.

(b) Before negotiations are opened with the intention of concluding a treaty, steps should be taken to ensure that any of the other governments of the Empire likely to be interested are informed, so that, if any such government considers that its interests would be affected, it may have an opportunity of expressing its views, or, when its interests are immediately involved, of participating in the negotiations."

If that course is pursued, I think it will soon become apparent to any particular self-governing dominion or the Government of the United Kingdom, whether the treaty which it proposes to negotiate is one that concerns only one part of the Empire or more than one part. In these, as in all matters, commonsense has to govern in the last degree; hard and fast lines cannot be laid down; but the broad intelligence that is usually applied to matters of this sort would soon, I think, make it quite apparent and clear whether a self-governing dominion or the Government of the United Kingdom would be justified in regarding a treaty as imposing obligations only upon itself.

As to the second question which my right hon. friend has asked: On whose advice does His Majesty act in ratifying a treaty, was it?

MR. MEIGHEN: No, in a case, for example, of a treaty which, after the conference, the other Dominions and the United Kingdom should agree affected Canada alone. In that event, some Canadian is authorized by His Majesty to sign. Upon whose advice does His Majesty act in authorizing the execution, thus approving the terms of the treaty?

MR. MACKENZIE KING: In this report of the Imperial Conference is mention of the legal adviser of the Foreign Office, who was present when the particular matter to which my right hon. friend refers was discussed at a subsidiary conference. His name is Sir C. J. B. Hurst. Perhaps I can best illustrate the point of view which was expressed at that time, by recalling, as best I can at the moment, an answer made by Sir Cecil Hurst to a question that was asked by one of the dominion prime ministers. It was in the nature of a rhetorical reply. In the event of advice being given to His Majesty which might prove to be not proper advice, and the necessity should arise for impeaching the minister or prime minister who had given it, would it, asked Sir Cecil, be the British Prime Minister or the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs of Great Britain, or the minister or prime minister of the dominion concerned against whom impeachment proceedings should be properly started? That question was put in that way to elucidate where the responsibility began and where it ended. I gathered, I think rightly, that the interpretation which the Foreign Office placed upon the matter to which my right hon. friend just referred is this, that the government of the Dominion which was tendering the advice in such a case was the government that was responsible; that it was advising His Majesty directly in regard to matters which were of sole concern to the dominion; that in the transmission of that advice the British Government was acting as the channel through which that advice was transmitted, but was not the government which was formally tendering the advice.

MR. MEIGHEN: I understand, then, that the Prime Minister intimates that for the sake of approving of a certain treaty a Canadian should be appointed to execute it and that the British Government itself would entail no responsibility; in other words, that His Majesty would act solely on the advice of his Canadian Privy Council.

MR. MACKENZIE KING: I take it that the view of the British Government is that it is prepared to trust the Governments of the self-governing Dominions "all in all or not at all" in this as in other matters; and that on a matter in regard to which a dominion government has a right to advise His Majesty direct, such as the question of who should be appointed to sign a particular treaty which comes within the group of bilateral treaties, to which I have referred, which impose obligations on only one part of the Empire, the responsibility shall rest with that particular government and not with the British Government.

MR. MEIGHEN: If such is the case, and if the approval of the British Government is not at all essential, is not indeed obtained, why does the transmission take place through the British Government and not through His Majesty direct?

MR. MACKENZIE KING: I think my hon. friend will see that these are all matters of constitutional development. Up to the present time all communications have gone to His Majesty through the British Government. It will also be seen that it is obviously desirable to have some central agency or channel through which all communications may pass and where they may be noted. I think it would be palpably unwise to have different parts of the British Empire communicating direct with His Majesty, without any knowledge on the part of other parts of the Empire that such advice was being given in that way. I consider it advisable that in the working out of a great constitutional evolution—for that is really what is involved in these matters—steps should be taken slowly and with great caution.

MR. MEIGHEN: I take the responsibility of stating the situation as I understand it, and which I think is a more correct statement of the actual constitutional result. The function of the British Government will consist in making a recommendation; the wording of the transmission to His Majesty will be a recommendation. I do not think the Prime Minister would venture to deny that. The British Government having been first apprised of the terms of the treaty and having agreed that the matter is purely one that concerns Canada, the recommendation will in every case be cheerfully given; but it will signify to His Majesty the approval by the British Government of the treaty.

MR. MACKENZIE KING: My right hon. friend is always prone to assert his own views as against the views of everyone else. I have given him my understanding of the situation, arrived at after a conference with the British authorities, and the Prime Ministers of the other dominions in the presence of Lord Curzon who as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs presided at a subsidiary conference of the Imperial Conference held expressly for the purpose of considering these very matters. As I have intimated, when the matter was discussed, the conference had the benefit of advice from the legal adviser to the Foreign Office, Sir C. J. B. Hurst, who is perhaps the greatest authority on international law in the world. I believe I have accurately stated the position; it is certainly the basis upon which this Government is proceeding.

MR. MEIGHEN: As regards the merits of the treaty itself, I do not propose to take general exception to its terms as generally outlined by the Prime Minister. As respects the last point, whether I am right or whether the Prime Minister is, will I think wholly depend upon whether a recommendation actually goes from the British Government; whether the document that passes from them to His Majesty contains a recommendation or merely transmits one of ours. I shall be interested to know just how the matter develops and whether such a recommendation passes or not. This arrangement having been arrived at as between the Dominions and the United Kingdom on the one hand and the United States on the other, for the settlement of a somewhat vexed matter of controversy between them, I feel that on the part of this parliament there will not be a disposition to refuse ratification. With regard to the necessity for ratification by parliament, I only emphasize that this is no new development; this is no accretion in the evolution of our constitutional relations; it is something that has been meticulously observed, in respect of matters both of great and of little consequence, in at least the last decade of our history.

MR. MACKENZIE KING: In order that there may appear correctly in Hansard the references to the persons concerned in the subsidiary conference to which I have referred, I would direct the attention of hon. members to the opening paragraph in the summary of proceedings of the Imperial Conference. I have reference to the section relating to negotiations, signature and ratification of treaties.

"The principles governing the relations of the various parts of the Empire in connexion with the negotiations, signature and ratification of treaties seemed to the conference to be of the greatest importance. Accordingly it was arranged that the subject should be fully examined by a committee, of which the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs was chairman. The Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Prime Ministers of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and Newfoundland, the Minister of External Affairs of the Irish Free State, and the Secretary of State for India as head of the Indian Delegation, served on this committee. With the assistance of the legal adviser to the Foreign Office, Sir C. J. B. Hurst, K.C.B., K.C., the following resolution was drawn up and agreed to:—"

Then follow several paragraphs relating to negotiations, the signing of treaties, and their ratification. It was as a member of that conference that I heard stated the position as I have given it to this House; and it was, I think, quite beyond question in the mind of anyone present that the position was exactly as I have indicated. Indeed, I might say to my right hon. friend, so important did I consider the matter, that at the conference I asked the particular question to which he himself has referred, and received the reply which I have given to the House.

SIR,

Vice Regal Lodge, Dublin, 17th April, 1924.

WITH reference to your despatches Nos. 140 and 172 of the 3rd and 19th March,* I have the honour to inform you that the Articles of the Liquor Treaty have been submitted, by way of Resolution, to both Houses of the Oireachtas for approval. The Resolution (copy of which is enclosed) was passed by both Houses, but in the Dail the following proviso was added to the third paragraph, viz.:—

"Provided that such approval shall not be deemed to be an approval or acceptance of the inclusion of Ireland in the description of the United Kingdom among the Royal Titles of the Crown as one of the parties to the said Treaty."

* Nos. 784 and 792.

2. The continued use of the expression "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland" which signifies a relationship rendered obsolete by the Treaty of 1921, is unacceptable to our people and is likely to give rise to misunderstanding abroad. It was this latter consideration particularly which caused the proposal and acceptance of the proviso.

3. My Ministers desire me to inform you that they recommend the ratification of the Treaty to His Majesty according to the terms of the Resolution.

I have, &c.,

T. M. HEALY.

Enclosure in No. 796.

MOTION BY THE MINISTER FOR EXTERNAL AFFAIRS.

BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

WHEREAS Articles of Agreement for a Treaty respecting the regulation of the Liquor Traffic outside the territorial waters of the United States of America (whereof the tenor appears by the Schedule hereto), were signed at Washington on the 23rd day of January, 1924, on behalf of the President of the United States of America and His Majesty, subject to ratification, and

Whereas the provisions of the said Articles of Agreement for a Treaty affect the interests of Saorstát Éireann and it is expedient that the same should be ratified in respect of Saorstát Éireann.

Dáil Éireann approves of the ratification of the said Articles of Agreement for a Treaty and recommends that the Executive Council do so advise the Crown,

Provided that such approval shall not be deemed to be an approval or acceptance of the inclusion of Ireland in the description of the United Kingdom among the Royal Titles of the Crown as one of the parties to the said Treaty.

Schedule referred to.

Article 1.—The High Contracting parties declare that it is their firm intention to uphold the principle that three marine miles extending from the coastline outwards and measured from low water mark constitute the proper limits of territorial waters.

Article 2.—(1) His Britannic Majesty agrees that he will raise no objection to the boarding of private vessels under the British flag outside the limits of territorial waters by the authorities of the United States, its territories or possessions in order that inquiries may be addressed to those on board and an examination be made of the ship's papers for the purpose of ascertaining whether the vessel or those on board are endeavouring to import or have imported alcoholic beverages into the United States, its territories or possessions in violation of the laws there in force. When such inquiries and examination show a reasonable ground for suspicion a search of the vessel may be instituted.

(2) If there is reasonable cause for belief that the vessel has committed or is committing or attempting to commit an offence against the laws of the United States, its territories or possessions, prohibiting the importation of alcoholic beverages, the vessel may be seized and taken into a Port of the United States, its territories or possessions for adjudication in accordance with such laws.

(3) The rights conferred by this Article shall not be exercised at a greater distance from the coast of the United States, its territories or possessions than can be traversed in one hour by the vessel suspected of endeavouring to commit the offence. In cases, however, in which the liquor is intended to be conveyed to the United States, its territories or possessions by a vessel other than the one boarded and searched, it shall be the speed of such other vessel and not the speed of the vessel boarded, which shall determine the distance from the coast at which the right under this Article can be exercised.

Article 3.—No penalty or forfeiture under the laws of the United States shall be applicable or attach to alcoholic liquors or to vessels or persons by reason of the carriage of such liquors when such liquors are listed as sea stores or cargo destined for a port foreign to the United States, its territories or possessions, on board British vessels voyaging to or from ports of the United States, or its territories or possessions, or passing through the territorial waters thereof, and such carriage shall be as now provided by law with respect to the transit of such liquors through the Panama Canal, provided that such liquors shall be kept under seal continuously while the vessel on which they are carried remains within said territorial waters and that no part of such liquors shall at any time or place be unladen within the United States, its territories or possessions.

Article 4.—Any claim by a British vessel for compensation on the grounds that it has suffered loss or injury through the improper or unreasonable exercise of the rights conferred by Article 2 of this Treaty or on the ground that it has not been given the benefit of Article 3, shall be referred for the joint consideration of two persons, one of whom shall be nominated by each of the High Contracting Parties.

Effect shall be given to the recommendations contained in any such joint report. If no joint report can be agreed upon the Claim shall be referred to the Claims Commission established under the provisions of the agreement for the Settlement of Outstanding Pecuniary Claims signed at Washington, the 18th August, 1910, but the claim shall not, before submission to the tribunal, require to be included in a schedule of claims confirmed in the manner therein provided.

Article 5.—This Treaty shall be subject to ratification and shall remain in force for a period of one year from the date of the exchange of ratifications.

Three months before the expiration of the said period of one year, either of the High Contracting Parties may give notice of its desire to propose modifications in the terms of the Treaty.

If such modifications have not been agreed upon before the expiration of the term of one year mentioned above, the Treaty shall lapse.

If no notice is given on either side of the desire to propose modifications, the Treaty shall remain in force for another year, and so on automatically, but subject always in respect of each such period of a year to the right on either side to propose as provided above three months before its expiration modifications in the Treaty, and to the provision that if such modifications are not agreed upon before the close of the period of one year, the Treaty shall lapse.

Article 6.—In the event that either of the High Contracting Parties shall be prevented either by judicial decision or legislative action from giving full effect to the provisions of the present Treaty, the said Treaty shall automatically lapse, and, on such lapse, or whenever this Treaty shall cease to be in force, each High Contracting Party shall enjoy all the rights which it would have possessed had this Treaty not been concluded.

(No. 1225.)SIR, British Embassy, Manchester, Mass., 25th July, 1924.
WITH reference to my despatch No. 1191 of 18th July enclosing copy of a circular I have addressed to Consuls as to the action they should take in cases of British vessels arrested under provision of the Liquor Treaty, I have the honour to enclose herewith copy of a letter addressed to me by Mr. Consul-General Gray of Boston forwarding a protest from the Master of the Canadian Schooner "Frances Louise" which was lately arrested and brought into Boston on the charge of violating the United States Liquor Laws.From the Master's own statement it is quite clear that he was engaged in violating those laws. He states indeed that he was arrested more than twenty miles from the coast, but as the Treaty does not specify in terms of miles any precise distance from the coast, this is immaterial.The activities of the "Frances Louise" being quite clearly admitted by the Master himself, it seems to me that any interference on his behalf by this Embassy would have no useful result but rather the reverse, and that the case should be left simply to the Courts to decide.I should, however, be grateful if you would cause instructions to be sent me as to how you would wish me to act in this and similar cases.I have, &c.,

(No. 55.)

SIR, British Consulate-General, Boston, 23rd July, 1924.
WITH reference to my immediately preceding despatch to Your Excellency dated 16th July, on the subject of the arrest of the British Schooner "Frances Louise" and her Master under the recent Liquor Treaty, I have now the honour to transmit herewith the enclosed communication addressed to me by the Master, protesting against the treatment accorded on behalf of himself, the owners, and the owners of the cargo, and requesting an inquiry, and that the good offices of Your Excellency may be enlisted to see that prompt and immediate relief be granted.

The result of my inquiries have already been communicated to Your Excellency in my preceding despatch. It is observed that the Master now claims that his vessel was twenty-two, not sixteen-and-a-half, miles from the coast at the time of arrest; that he was not in United States waters nor within an hour's sailing of the United States when he was arrested, and his boat and cargo seized.

He admits having sold liquor to the launch "Catherine B," but it is understood that his Counsel are prepared to submit evidence to rebut any evidence that the United States authorities may put forward in an endeavour to prove that the distance from the ship to the coast can be covered by the launch in one hour.

I also gather that an acquittal is hoped for on the further plea that, even if Article II (2) of the Treaty may be construed as permitting the seizure of the vessel for adjudication in accordance with the laws of the United States, the United States have no law by which such vessels on the high seas can be adjudicated.

Further, it is gathered that if an attempt is made to plead that the Treaty is tantamount to legally permitting the application of United States Law to vessels on the High Seas, the point may be raised by the defence whether the Treaty itself is valid under the United States Constitution.

In confidence I would add as follows:—

Counsel for the defence state that much of the trouble is due to the fact that the Master is new to the trade, and has made definite admissions instead of refusing to admit anything. He is now allowed out on bail for $500, and it will not be surprising if he forfeits his bail and escapes to Canada. It is also understood that the United States authorities at Boston are in grave doubt of their position under the Treaty and under United States Law, and that the United States Attorney has gone to Washington, it is thought to obtain guidance in the case.

I have, &c.,

EDWARD F. GRAY.

(No. 1281.)
(Confidential.)

SIR, British Embassy, Manchester, Mass, 8th August, 1924.
WITH reference to my despatch No. 1225 of 25th July, regarding the seizure of the Canadian Schooner "Frances Louise," I have the honour to report that I understand from His Majesty's Consul-General at Boston that the lawyers for the defendants offered to bring forward witnesses to prove that the engines of the motor boat, on the basis of the speed of which the ship had been seized, had been tampered with by the United States authorities after the capture of the boat in order to enable them to prove their case for seizure under the Treaty. In other words, the engines were so altered as to give to the boat a speed greater than she actually had when her arrest was effected.

Though, apparently, these witnesses failed to appear when required, I hear that the lawyers for the defence have obtained from a local firm a statement containing details and the date of the work done by them on the motor boat in question.

If the above is correct, it seems possible that the defence may be able to prove that the "Frances Louise" was beyond the limits specified in the Liquor Treaty when she was seized, and that her detention is thus in violation of the Treaty.

I shall not fail to report in due course the result of the legal proceedings in this case, but, meanwhile, I think it better, for the reasons given in my despatch under reference, to give the United States authorities the benefit of the doubt, and I do not therefore propose to approach the United States Government in the case.

I have, &c.,

ESMÉ HOWARD.

EXTRACT FROM A TELEGRAM FROM SIR E. HOWARD (MANCHESTER, MASS.) TO FOREIGN OFFICE, DATED 18TH AUGUST, 1924.

(Paraphrase.)

WITH reference to the prosecution of the "Frances Louise" as reported in my despatch No. 1225, I now understand that the prosecution will rely on the doctrine of hot pursuit rather than on the terms of the Liquor Treaty.

The reason for this is that in the first place the question of the speed of the launch which brought the liquor from the "Frances Louise" makes a verdict against the vessel doubtful, and secondly the question of whether the Treaty contravenes the 18th Amendment of the Constitution has not yet been decided by the Supreme Court. This information, which I am forwarding to the Canadian Government, was obtained in informal conversation from Mr. L. Curtis, Assistant United States Attorney, who is the prosecuting counsel in the case.

I should be glad to be informed if, in your opinion, I should enter a protest against this new proceeding, and to have your views as to its validity. I should add that up to the present no report of this charge has been published.

DATED 24TH AUGUST, 1924.

(Paraphrase.)

WITH reference to the prosecution of the schooner "Frances Louise" reported in your telegram of 18th August, until it is evident that the actual proceedings are not being conducted under the Treaty, there is no ground for protest, but in case you should have any conversation with Mr. Hughes on this subject, our views as set forth below may be of use to you.

If the United States authorities are going to utilize the Treaty in cases to which it is applicable, and then to employ doctrines, which are not acceptable to us, in cases where it does not apply, a protest should be made. We do not think we can allow such proceedings.

In this particular case, however, if they are able to deal with it under conditions laid down in the Treaty, there would be no ground for protest. But, if this were so, there would be no necessity for them to put forward the doctrine of hot pursuit.

Whatever happens—and particularly in view of the definite statement Mr. Hughes has made on this point—the United States authorities cannot be permitted to proceed outside the Treaty on the grounds of a doubt as to its constitutional validity.

TELEGRAM FROM SIR E. HOWARD (MANCHESTER, MASS.) to FOREIGN OFFICE.

(Received 4.45 p.m., 8th September, 1924.)

(Extract.)

No. 279. 8th September.

Libel sets forth facts of case and states that vessel was seized at a point 16.4 miles from coast on 14th July at a time when she was within Admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of United States for the purpose of illegally introducing alcoholic liquor into United States in violation of its laws. After enumerating number of cases landed, etc., libel adds that this was effected by using motor launches "Katherine B" and "D 229," and that these were being operated by direction of master of "Frances and Louise" and her owners acting through persons on shore. Both motor-boats mentioned were apprehended on 14th July, and libel declares that from the time of the arrival of these boats "within United States" there was immediate continuous action on the part of authorities looking to seizure of "Frances and Louise," and that from the time of the delivery by "Frances and Louise" of 185 cases of liquor found on "D 229" there was immediate hot pursuit on the part of revenue cutter "Ossipee," resulting in arrest of schooner above-mentioned. Forfeiture of "Frances and Louise" is called for in view of these facts and by virtue of sections 447, 448, 450, 453, 585 and 586 of Tariff Act of 1922.

Enclosure 2 in No. 805.

JUDGMENT IN "FRANCES LOUISE" CASE.

JUDGE MORTON is reported as delivering judgment orally as follows:—

"The case seems to me a simple one, in which there is no necessity for my taking it under advisement. In my opinion the matter is covered by the Treaty with Great Britain of 1924. That Treaty provides for cases of liquor ships hovering on the coast and being visited while so hovering by small boats from the shore. Of course, such small boats only go to the hovering vessel to get goods from her. Both parties understood that when they entered into the Treaty. The plain inference is that such trading does not render the larger vessel amenable to seizure except as provided in the Treaty.

When the Treasury officials made the seizure of the "Frances Louise," they were acting upon the belief that she had brought herself within liability of seizure under the Treaty. Later it turned out that that was not true, and then an attempt was made, rather as an afterthought, I believe, to hold the schooner on other and very much broader grounds which have been suggested in the argument. Of course, that must fail, because, as I have said, the whole matter is covered by the Treaty, and it is not necessary to decide whether and how far the broader grounds argued by counsel are sound.

There seems to be a good deal of similarity between the facts as they appear here, and the case of the "Emerald," as stated by Mr. Curtis"—(Assistant United States District Attorney)—"in which the vessel was arrested and later released. I do not see that an understanding between the vessel and the shore as to her movements diminishes her rights under the Treaty or renders her subject to forfeiture when she would not otherwise be so. I entertain no doubt that the Treaty is constitutional. So it follows that there may be decrees dismissing the libel against the schooner, her cargo, and for penalties."

CERTIFIED COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY THE DEPUTY OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 1ST OCTOBER, 1924.

His Majesty's Ambassador, telegram, 12th September.
Colonial Office Confidential telegram, 15th September.

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 22nd September, 1924, from the Secretary of State for External Affairs, submitting that he has had under consideration despatches, as noted in the margin, from His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington, and from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, relating to the case of the seizure of the Canadian vessel "Frances Louise," and to the general policy to be adopted in regard to extending protection to British vessels seized by the United States authorities under the provisions of the Liquor Treaty entered into with the United States at Washington on the 23rd January, 1924.

In the first of the above noted despatches His Majesty's Ambassador sets forth reasons which had led him to think it inadvisable to present to the United States authorities the protest of the owners of the "Frances Louise" against her seizure, and he further expressed the opinion that, in view of Canada's participation in the Liquor Treaty above referred to, and of the signing at Washington on the 6th June, 1924, of the further Treaty relative to Smuggling Offences, it would not be consistent or desirable to extend protection to vessels seized under the provisions of the Treaty which there was reason to believe were engaged in illicit liquor traffic to the United States, but that only those cases should be taken up with the United States Government where there seemed to be a clear violation of the Liquor Treaty, resulting in injustice to an innocent vessel.

From the subsequent despatches it has become apparent that the United States Government does not seek to justify its action in seizing the "Frances Louise" outside territorial waters by the provisions of the Liquor Treaty, but by the application of the doctrine of "hot pursuit," being influenced in the absence of final judicial decision, as the Ambassador intimates, by doubt of the constitutionality of the Treaty as contravening the 18th amendment of the Constitution.

The Ambassador's despatch of the 12th of September conveys the information that the United States District Court at Boston held that the "Frances Louise" had not rendered herself liable to seizure under the Treaty and therefore dismissed the libel against her, further intimating that it entertained no doubt that the Treaty was constitutional.

* No. 803. † No. 804.

His Majesty's Government, while approving the general policy favoured by the Ambassador as outlined above, take the view that in the present case of the "Frances Louise" the United States authorities cannot be permitted to proceed outside the Treaty on grounds of doubt as to its constitutional validity, or to employ a doctrine unacceptable to His Majesty's Government, in support of seizure in cases where the Treaty does not apply, and that in such circumstances protest should be made; but before communicating to Sir Esmé Howard such a view, they inquire if such instructions would be agreeable to Your Excellency's Ministers, and whether they concur in the general policy suggested.

The Minister considers that the reluctance of Sir Esmé Howard to present the protest of the owners to the United States Government in the circumstances which he indicates was amply justified, and that the general policy to be pursued in regard to the protection of vessels seized under the provisions of the Treaty which he suggests may be accepted by the Government of Canada. He concurs, however, in the view of His Majesty's Government that it is not permissible for the United States authorities to attempt to justify action authorized solely by the Treaty provisions on other grounds which are not acceptable, and that the fact of such an attitude having become evident in the case of the "Frances Louise" would warrant a protest against her seizure; and he recommends that the Secretary of State for the Colonies be so informed by telegraph.

The Committee concur in the foregoing and advise that a copy hereof be transmitted to Mr. Secretary Thomas and to His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington.

All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

Assistant Clerk of the Privy Council.

[40791]

Enclosure 2 in No. 807.

EXTRACT FROM DESPATCH NO. 1225, OF 25TH JULY, FROM HIS MAJESTY'S AMBASSADOR AT WASHINGTON TO THE FOREIGN OFFICE.

PERHAPS I may be allowed to state my own personal opinion as to how, in the future, cases of this kind should be dealt with by the Embassy.

The object of the Liquor Treaty, as I understand it, was genuinely to assist the United States Government in enforcing their Liquor Laws by not insisting on our legal right of protecting vessels which abuse the British flag in order to smuggle liquor into the United States and then claim our protection when interfered with outside the three-mile limit. Our action in abandoning, through this Treaty, our strict legal rights for the protection of bootlegging and smuggling vessels has unquestionably produced an excellent effect on our relations with this country generally. If we now protest and interfere on behalf of clear cases of bootlegging vessels caught even a mile or two beyond the distance from the coast that can be covered in one hour according to the provisions of the Treaty, we shall not only reproduce in an aggravated form the tension existing before the Treaty but even prejudice our case if ever we do require to make a serious protest on behalf of some innocent vessel.

It appears to me, therefore, that our general line of policy in dealing with such arrests would be in clear cases of bootleggers to leave them to be dealt with by the Courts, even though they may protest that they have been arrested some distance beyond the limits stipulated by the Treaty, which they are almost sure to do in every case where there is the slightest doubt.

On the other hand, I think that we should reserve all our strength to protest in cases where, if ever such cases should unfortunately arise, the United States authorities interfere with the liberties of innocent vessels clearly engaged in genuine trade.

By acting in this way I venture to think our protests on behalf of such vessels are likely to receive more consideration from the United States Government, and we shall avoid reviving the accusation formerly made against us of protecting vessels overtly engaged in endeavouring to break the laws of this country.

I have, &c.,

ESMÉ HOWARD.

Enclosure 1 in No. 808.

(No. 1538.)

SIR,

British Embassy, Washington, D.C., 7th October, 1924.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 1518 of 3rd October, I have the honour to transmit herewith copies of a telegram† I received on the 3rd instant from the Governor-General of Canada respecting the seizure of the "Frances Louise" off Boston and of a despatch† which I have to-day addressed to Lord Byng of Vimy recording a conversation I have had with Mr. Hughes on this subject. You will observe that Mr. Hughes, while admitting that the doctrine of "hot pursuit" could not be invoked in order to justify the arrest and condemnation of this vessel, took a strong stand on the rights of United States Authorities to arrest vessels acting as she did outside the territorial waters of the United States of America. He based his opinion on the decision come to by His Majesty's Government in the case of the British Columbian Schooner "Araunah" which was arrested by the Russian Authorities in 1888 off Copper Island but outside Russian territorial waters on the ground that she was actually engaged with the help of small boats in fishing within those waters. Mr. Hughes said that he had used the same arguments in dealing with the case of the "Henry L. Marshall," q.v. in the time of my predecessor Sir Auckland Geddes and that he had never receded from the opinion he then held that a vessel standing off the coast and actively engaged in a maritime adventure for profit involving a breach of the Municipal Law of the country was liable to arrest, a doctrine which he considered was fully justified by the admission or concession made by Lord Salisbury in 1888 in the case of the "Araunah." He admitted that at the time of the discussions over the "Henry L. Marshall" His Majesty's Government had never agreed to this point of view and had only abandoned their protest in regard to her arrest on hearing that she had been fraudulently transferred to the British register and was actually in American ownership. He supported the expediency for maritime countries of admitting this doctrine by the following illustration. If, he asked, American adventurers started gun-running along the Irish coast, in case of serious troubles in that country, would not the British Navy arrest American ships hovering off the Irish coast and engaged in this illicit traffic? And might His Majesty's Government not then be glad to point to a precedent set by the United States Government to which they could turn to justify such an arrest?

I did not attempt to reply to this argument without direct instruction from you as to the line I should take, but it certainly seems to me to have considerable weight. At the same time I feel I cannot, unless instructed to do so by you, take, in future, a different line from that followed in Mr. Chilton's note No. 578 of 10th July, 1923, to Mr. Hughes enclosed in his despatch to Lord Curzon No. 853 of 10th July of that year.

In this note Mr. Chilton stated:—

"In order to avoid the possibility of any misunderstanding on the part of the United States Government as to His Majesty's Government's attitude in this matter, I have the honour, under instructions from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to inform you that any attempt on the part of the United States authorities to seize a British ship outside the three-mile limit would be regarded by His Majesty's Government as creating a very serious situation. In regard to the "Henry L. Marshall" case, I have been instructed to explain that the absence of a protest by His Majesty's Government against the condemnation of this vessel in no way implies any alteration in the views of His Majesty's Government with regard to the principle at stake, inasmuch as that vessel, owing to the circumstances in which she secured her British registry, was not recognized by His Majesty's Government as entitled to British registry. Consequently, His Majesty's Government have not felt called upon to assert the principle at stake on her behalf, since, as far as His Majesty's Government are concerned, the 'Henry L. Marshall' remains an American vessel."

* 38711/23: not printed. † Not printed.

In his despatch No. 1224 of the 8th of August, 1923, to Mr. Chilton, the Secretary of State approved the terms of Mr. Chilton's note quoted above.

If I interpret rightly what Mr. Hughes told me yesterday it simply means that the United States Government will rely not only upon the provisions of the Liquor Treaty but also upon the arguments used by the Secretary of State in his discussions with Sir Auckland Geddes to justify the arrest of foreign vessels outside the three-mile limit in cases in which the Liquor Treaty does not apply. We, therefore, seem to be, for all practical purposes, back at the point where we were before that Treaty was ratified except that indeed by the Treaty British ships have the right of bringing intoxicating liquor under seal into United States ports.

I should be extremely grateful to learn what language I should use to Mr. Hughes the next time that I have to discuss this question with him. I cannot tell whether His Majesty's Government is prepared now to be more transigent in the matter of such arrests than they were in 1923. In view, however, of Mr. Hughes' casual reference to the possibility of American gun-runners I think we may infer that, if we all take an intransigent line about bootleggers, the United States Government will be equally intransigent in regard to any case in which His Majesty's Government may desire to deal drastically with "hovering" American smugglers.

We must further remember that this Government cannot afford, owing to the pressure of the Prohibitionists in this country, to permit fleets of bootleggers to continue their operations indefinitely off the coast of the United States. It must further be remembered that the validity of the Liquor Treaty under the constitution still remains to be proved and that the test case is still pending before the Courts. If the Supreme Court decides against the Treaty, we shall be faced again with a very serious position which was only averted by the signature of the Treaty last year, and, if we insist on the inviolability of "hovering" bootlegging ships, shall certainly be accused here of supporting the bootlegging trade on account of the profits which British subjects are making out of it. This will not be an easy accusation to refute.

For the above reasons I venture to submit that the whole question requires careful consideration before a final and definite decision is taken.

I have, &c.,

ESMÉ HOWARD.

Enclosure 2 in No. 808.

(No. 1756.)

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1., 21st November, 1924.

I HAVE received your despatch, No. 1538 of 7th October, reporting a conversation with the Secretary of State of the United States regarding the seizure of the "Frances Louise."

2. It does not appear that it is at the present stage necessary to take any action with reference to the remarks of the Secretary of State. The following comments may, however, be useful to Your Excellency for your own information.

3. Mr. Hughes admits that the doctrine of "hot pursuit" does not apply in this case. The case has no analogy to that of the "Araunah," as the "Araunah," though herself lying outside the territorial limits, was committing the offence inside the territorial limits through members of her crew fishing out of her own boats. The "Frances Louise," however, was not in communication with the shore or doing anything within American territorial limits by means of her own boats. All she did was to sell or deliver on the high seas to certain United States citizens a commodity the import of which into the United States was illegal. Her action might equally well have been taken in mid-Atlantic. In this connexion you will recollect that the seizure of the "Henry L. Marshall" was held by the United States Government to be justified because, though herself outside territorial waters, she had, in their view, brought herself within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States by communicating with the United States territory by means of small boats, even though they were not her own. You are aware that His Majesty's Government informed the United States Government at the time that this was a doctrine to which they could not agree.

4. If and when the owners of the "Frances Louise" approach His Majesty's Government with a view to a claim for compensation being put forward on their behalf, the question can be considered whether the action of the vessel was such as to render His Majesty's Government disposed, in effect, to assist her smuggling operations by claiming compensation. It appears to His Majesty's Government that the action of the United States authorities in searching this vessel was neither unreasonable nor contrary to the Treaty. Whether, having subsequently found that a conviction was not possible under the Treaty, they were justified in attempting to secure a conviction on grounds which His Majesty's Government do not consider valid, is another matter, but no action on this point is necessary at present in view of the terms of the judgment of the United States District Court.

5. If, however, in the course of the appeal the United States Government should put forward any claim of right to seize British vessels on the high seas or if the decision of the United States Court of Appeal should admit any such right on the part of the United States Government, the question can then be considered of claiming submission of the case to some international tribunal. But there is no need to consider this possibility until the eventuality indicated above has materialized.

6. The communication which you have received from the Dominion Government at Ottawa indicates no divergence of view from that expressed above.

I am, &c.,

(For the Secretary of State).

ROBERT VANSITTART.

SIR, British Embassy, Washington, D.C., 8th May, 1924.
In his note of 4th October, 1923, Mr. Phillips was so good as to inform Mr. Chilton that the President of the United States had expressed his readiness to resubmit to the Senate the Convention, concluded between the United States and Great Britain on 2nd March, 1923, for the protection of the Northern Pacific Halibut Fishery, with a view to obtaining the advice and consent of the Senate to the ratification of the Convention as signed, that is to say, without the reservation made by the Senate on 3rd March, 1923.

As the Government of Canada are taking steps to pass legislation in connexion with the Convention, I have the honour to ask you to be so good as to inform me at the earliest possible moment whether this Convention has been re-submitted to the Senate and whether the Senate has agreed to its ratification without the reservation above referred to.

I have, &c.,
ESMÉ HOWARD.

The Honourable
Charles E. Hughes,
Secretary of State of the United States,
Washington, D.C.

EXCELLENCY, Department of State, Washington, 12th May, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note No. 408 of 8th May, 1924, relating to the Convention for the preservation of the Halibut Fishery of the Northern Pacific Ocean, signed by representatives of the United States and Great Britain on 2nd March, 1923, and to legislation which the Government of Canada is taking steps to enact in connexion with the Convention.

The President re-submitted the Convention to the Senate on 11th December, 1923, for determination by that body whether it would reconsider its resolution of 4th March, 1923, and advise and consent to the ratification of the Convention as signed.

I understand that it is the purpose of the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations to bring the matter up for consideration as soon as advices have been received, that the legislation under consideration by the Canadian Government to amend the Northern Pacific Halibut Fishery Protection Act of 1923, has become law.

Accept, &c.,
CHARLES E. HUGHES.

(No. 439.)

SIR, British Embassy, Washington, D.C., 16th May, 1924.
I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 12th instant, regarding the Northern Pacific Halibut Fishery, in which you were good enough to inform me that as soon as he is informed that the Canadian Parliament has passed the legislation, which it has lately been considering on this subject, the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations proposes to re-submit to the Senate the Convention referred to it by the President on 11th December, 1923.

I am happy to be in a position to inform you that the Bill,* of which I have the honour to enclose a copy, has been passed by both Houses of the Canadian Parliament, by the House of Commons on the 3rd ultimo and by the Senate on the 10th ultimo, and that it only requires the formal assent of His Excellency the Governor-General (which can and will be given at any convenient time) before it becomes law. There appears to be, therefore, no reason why the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations should not now proceed to secure the necessary action by the Senate, and I shall be glad to be informed as soon as this action has been taken.

I have, &c.,
(for the Ambassador),
H. G. CHILTON.

Enclosure 2 in No. 810.

(No. 872.)

SIR, British Embassy, Washington, 23rd May, 1924.
I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, herewith, copies of a despatch from the Department of State, Washington, on the subject of the Convention for the preservation of the Halibut Fishery of the Northern Pacific Ocean.

I have, &c.,
(for the Ambassador),
H. G. CHILTON.

His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Foreign Office, London.
Reference.—Washington despatch No. 828 of 19th May, 1924.

EXCELLENCY, Department of State, Washington, 21st May, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note No. 439 of 16th May, 1924, in further reference to the Convention for the preservation of the Halibut Fishery of the Northern Pacific Ocean signed by representatives of the United States and Great Britain on 2nd March, 1923, and to legislation which the Government of Canada has under consideration in connexion with the protection of the Halibut Fishery.

The reference in the first paragraph of your note to the purpose of the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate to bring the Halibut Fishery Convention up for reconsideration by the Senate as soon as he is informed that the Canadian Parliament has passed the legislation, represents inaccurately the circumstance as stated in my note of 12th May that the Chairman of the Committee will take such action as soon as the legislation has become law. It may be that this discrepancy of statement is of little practical importance since from the statements in your note it appears that the Royal assent is regarded as a formality of the execution of which there is no uncertainty.

I am bringing your statement of the situation to the attention of the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations for his consideration.

Accept, &c.,
CHARLES E. HUGHES.

His Excellency
The Right Honourable Sir Esmé Howard, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., C.V.O., Ambassador of Great Britain.

The Honourable

Charles E. Hughes,

Secretary of State of the United States,
Washington, D.C.

STATEMENT OF PROPOSALS WHICH THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION HOPES MAY BE AGREED UPON AS A RESULT OF THE CONFERENCE.

THE United States delegation respectfully requests that an administrative agreement may be reached, evidenced by an exchange of letters:—

1. That the Canadian Customs officers along the border be instructed to furnish to designated United States attorneys, United States Customs officials, Prohibition officers or other officers, information concerning clearance of ships from Canadian ports with cargoes of liquor or other articles on board, and also information concerning consignments or loads of liquor or other articles transported by land or aeroplane across the border. United States Customs officers would be instructed to furnish information to Canadian Customs officers concerning shipments or loads of silk and other dutiable articles which there was reason to believe were being smuggled across the border in Canada.

2. That clearances be denied to ships carrying cargoes of liquor when the port of destination is in the United States and also that clearances be denied to ships with cargoes of liquor, which from their tonnage, size and general character would be unable to reach the destinations set forth in the applications for clearances.

3. That an executive reciprocal arrangement be effected for the return of stolen property of all kinds belonging to nationals of the one country and seized by the Customs authorities of the other, upon satisfactory proof of ownership and upon proof that there was no collusion.

4. That reciprocal arrangements be made for the exchange of information concerning the names and activities of those persons known or suspected to be engaged in violation of the Customs, liquor and narcotic laws of the respective countries.

5. That upon request Customs and other administrative officials of the respective Governments be instructed to attend as witnesses and produce such available records and files, or certified copies thereof, as may be considered essential to the trial of civil or criminal cases.

It is understood that the cost of transcripts of records, depositions, certificates and letters rogatory in civil or criminal cases, and the cost of first-class transportation both ways, maintenance and other proper expenses involved in connexion with the attendance of such witnesses, would be paid by the nation requesting their attendance at the time of their discharge by the court from further attendance at such trial.

Letters rogatory and commissions shall be executed with all possible despatch and copies of official records or documents promptly certified by the appropriate officials, in accordance with the provisions of the laws of the respective countries.

6. That a treaty be concluded containing reciprocal arrangements for the extradition of persons accused of violation of the Customs, liquor and narcotic laws of the respective Governments or the States or Provinces thereof.

7. In the event that the proposed extradition convention shall not be concluded, then the convention between the United States and Great Britain of 18th May, 1908, with reference to reciprocal rights for the United States and Canada in the matters of conveyance of prisoners shall be amended by the conclusion of a supplemental convention which shall provide reciprocal rights with respect to the conveyance of persons accused of violating the Customs, liquor and narcotic laws of the respective Governments.

8. A treaty authorizing the Canadian authorities to transport liquor across Alaska under seal and under guard shall be concluded.

9. A treaty authorizing the revenue cutters of each country to pursue across the international boundary line, ships engaged in violating the Customs, liquor and narcotic laws on the Great Lakes, and to search and seize vessels hovering along the international boundary line for the purpose of smuggling goods from one country into the other, or of violating its laws.

Proposal No. 1.

That the Canadian Customs officers along the border be instructed to furnish designated United States attorneys, United States Customs officials, Prohibition or other officers, information concerning clearance of vessels from Canadian ports with cargoes of liquor or other goods where there is reasonable ground for belief that the goods are intended to be smuggled into the United States; and also information concerning consignments or loads of liquor or other goods being transported by land or aeroplane across the border. Reciprocally that United States Customs officers be instructed to furnish information to Canadian Customs officers or other designated officials concerning shipments or loads of silk or other goods where there is reasonable ground for belief that the goods are intended to be smuggled into Canada.

Proposal No. 2.

That no clearance be granted for a port outside Canada to any vessel carrying intoxicating liquors as cargo unless the Collector is satisfied that such vessel's seaworthiness, means of propulsion and equipment are amply sufficient to enable her to make the voyage indicated.

The undersigned are of the opinion that under the present law there is no authority to refuse clearance to vessels with cargoes of liquor merely because the port of destination is a port of the United States.

Proposal No. 3.

That it be left to the Department of Customs and Excise to effect informally a reciprocal arrangement with the corresponding department of Government of the United States relating to return of stolen property in certain circumstances.

Proposal No. 4.

That reciprocal arrangement be made for the exchange of information concerning the names and activities of persons known to be or suspected of being engaged in violation of the Customs, liquor or narcotic drug laws of the respective countries.

Proposal No. 5.

That upon request from the one country, Customs and other administrative officials of the other country be instructed to attend as witnesses and assist in every way legally possible, by production of available records, documents and files or certified copies thereof or otherwise, as may be considered necessary to the trial of civil or criminal cases instituted by the Government.

It is understood that the cost of transcripts of records, depositions, certificates and letters rogatory in civil or criminal cases and the cost of first-class transportation both ways, maintenance and other proper expenses involved in connexion with the attendance of such witnesses, would be paid by the nation requesting their attendance at the time of their discharge by the Court from further attendance at such trial.

Letters rogatory and commissions shall be executed with all possible despatch and copies of official records or documents promptly certified by the appropriate officials, in accordance with the provisions of the laws of the respective countries.

Proposal No. 6.

That with regard to the proposal that a Treaty be concluded containing reciprocal arrangements for the extradition of persons accused of violation of the Customs, liquor and narcotic laws of the respective Governments or the states or provinces thereof, the undersigned are of opinion that the adoption of this proposal would involve a departure from an underlying principle of the existing Extradition Treaties between the two countries, which is, that extradition will not be permitted unless the offence charged would have been an offence against the laws of the country of refuge if committed there, and that, having in view the diversified character of the laws relating to the above subjects in the several states and provinces of the United States and Canada, it would be unwise to enter into an agreement such as is proposed.

Proposal No. 7.

That with regard to this proposal, which involves the extension of the existing Convention between the United States and Great Britain of 18th May, 1908, to the conveyance of persons accused of violating the Customs, liquor and narcotic laws of the respective Governments, it is to be observed that, having in view the principle mentioned in the next preceding paragraph, it is inadvisable to authorize the conveyance of a prisoner of one country through territory of the other except where he is charged with the commission of an act which would be an offence against the laws of both countries.

Proposal No. 8.

That a Treaty be concluded permitting Canadian authorities to transport liquors across Alaska under seal and under guard.

Proposal No. 9.

That this proposal be not entertained.

Respectfully submitted,

R. R. FARROW,
Commissioner of Customs and Excise.
W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.
A. JOHNSTON,
Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Begins: Article 1. The High Contracting Parties agree that the appropriate officers of the Government of Canada and of the United States of America respectively shall be required to furnish upon request to the duly authorized officers of the other Government, information concerning the clearance of vessels or transportation of cargoes, shipments or loads of articles across the international boundary when importation of cargo carried or of articles transported by land is subject to payment of duty; also to furnish information respecting clearance of vessels to foreign ports when there is ground to suspect that owners or persons in possession of the cargo intend to smuggle it into the territory of Canada or of the United States.

2. High Contracting Parties agree that clearance from the United States or from Canada shall be denied to any vessel carrying cargo consisting of articles importation of which into territory of Canada or of the United States, as the case may be, is prohibited, when it is evident from the tonnage, size and general character of the vessel or length of the voyage and perils or conditions of navigation attendant upon it that vessel will be unable to carry its cargo to destination proposed in the application for clearance.

3. Each of the High Contracting Parties agrees with the other that property of all kinds in its possession which, having been stolen and brought into the territory of the United States or of Canada, is seized by its Customs authorities shall, when the owners are nationals of other country, be returned to such owners subject to satisfactory proof of such ownership and absence of any collusion, and subject moreover to payment of expenses of seizure and detention and to abandonment of any claims by owner against Customs or Custom officers, warehouse men or agents for compensation or damages for seizure, detention, warehousing or keeping of properties.

4. High Contracting Parties reciprocally agree to exchange information concerning names and activities of all persons known or suspected to be engaged in violation of the narcotic laws of United States or of Canada respectively.

5. It is agreed that Customs and other administrative officials respectively of Governments of United States and of Canada shall upon request be directed to attend as witnesses and to produce such available records and files or certified copies thereof as may be considered essential to the trial of civil or criminal cases and as may be produced compatibly with public interest.

Cost of transcript of records, depositions, certificates and letters rogatory in civil or criminal cases and the cost of first-class transportation both ways, maintenance and other proper expenses involved in attendance of such witnesses shall so far as may be necessary or required be advanced by requisitioning authority at the time of requisition and shall, except in so far as they shall have been so advanced, be paid by that authority: at the time of discharge of the witnesses by the Court from further attendance at trial.

Letters rogatory and commissions should be executed with all possible despatch, and copies of official records or documents should be certified promptly by appropriate officials in accordance with provisions of the laws of the respective countries.

6. Following offences are added to the list of offences Nos. 1 to 3 in first Article of Treaty concluded between the United States and Great Britain on 18th May, 1908, with reference to reciprocal rights for the United States and Canada in the matter of the conveyance of prisoners and wreck and salvage, that is to say:

4. Offences against Narcotics Laws of the respective Governments.

7. No penalty or forfeiture under the Law of the United States shall be applicable or attached to alcoholic liquors or to vessels, vehicles or persons by reason of the carriage of such liquors when they are transported under guards by Canadian authorities through the territorial waters of the United States to Skagway, Alaska, and thence by the shortest route via the White Pass and Yukon Railway upwards of twenty miles to Canadian Territory, and such transit shall be as now provided by law with respect to transit of alcoholic liquors through the Panama Canal or on the Panama Railway, provided that such liquors shall be kept under Seal continuously while the vessel or vehicle on which they are carried remains within the said territory and that no part of such liquors shall at any time or place be unladen within the United States, its territories or possessions.

8. This Convention shall be ratified and ratifications shall be exchanged as soon as possible. Convention shall come into effect at the expiration of ten days from the date of exchange of ratifications, and it shall remain in force for one year, and thereafter until one or other of the High Contracting Parties shall signify its wish to terminate it, and no longer. Ends.

Begin: His Majesty the King of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Sea(s) Emperor of India, in behalf of the Dominion of Canada, and the United States of America, being desirous of suppressing smuggling operations along the boundary between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America and of assisting in the arrest and prosecution of persons violating the Narcotic Laws of either Government, have agreed to conclude a Convention to give effect to these purposes and have named as their plenipotentiaries; His Britannic Majesty in behalf of the Dominion of Canada; and the President of the United States; who having communicated to each other their respective Full Powers which were found to be in due and proper form have agreed upon the following Articles. Ends.

Canadian Government desires to alter the phrasing "In behalf of the Dominion of Canada" in the preamble so as to read "In respect of the Dominion of Canada" in order that the phrasing may conform with the wording of the Resolution adopted at the Imperial Conference, 1923, also to insert after words of the said preamble "violate the Narcotic Laws of either Government" following words "and of permitting transportation of alcoholic liquor through Alaska into the Yukon Territory." Purpose of this addition is as expressed in the Resolution adopted at the Imperial Conference, 1923, to make clear in its preamble the full scope of the proposed Treaty.—BYNG.

WITH reference to my despatch No. 918 of 30th May,† relative to the Treaty between the United States of America and the Dominion of Canada for the purpose of suppressing the illicit liquor traffic between the two countries, I have the honour to report that the United States Government intimated to me on the 4th of June that they were disposed to accept my statement that Full Powers to sign this Treaty had been conferred on Mr. Lapointe, and that they would be glad to sign the Treaty with him as soon as possible.

In the hope of getting the Treaty ratified by the Senate before the end of the present session, Mr. Lapointe arrived in Washington yesterday, and the Treaty was signed at the State Department this morning. It will be immediately forwarded to the Senate for ratification, but it is doubtful whether there will be time for this formality before the session ends to-morrow.

I understand that certain minor alterations have been made in the draft which I forwarded to you with my despatch under reference (including the insertion of the full title of His Majesty the King in the preamble), as the result of consultation between Mr. Lapointe and the State Department.

Copies of the Treaty in the form in which it was signed are not available for transmission by this bag, but they will be forwarded as soon as available. Meanwhile, copies of the summary‡ of the Treaty as issued to the press by the State Department this evening, are enclosed.

Every assistance has been accorded by this Embassy to Mr. Lapointe in connexion with the signature of this Treaty, and he left for Ottawa this afternoon taking with him the signed copy of the Treaty for the Dominion Government.

His Excellency

The Lord Byng of Vimy, G.C.B.,

&c., &c., &c.

Governor-General of Canada,
 Ottawa.

EXCELLENCY,

Department of State, Washington, 23rd June, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note No. 485 of 30th May, 1924, with which, at the request of the Governor-General of Canada, you enclosed a draft of a proposed Treaty providing for the extradition, as between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, of persons charged with crimes and offences against the laws for the suppression of the traffic in narcotics.

The proposal was received at too late a date to arrange for the conclusion of the Treaty and its submission to the Senate of the United States for approval prior to the recent adjournment of Congress.

This Government would be pleased to conclude a Treaty such as you proposed, but it appears that the draft submitted with your note under acknowledgment is defective in some respects.

In line 4 of the draft there is an evident omission after the word "the" of the words "President of the." Likewise in line 7 of Article 1 of the draft after the word "the" there is an evident omission of the following words: "13th December, 1900, and to the list of crimes numbered 14 and 15 in Article 1 of the Supplementary Convention concluded between the United States and Great Britain on the 12th April, 1905, and to the list of crimes numbered 16 in Article 1 of the Supplementary Convention concluded between the United States and Great Britain on the."

It is observed that in the preamble to the draft Convention it is stated that the contracting parties are desirous of enlarging the list of crimes on account of which extradition may be granted "in so far as Canada is concerned." This statement seems to be somewhat inexact since, of course, the United States is concerned as well as Canada. Moreover, Article 2 of the draft Convention expressly provides for the limitation of the operation of the Convention to the United States and Canada, and therefore the quoted words contained in the preamble would seem to be superfluous and it is suggested that they be omitted.

I beg to be advised whether it would be satisfactory to the Governor-General of Canada to conclude the Treaty in question with the changes indicated above.

Accept, &c.,

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

SIR,

British Embassy, Manchester, Mass., 25th July, 1924.

I HAVE the honour to refer to the note No. 811/114 of the 23rd ultimo† in which Mr. Hughes was so good as to indicate the views of the United States Government with regard to the proposed Treaty for the extradition, as between the United States and Canada, of persons charged with crimes and offences against the laws for the suppression of the traffic in narcotics, and to inform you that the views of the United States Government have been carefully considered by the Government of Canada.

The Dominion Government would have no objection to the insertion of the words "President of the" in line 4 of the preamble, nor to remedying the omission in line 6 of Article 1 of the Treaty by the insertion of the words suggested by the Secretary of State. They submit, for the consideration of the United States Government, that, instead of the words "in so far as Canada is concerned," which appeared to Mr. Hughes to be somewhat inexact, the following words should be inserted "with regard to certain offences committed in the United States or in the Dominion of Canada." These words would bring the preamble into precise agreement with the provisions of Article 11 of the Treaty.

* No. 836. † Sub-enclosure to Enclosure in No. 836.

For your convenience a draft* of the Treaty as amended and approved by the Dominion Government including the alterations mentioned above is enclosed herein, and I should be grateful if I might be informed whether the terms of this draft meet with the approval of the United States Government.

WITH reference to my predecessor's despatch [Dominions No. 464 of the 10th of December,*] [No. 716 of the 12th of December,†] I have the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] to be laid before your Ministers, a copy of a despatch from His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Washington forwarding a copy of a memorandum on the treaty-making policy of the United States of America which was prepared by the Commercial Counsellor to the Swedish Legation at Washington for the information of his Government.

I have, &c.,
J. H. THOMAS.

Enclosure in No. 843.

(No. 1468.)

MY LORD,

British Embassy, Washington, 28th November, 1923.

WITH my despatch No. 1297 of the 24th October I had the honour to forward to Your Lordship copies of the Notes recently exchanged between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of Brazil by which the preferential treatment accorded to American goods on importation into Brazil was abandoned.

I now transmit copies of an interesting memorandum on the treaty-making policy of the United States which has been prepared for the information of his Government by the Commercial Counsellor to the Swedish Legation at Washington. This memorandum was communicated confidentially to the Commercial Counsellor of this Embassy, but it is to be observed that it contains nothing new and is obviously based upon the report entitled "Reciprocity and Commercial Treaties" laid before the American Congress in 1919 by the United States Tariff Commission. Copies of the last-mentioned report are already in Your Lordship's possession, and it is reasonable to infer that the conclusions and recommendations of the Commission are primarily responsible for the enactment of Section 317 and other administrative sections of the Tariff Act of 1922, as well as for the altered policy of the United States in the negotiation of commercial treaties with foreign countries. The new policy has been very clearly set forth by the State Department in a letter recently addressed to Mr. W. W. Davies, correspondent in New York of La Nacion of Buenos Ayres, which I quote textually as follows:—

"I have received your letter dated 25th October, 1923, in which you refer to the recent exchange of notes between the United States and Brazil by virtue of which each accords to the other unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment in customs matters. You inquire whether such overtures have been made, or will be made, to any Latin-American countries other than Brazil, and make specific mention of Argentina.

United States Policy.—You are probably aware of the fact that prior to the beginning of the present year preferential tariff rates had for about twenty years been conceded by Brazil to certain imports from the United States. The existence of these preferences had recently been an anomalous feature of our tariff relations, since the general policy of this Government has been neither to give nor to seek customs preferences. In view of the adoption of the Tariff Act of 1922, Section 317 of which authorizes the President to declare additional duties upon the products of any country that may discriminate against the commerce of the United States, it was felt that this Government could not longer consistently ask the Brazilian Government to grant to United States goods rates lower than those accorded to similar imports from other countries. In making known its determination no longer to seek the renewal of preferential treatment, this Government explained to the Government of Brazil that its policy henceforth would be to seek from Brazil, as from other countries, treatment for United States goods as favourable as might be accorded by Brazil to the products of any third country. Subsequent conversations between representatives of the two Governments in Washington and Rio de Janeiro resulted in the recent exchange of notes embodying this policy.

New Treaties.—Initial steps have recently been taken looking toward the negotiation of new treaties of amity, commerce and consular rights with the five countries of Central America, in each of which it is the purpose of this Government to incorporate a provision for unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment in customs matters, should such a provision be found to be agreeable to the Government of the other interested country. The Department contemplates making similar overtures in the near future to other Latin-American countries for the negotiation of new treaties, or the modification of existing treaties, in harmony with this principle, excepting, however, as in the recent exchange of notes with Brazil, the special treatment which the United States accords or hereafter may accord to Cuba and the commerce between the United States and its dependencies and the Panama Canal Zone. Meanwhile, pending the conclusion of a treaty, the Department would be prepared to give prompt consideration to any proposal to bring about reciprocal most-favoured-nation treatment by an exchange of notes similar to or identical, mutatis mutandis, with the recent exchange between the United States and Brazil."

It is, perhaps, well to point out that in this letter, as well as in their recent exchange of notes with Brazil, and in the commercial treaties at present being negotiated with Austria, Czechoslovakia, Latin-American countries, etc., the Government of the United States affirm two doctrines of particular interest at the present time. The first is that a system of Colonial preferences may be established without violating the principle of equality of treatment. The second doctrine is an extension of the first and declares that an exception to the principle of equality of treatment may also be validly made where, as in the case of the United States and Cuba, special political ties and political responsibilities have led to commercial relations of a special character.

Under this cover I have also the honour to transmit a Confidential copy of the draft Treaty* of Friendship and Commerce between the United States and the Republic of Austria.

THE TREATY-MAKING POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES.

ON 18th October, 1923, an exchange of notes took place between the Governments of the United States of America and Brazil, in consequence of which the two countries agreed to accord to each other, in their trade relations, the so-called "unconditional" most-favoured-nation treatment. This agreement is of particular interest, in so far as it indicates a plain departure from the principles followed in the past by the United States when concluding commercial treaties with foreign powers. That this abandonment of a system, practised for more than a century, is not merely incidental but, on the contrary, signifies the beginning of a new epoch in the history of the treaty-making policy of the United States of America, will appear from the following:—

I. THE TREATY POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA BEFORE THE WORLD WAR.

Absence of a uniform system.—A close study of the various commercial treaties concluded between the United States of America and foreign powers before the outbreak of the World War shows that this country has not followed a consistent and continuous treaty policy. It is true that the intention originally was to create a uniform system by securing for the United States of America and extending to other countries equality of treatment, but, owing to the circumstances described below, the intended continuity was interrupted from the very beginning. Separate and individual commercial agreements were entered into, whereby the treatment accorded different countries by the United States of America often varied considerably. As a consequence, the history of the commercial treaty-making policy of the United States of America reveals a series of separate, divergent agreements, which could hardly be said to form the links of a chain in a uniform system.

Most-favoured-nation treatment.—The explanation of this absence of a uniform system in the treaty policy of the United States of America must, in the first place, be traced to the special interpretation given the most-favoured-nation clause by the United States of America. From a modern point of view this clause simply implies that the contracting parties engage to grant a third power the same advantageous treatment accorded each other. But even in the first commercial treaty concluded between the United States of America and France, on 6th February, 1777, a reservation is made in the most-favoured-nation clause, i.e.: "freely, if the concession (to the third state) was freely made, or on allowing the same compensation, if the concession was conditional." This wording implies that, in cases where a certain compensation is accorded a third power in return for special concessions, such treatment is not granted automatically to the second party, but only on condition of reciprocal concession or compensation.

In Europe, the above-named conditional form of the most-favoured-nation clause was found occasionally in commercial treaties concluded during the first half of the nineteenth century. From the year 1860, however, the so-called "unconditional" clause became predominant, and since then the term "most-favoured-nation treatment" has in Europe been interpreted to mean that such concessions as are granted a third power are automatically accorded the second party.

However, all through the history of her commercial treaty-making policy the United States of America has been governed strictly by the principle of making concessions only in return for concessions sought. A perusal of the commercial treaties to which the United States of America has been a party shows that in nearly all of them the most-favoured-nation clause contains the provision regarding reciprocity (among others it is found in the treaties with Sweden of 1783, 1816, and 1827, "et celle-ci jouira de cette faveur gratuitement si la concession est gratuite; ou en accordant la même compensation si la concession est conditionnelle"). It further shows that since 1890 the said clause appears less regularly, and that, during later years, the United States of America has concluded a number of commercial treaties, in which the most-favoured-nation clause has been entirely eliminated. However, the practice of the United States of America with regard to the principle of reciprocity has led to the above-mentioned chain of separate and special arrangements, which have stood in the way of the adoption of a general policy.

* Not printed.

The drawbacks.—Even at an early stage it became evident that the United States of America was not pursuing a consistent treaty-making policy. The separate agreements created discontent among the nations which considered themselves less favourably treated, and were the cause of quite a number of troublesome complications between the United States of America and certain European countries during the decades preceding the World War. The demand for a uniform system with regard to treaties grew, as the United States of America took an active part in world politics, and the Tariff Commission—the special organization charged with the investigation of commercial treaties—found it advisable to emphasize, in a special report to Congress, the need for a change in the method hitherto followed and the adoption of a clear and consistent policy, in conformity with new international principles.

There is reason to believe that the United States of America will heed the advice of the Tariff Commission and abandon, definitely, the old system. The above-mentioned treaty with Brazil would seem to be the first evidence in this respect.

II. THE TREATY POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AFTER THE WORLD WAR.

The principle of equal treatment.—The guiding principle for the new treaty policy would, it seems, be that of equality of treatment, i.e., the demand for and granting of equally advantageous treatment, which should be extended to all the countries with which commercial treaties are concluded. The principle would imply that, hereafter, the most-favoured-nation clause would be employed, unconditionally, and that, consequently, the commercial advantages which have been, or in the future will be granted a third power, automatically are accorded to the second party. The United States of America would hereby have abandoned her old standpoint with the claim to conditional terms, and, instead, would have adopted the European idea regarding the most-favoured-nation treatment.

Reprisals.—In this connexion the much-discussed Section 317 in the Tariff Act of 1922 is of special interest, because this particular section has a direct bearing on the new principles which will govern the treaty-making policy of the country. Before the passage of the said law the United States of America had no means at her disposal whereby the Executive could effect reprisals against another country without delay, in cases where the United States of America was not accorded equality of treatment by other countries. Section 317, which treats in detail the so-called flexible tariff rates, contains provisions authorizing the President to raise or lower the tariff rates in force, not to exceed fifty per cent., in such cases where it is shown by the investigations of the Tariff Commission that a country "discriminates in fact against the commerce of the United States of America, directly or indirectly . . . in such manner as to place the United States at a disadvantage compared with the commerce of any foreign country." This measure provides the United States of America with effective retaliatory means against such countries as are not willing to grant the United States of America the same advantages as are accorded a third power, and also serves as a guarantee for the ultimate adoption of the new system. It would therefore seem that the provisions of Section 317 have played an important part in the decision of the United States of America with regard to the modern interpretation of the most-favoured-nation clause.

It is probable that the United States of America will have to make exceptions from the above-mentioned policy regarding equal treatment, at least in one instance, namely, with respect to Cuba. The intimate political and economic relations existing between these two countries since the Spanish-American War, when Cuba became independent of Spain and was placed under the protectorate of the United States of America, would, it seems, warrant the claim to such exceptional treatment.

* * * * *

The stipulation in Section 320 of the American Tariff Act of 1922, to the effect that the provisions of the Act should in no way effect a change in the commercial relations between the United States of America and Cuba, as set forth in the Treaty of 11th December, 1902, indicates that Cuba will continue to hold a preferential position in the commercial policy of the United States of America. This is also corroborated in the text of the Treaty just concluded between the United States of America and Brazil, which grants, reciprocally, the most-favoured-nation treatment, but makes a reservation with respect to the special privileges which have been or may hereafter be accorded Cuba.

RESUMÉ.

A survey of the current opinion prevailing in commercial circles in the United States of America shows that the country is now entering a new epoch in its commercial policy. The Treaty of Brazil of 18th October, 1923, would seem to be an indication of the turning point.

All through the commercial policy of the United States of America the so-called "conditional" form of the most-favoured-nation clause has been employed, which means that such special concessions as may be granted a third power is not accorded to the other contracting party except in return for a like concession (the principle of reciprocity). The drawbacks of this system, which among other things have given rise to quite a number of complications of a commercial nature with Europe, have been more evident as the United States of America became actively engaged in world politics and have finally led to the conclusion regarding the adoption of a policy along entirely new lines.

The basis for this new policy will no doubt be the principle of equal treatment whereby the United States of America would have abandoned definitely the old attitude with regard to conditional terms and, instead, have adopted the modern, so-called European idea of the interpretation of the most-favoured-nation clause. Exception will very likely be made with respect to Cuba, on account of the intimate political and economic relations existing between the two countries.

The provisions in Section 317 of the American Tariff Act of 1922, empowering the President to adopt immediately retaliatory measures against such countries as do not grant the most-favoured-nation treatment to the United States of America, constitute a safe guarantee for the enforcement of the new principle in the commercial treaties. It would therefore seem that the said section has been of decisive importance in connexion with the adoption of a new commercial policy.

[My LORD,] [SIR,]

WITH reference to my Confidential despatch Dominions No. 48 of the 6th of February,* I have the honour to transmit to [Your Excellency,] [you,] for the information of your Ministers, the accompanying copy of a despatch from His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington regarding suggested negotiations for a new commercial treaty between Great Britain and the United States of America.

I have, &c.,

J. H. THOMAS.

* No. 843.

Enclosure in No. 844.

(No. 790.)

SIR,

British Embassy, Washington, D.C., 12th May, 1924.

Mr. Hughes went on to say that he would be glad to negotiate a new commercial treaty on general lines with His Majesty's Government which would bring the Treaty of 1815 more up to date and by which, amongst other things, British Indian merchants and non-European subjects of His Majesty might have the same privileges for trading and travel to and from the United States as the subjects and citizens of other countries having such Commercial Treaties with the United States Government. He said that the United States Government had drawn up a general form of Commercial Treaty which they proposed to negotiate with a number of countries and that this form contained an unconditional most-favoured-nation clause. I inquired whether this meant that the United States were prepared to waive their former interpretation of the most-favoured-nation clause which I believed laid it down that the benefits of the most-favoured-nation clause could only be claimed by countries which gave something in return for them. I said I was aware that this interpretation had severely handicapped us as a free-trade country in former years.

The Secretary of State replied that by an unconditional most-favoured-nation clause he certainly implied that most-favoured-nation treatment would be accorded without any conditions of this kind being attached.

I said that this was a very important matter and asked him whether I might report it to you. He gave no permission to do so saying, however, that what he had said had been said informally and that the possibility of negotiating a treaty on these lines depended practically on the acceptance by the Senate, which was now considering the ratification, of the new German Treaty, which contained a clause of this kind, and with regard to which there was a considerable divergence of opinion in that body. Should, however, the German Treaty go through he would be quite prepared to begin negotiations with His Majesty's Government for a treaty on similar lines.

(W. 4842/4842/94.)

Ambassade de Belgique,

Londres, le 12 juin 1924.

MONSIEUR LE PREMIER MINISTRE,

EN me référant à la lettre de l'honorable prédécesseur de Votre Excellence, No. W 7203, 1580,94, du 13 septembre 1923, concernant la convention relative aux maladies vénériennes des marins, j'ai l'honneur de porter à Sa connaissance que le Département des Affaires Etrangères de Belgique est actuellement en possession d'un certain nombre de réponses affirmatives à la demande qu'il avait adressée aux diverses puissances maritimes et qui avait pour but d'obtenir leur agrément à un projet d'arrangement international relatif aux facilités à donner aux marins pour le traitement des maladies vénériennes.

Estimant qu'il est désirable de hâter autant que possible l'arrangement en question, mon Gouvernement m'a prié de recourir à l'obligeant intermédiaire de Votre Excellence en vue d'obtenir que le Gouvernement de Sa Majesté Britannique veuille bien munir son représentant diplomatique en Belgique des pleins pouvoirs l'autorisant à procéder à la signature de l'accord.

Je serais reconnaissant à Votre Excellence si Elle voulait bien me faire connaître la suite qui aura été réservée à la demande de mon Gouvernement.

Je saisis, etc.,
B. MONCHEUR.

* No. 845.

Canada to the proposed international agreement relating to the treatment of venereal diseases amongst seamen, which was enclosed therein, I have the honour to enclose, herewith, copies of an approved Minute of the Privy Council of Canada to the effect that Canada is willing to adhere to the revised Convention.

Enclosure in No. 847.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A MINUTE OF A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 16TH SEPTEMBER, 1924.

(P.C. 1567.)

THE Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 5th September, 1924, from the Secretary of State for External Affairs, submitting with reference to a despatch, dated 28th July, 1924, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, enclosing the revised draft of a proposed international agreement relating to the treatment of venereal diseases amongst seamen and asking to be informed of the views of Your Excellency's advisers as to Canada's accession to this agreement,—that by Minute of Council approved on the 23rd March, 1922,* the Government of Canada accepted the principle of the proposed Convention as originally drafted and expressed willingness to participate therein.

The Minister states that the revised draft differs from that first submitted by the addition of a new Article 7, by which the self-governing Dominions, Colonies, Possessions or Protectorates of the High Contracting Parties are excepted from the application of the Treaty unless adhesion is made in their name.

The Minister observes that the Minister of Health points out that the measures prescribed by the proposed Convention have already been adopted and are now enforced in the Dominion, and that he is of opinion that the insertion of the new article does not affect the decision expressed in the Order in Council of the 23rd March, 1922.

The Secretary of State for External Affairs concurs in this view and recommends that Canada adhere to the revised Convention and that due notification of her willingness to adhere be conveyed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The Committee concur in the foregoing, and advise that Your Excellency may be pleased to transmit a copy hereof to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

E. J. LEMAIRE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

SIR, Foreign Office, S.W.1, 23rd September, 1924.
THE Office International d'Hygiène Publique, on the suggestion of the British delegate at the meeting of the committee in October, 1920, made certain proposals for the conclusion of an international agreement relating to the treatment of venereal diseases among seamen. The Belgian Government eventually took the initiative in seeking the concurrence of the several governments concerned in the terms of a draft agreement which was drawn up by the Committee of the Office International. A copy of the text, which has now been approved by His Majesty's Government and which the Belgian Government have invited them to sign, is enclosed herein.*

2. I request that Your Excellency will take an early opportunity to sign the agreement on behalf of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. A special Full Power is enclosed for the purpose. Your signature should be accompanied by a declaration in the following terms:

"I declare that my signature applies only to Great Britain and Northern Ireland. I reserve the right of each of the British Dominions, Colonies, Overseas Possessions and Protectorates, and of each of the Territories over which His Britannic Majesty exercises a mandate to accede to the agreement under Article 7."

3. The date of signature should be reported to me in due course.

15TH OCTOBER. Secret. As a result of arrangements made at Washington Conference (see notes exchanged between heads of British and Chinese Delegations contained in pages 86-88 of print† enclosed in my despatch of 6th May, 1922. Dominions 139†) draft convention for retrocession of Weihaiwei has been agreed upon between His Majesty's Government and Chinese Government. No special Dominion interests appear to be affected, main reservations being (1) facilities for British Navy for ten years with option of renewal and (2) maintenance of Port Edward area for international trade. In the circumstances, arrangements are being made for signature to take place forthwith and ratifications to be exchanged and territory handed over on 31st December next, or, if that date impossible, 25th January next, Chinese New Year, but Chinese Government anxious that settlement should be treated as confidential until exchange of ratifications in view of possible popular agitation and opposition. Copies of draft Convention will follow.—THOMAS.
